ISABEL PATTERSON

Isabel Patterson is a native of Texas, and an unusual ex-Texan she is, for she wouldn't trade an acre of California for the whole state of Texas. Her great belief in California is exemplified by her enthusiastic work in Real Estate activities both local and state-wide and local Chamber of Commerce.

She has a BA Degree; Long Beach State College, and taught in the Long Beach School System for 4 years. Isabel has been in the real estate profession 7 years. She is program chairman of the Long Beach District Real Estate Board, member Real-ette Toastmistress Club. She will attend the California State Real Estate Convention in San Francisco in October and the Pan-Pacific Real Estate Convention in Honolulu. Following the Pan-Pacific Convention she will enter the American Contract Bridge League in Honolulu.

Isabel is an active member of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, giving much time and effort to the Civic Affairs Committee and Ten-Plus Club.

She is vice president and on the board of directors of Belmont Shore Business Association. Her activity in this association has brought her the unofficial title of "Mrs. Belmont Shore." She is also a member of Long Beach Promotions Incorporated. Isabel's hobby is traveling, her favorite vacationing spot is Hawaii.
Her office is located at 203 Glendora Avenue.

Now – You Can Learn a Foreign Language by Record in the Comfort of Your Own Home

Spanish ● French ● German ● Italian ● Russian

And for Spanish-Speaking People: You Can Improve Your English

If you have ever wanted to learn a foreign language quickly and fluently, here is your chance. You can learn a foreign language in the way we have learned to speak—by listening to words and phrases, with the added advantage of being able to see and hear the words and phrases simultaneously.

Each language record consists of a long-playing 10-inch ($33\frac{1}{3}$ RPM). You receive a handy conversational manual with each record. Through this modern record-teaching technique you can easily become adept at Spanish, French, German, Italian, Russian or English. You may even want complete sets of several languages while these are available at the extraordinarily low price of $1.00 per record.

LOW COST OF $1.00 A RECORD

The Independent, Press-Telegram is pleased to offer every reader the opportunity to learn a foreign language. Students, travelers, businessmen and those just interested in mastering a new language will welcome this good news.

The speed-learning techniques incorporated in these language courses were pioneered and developed by instructors and educators to teach languages quickly to the armed forces during World War II. The recordings are made by educated natives of the countries whose languages you wish to learn. The conversational manuals have been approved by outstanding educators.

Four records for each language course are offered, except Russian which has two records. At the low price of $1.00 per record, you may wish to get sets in more than one language.

Here is how to get YOUR language records

You will be able to order as many records as you wish. Order blanks will be printed exclusively in The Independent, Press-Telegram beginning tomorrow.

A coupon will be printed in both newspapers every day, each coupon with a different number. To order a record, simply send six differently numbered coupons with $1.00 in cash, check or money order. To order more than one record at a time, send six coupons (differently numbered) and $1.00 for EACH record.

You may start saving coupons as they are published beginning tomorrow—coupons do not have to be numbered consecutively.

Each order must be accompanied by the properly filled out order blank, in addition to the six coupons and $1.00 per record.

RECORDS MAILED DIRECTLY TO YOU

All records will be MAILED DIRECTLY TO YOU. This service, postage and tax are included in the low price of $1.00 per record. The discs will be mailed anywhere in the U.S.A.

That is all there is to it! Order blank . . . 6 differently numbered coupons . . . and $1 per record.

You'll find learning a foreign language or improving your English this way to be fun. And fast. Your entire family can learn together. Plan now to take advantage of this special service of the Independent, Press-Telegram. Order blanks and coupons will be published daily in . . .

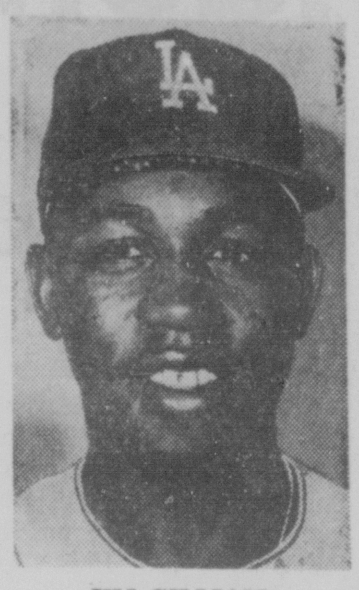
DID GILLIAM STEAL WILLS' RECORD?



JIM GILLIAM
Explodes at Question

By GEORGE LEDERER
(I, P-T Staff Writer)

ST. LOUIS—Maury Wills doesn't care about the little bug that commissioner Ford Frick has placed beside his base stealing record.

What bugs the Dodgers' little green light bandit more than the asterisk is that his own teammate deprived him of a chance to match Ty Cobb's record Friday night.

"I was flabbergasted; I guess that's the word," said Wills, in discussing Jim Gilliam's controversial bunt against the Cardinals Friday.

"I talked to Gilliam before the game," said Wills, "and for the first time all year I asked him to help me. For one game, and one game only, I asked Jim to take some pitches if I were on base. Not tomorrow or the next day, just this once. His answer was, "You get on."

Wills did get on once, via a walk in the sixth inning, and stole his 95th base on Curt Simmons' first pitch to Gilliam. It was obvious to everyone in the park that Wills also would try to steal third on the next pitch. This is the pitch that Gilliam bunted and was thrown out at first, Wills moving to third.

With the Cardinals leading, 4-1, the defense was paying no attention to Wills. Ken Boyer, the third baseman, was from eight to 10 feet behind the bag. Dal Maxvill, the shortstop, was not trying to hold Wills close to second. With a three-run lead, the idea was to retire Gilliam for the second out.

WILLS STEAL-METER

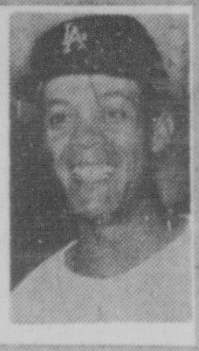
Ty Cobb (Majors record)	96



Wills scored the Dodgers' second and final run moments later on Lee Walls' pinch single.

Gilliam's bunt, with the count 1-and-0 and Wills needing only one chance to match Cobb's record, was criticized in several quarters.

One Dodger asked Gilliam: "How long have you been playing this game? Two days?" Another told Wills that Gilliam bunted a bad pitch. There were raised eyebrows even among the Cardinals. The consensus was that the bunt would have been a smart play had Gilliam taken only one more pitch.

Gilliam exploded when asked for comment by this reporter. "Look," he shouted in the clubhouse, "I don't want to hear any more of that ....."

Duke Snider, sitting across the aisle, replied bitterly, "he was trying to get a base hit to keep a rally going. That's all."

Manager Walter Alston refused to comment for the record. "Why don't you ask Gilliam what he thought?"

I did.

USC Defense Be-Devils Duke, 14-7

Valois Hurls 3 TD Passes in 20-7 Win

By AL LARSON

San Francisco State, with veteran quarterback Dick Valois pitching three touchdowns, kept its unbeaten hex over Long Beach State intact by knocking off the 49ers, 20-7, Saturday night in a nonconference battle at Veterans Stadium.

The strong-armed junior from Providence, R.I., who ranked 12th nationally in passing statistics last year, hurled two aerial bombs in the second period and one more in the third as the Golden Gators stormed past the 49ers for the sixth year in a row.

Punts	6-30.2	3-34.6

Attendance—3,831.

Outside of one giant 57-yard payoff strike 50 seconds into the final quarter and one mild threat in the first quarter the partisan crowd of 3,831 sat in silence as the 49ers suffered their second setback of the season.

* * * *

VALOIS' pin-point passing accounted for all 20 points as he connected with Benny Enea for TD pitches 5 and 10 yards, R. L. Hurd for 24 and Hurd again on a two-point conversion.

San Francisco's alert defense recovered four fumbles and swiped three passes to bottle the 49ers' attack from stem to stern.

Curt Bennett, who came on in relief of Rick Lussier in the second half to spark the 49ers' belated rally, outgained Valois in final passing statistics, but most of it came after the outcome was set-

PIGSKIN PRIED LOOSE FROM TROJAN, RECOVERED BY DUKE

Larry Sagouspe (center) of USC is pried loose from pigskin by Duke's Bobby Weidman (35) and Art Gregory (85) on last play of first half in Coliseum Saturday. Sagouspe had intercepted a pass. Duke recovered the fumble, lost it in a melee but was awarded the ball by ref's ruling.

Trojans Display Power Flashes Before 26,400

By JEROME HALL

USC unfurled a defense it wasn't supposed to have and beat a team it wasn't supposed to beat Saturday.

Underdogs by three points to a team rated one of the best in the country, the Trojans splattered the Duke Blue Devils' running game onto the green grass of the Coliseum and for the second year in a row showed a national television audience flashes of USC glories long passed in a 14-7 triumph.

Brief flashes, to be sure, for Troy fielded an immature, sophomore-filled lineup that made mistakes (the way sophs usually do).

But those sophomores leaped on the nationally heralded Blue Devil linemen and gave them a good bruising. Duke's running game was held to 55 yards. Duke made 183 yards in the air, but it was five interceptions that beat the devil out of the Devils.

USC doesn't have a defense? That's what the wise guys said. They couldn't have been wronger.

Troy Has Rose Bowl Fever

So now the boys along USC's fraternity row are jumping up and down in a Rose Bowl fever and wondering why they didn't join the Coliseum gathering of 26,400.

USC scored on a 52-yard, 12-play drive early in the second period and came back before the half with a 51-yard pass play from QB Bill Nelsen to end Hal Bedsole.

Duke's score came in the first period on a 60-yard march following a misplayed Trojan field goal attempt that lost 25 yards. The Duke scoring-drive yardage was all through the air. In fact, the ground statistics during the 60-yard advance showed a minus seven.

Troy's No. 1 quarterback, Pete Beathard, completed nine of 13 passes and three of the four misses were the receivers' fault.

The Trojans piled up 307 yards, 126 of them on the ground and it appeared they did it under wraps. Halfback Willie Brown, the team's best ground threat, was used hardly at all on offense, though he came through with a standout defensive performance.

Brown Scores Tying Touchdown

Willie carried only four times for 14 yards. He caught three passes for 30 yards. One of them was a behind-the-line reception that he carried four yards for the tying touchdown.

Fullback Ben Wilson, all-America candidate, carried only three times. He bulled twice in a row to the two for an all-important first down during the scoring drive and totaled eight yards for the day.

"Wilson isn't in good enough shape to play a lot," said coach John McKay. "His knee held up well and he'll play more in each game." Next game for USC is Saturday night at Dallas against SMU.

"Key to our success was the Gold team (the defensive specialists) and we'll definitely stick with the Unit System," said the Trojan coach. "I like it." In the Unit System, three different 11-man combinations played in each quarter and it kept everybody reasonably rested.

In the first half, the Duke running game was held to four yards (that's right, four yards.)

Trojans Hit by Bad Luck

The Trojans ran into some bad luck in the opening minutes or they might have taken control and run the Devils off the field in the first half.

The Trojan Red (2-way) unit, the actual first stringers, moved 59 yards on the first nine USC plays of offense. The drive got to the Duke nine, but there Beathard tried to run it over on rollouts. His first try (after Jones plunged for four yards) gained one yard. His second lost one so Troy was faced with a fourth down on the 14.

In came the field goal kicker, reserve QB Tom Lupo. But the snapback from center skittered along the ground past Lupo. He retreated and scooped it up. But he was

Dodgers Collar Cards, 4-1

By GEORGE LEDERER
I, P-T Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—A three-run homer by Tommy Davis made the race for most valuable player honors closer than the NL pennant fight Saturday night.

The Dodgers moved three games in front of the Giants as Tommy's 26th homer was the difference in a 4-1 victory over the Cardinals. The Dodgers' magic number is four, with seven games remaining.

The MVP contest also is filled with magic numerals and it may take a Houdini to pick a winner among Davis, Maury Wills and the incumbent Frank Robinson of the Reds. Each has impressive credentials.

Only one point separates Robinson (.342) and Davis (.341) in the NL batting derby. Tommy has driven in 146 runs, the most by a National Leaguer since Joe Medwick had 154 for the 1937 Cardinals.

Wills, though unable to gain in the stealness of Saturday night, has equalled Ty Cobb's record of 95 steals in 155 games and can tie or break the record 96 in this afternoon's series finale. He needs eight hits to reach 200 and six points to hit .300.

DODGER OF DAY
TOMMY DAVIS hit three-run homer and singled in 4-1 victory over Cardinals.

Wills had only one opportunity to steal Saturday and was kept close to the bag by losing pitcher Ray Washburn (11-9). Wills walked to start the Dodgers' fourth and only scoring inning. His one break for second was nullified when Jim Gilliam fouled off the pitcher.

Gilliam and Duke Snider subsequently singled, sending home Wills with run No. 1. Davis followed with his homer, deep into the left-center field bleachers.

Bobby Shantz, Don Ferrarese and Bob Duliba checked the Dodgers on one hit after Washburn yielded five.

Meanwhile, the Cardinals failed to cash in on a half-dozen chances against winner Johnny Podres (14-12) and reliever Larry Sherry. The Cards managed 12 hits, but stranded 14 runners and scored only on Dal Maxvill's triple in the fourth inning.

Sherry rescued Podres after Curt Flood and Stan Musial singled with one out in the sixth. Bill White's third hit brought Charlie James to the plate with the tying run in the ninth, but Friday's grand-slam hero

Wagner's Two Homers Clip Indians

By ROSS NEWHAN

Leon Wagner finally found the key to the handcuffs Saturday night and escaped his worst slump of the season by bombing two home runs which lifted the Angels to a 6-4 11-inning victory over the Cleveland Indians.

Wagner first found the key dangling from a Barry Latman fast ball in the sixth inning and grabbed it for good in the 11th when Latman again tried to jam "Danny Wags" with a "hummer."

Wagner lifted both pitches into the Cleveland bullpen where the Indians' relief corps is getting shell-shocked from Wagner attacks. His 36th and 37th home runs of the year also represented Wagner's sixth and seventh against the Tribe and the four RBI lifted his total against Cleveland to 16.

AWARD TO ANGEL

Ross Newhan will present the Independent, Press-Telegram "Angel of the Day" award before today's game with Cleveland to the Angel player who has been selected most times during the season.

Part Cherokee, Wagner is staging a one-man civil war against the Indians.

Wagner's wallops also lifted Angel hearts. They preserved the Cherubs' game and one-half advantage over fourth place Chicago and cut second place Minnesota's lead to two games.

Manager Bill Rigney just missed watching his club stage its 35th late-inning victory and 18th of the season in their final turn at bat. He was ejected for the sixth time this season when Albie Pearson attempted to stretch a double into a triple and was called out by Hank Soar to open the 11th.

Rigney protested vehemently, almost threw his cap into the stands and was promptly

Huskies Battle Purdue to 7-7 Standoff

Fumbles Hit 'Bowl Preview'

SEATTLE (UPI)—Washington and Purdue battled to a 7-7 tie before 55,800 football fans here Saturday in what had been billed as a possible preview of the 1963 Rose Bowl game.

The largest opening day football crowd in Washington's history watched the teams exchange touchdowns in the first half and then stymie each other the rest of the way.

STATISTICS

	Wash.	Purdue
First downs	19	9
Rushing yardage	234	109
Passing yardage	41	21
Passes	3-8	2-14
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	4-40.5	7-33
Fumbles lost	3	0
Yards penalized	107	20

Both teams had opportunities to win, but could not penetrate the other's defense when it counted.

* * * *

WASHINGTON lost a chance to go ahead just before the intermission, when Roy Norton's field goal attempt from the 20 was wide.

The Huskies moved into the lead when they drove 76 yards after the opening kickoff, with fullback Bob Monroe carrying the ball in from two yards out.

Monroe, Charlie Mitchell, Bill Siler and Jim Stiger cut through the Purdue defense like steak knives slicing tender beef, and it looked as if the Huskies were off to a flying start.

But then a bad case of butterfingers hit Washington. The Huskies fumbled four times in the first half and Purdue recovered three of them—all deep in Washington territory.

The Boilermakers could not take advantage of the first two times. But they capitalized on the third recovery when Tom Yakubowski crashed over from two yards out.

* * * *

EARLIER, Purdue recovered a Washington fumble on the 35, but three pass plays failed to click. Purdue threatened again early in the second period when Nat Jackson recovered Mitchell's bobble on the Husky 14. Washington stopped Purdue on the five.

Two plays later Martin Wyatt fumbled, and the Boilermakers recovered on Washington's four. Purdue's touchdown came after an off side penalty.

Washington 7 0 0 0—7
Purdue 0 7 0 0—7
Wash.—Monroe 2 run (Gordon kick).

Missouri Surge Overcomes Cal

BERKELEY (AP) — Missouri's swift sophomore halfback, Johnny Roland, scored three touchdowns in his varsity debut Saturday leading the Tigers to a 21-10 intersectional victory over California.

A crowd of 36,500 watched the elusive 192-pound back from Corpus Christi, Texas, dash 58 yards around his right end for the third period tally that finally gave the Tigers a lead over the upset-minded Bears in this 1962 football season opener.

Roland scored on a two-yard smash in the second quarter despite dropping the ball in the end zone, and he took a seven-yard pass from Vince Tobin in the final stanza for his third tally. Bill Tobin booted the conversions.

The three touchdown outburst matched the highest ever for a game by a Missouri player. In 20 carries Saturday, Roland gained 171 yards for an 8.5 average.

California left the field at halftime holding a 10-7 lead, but coach Dan Devine's Missourians, the Big Eight favorites and ranked 12th in the nation, dominated play in the final two quarters.

California drove 72 yards in 11 plays after taking the opening kickoff. Randy Gold's 13-yard pass to Ron Vaughn brought the touchdown. The end grabbed the throw at the four and turned into the end zone. Sophomore Tom Blanchfield converted.

THE BEARS missed a chance moments later after Jim Anderson recovered a fumble at the Missouri 39. California moved to the 26 where the Tigers held and Blanchfield missed a field goal try.

Blanchfield added three points to the California total with a 20-yard field goal with only 15 seconds left in the half. The Bears gained control at Missouri's four on a muffed punt and John Erby recovered for the Bears.

Roland's long dash in the third period came on the first play of the series. His final tally capped a 71-yard drive but took 15 plays, including key gains by junior fullback Paul Underhill.

Bill Wade No Ram-Lover

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . There's always fireworks when the Rams and Bears clash, but there may be more sky rockets and cherry bombs than usual today in the Coliseum. The reasons are as obvious as the deviltry in George Halas' mind: Billy Wade and Joe Marconi. Both ex-Rams harbor deep bitterness and resentment toward Elroy Hirsch's club . . . and the present Rams entertain no particular love for either Billy or Joe.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

. . . Wade triggered the hate campaign last weekend in San Francisco (and reiterated his feelings here in Long Beach) when he sounded off thusly: "I'm glad to be away from the Rams. How would it be if your boss called a press conference every time he wanted to criticize your work? That's the way it was with the Rams. It isn't wise to belittle your quarterback in public. Pretty soon the other players on your team get to believing what they hear. First thing you know, there's no discipline in the huddle. Then things really break down."

. . . Wade's feelings are shared by the Bears' hard-working publicist, Dan Desmond: "The Southern California press really worked over Billy when he was a Ram. Some writers were downright nasty about the way he ran around like a scalded dog, looking for a pass receiver. Now Halas has him in the cup, calm as can be, and we're making touchdowns. The Chicago press has welcomed Billy like a hero . . . and he has reacted to it."

. . . Have you ever noticed the special hate ex-Rams have for their former club? Wade, Marconi, Wilson, Van Brocklin, Gillman . . . to name a few. Maybe you can blame the feeling on the smog. Or does someone have a more personal suggestion?

SPEAKING OF GILLMAN, old Uncle Sid really stuck his foot through the plate glass window last week when he rapped San Diego citizens for not turning out in force for the Charger-Titan game. He suggested the franchise might be re-located if fans didn't respond 30,000 strong for the remaining Charger home contests.

. . . Which led one wag to comment: "Where's the jerk going to move next, La Paz?"

. . . Editorially, one writer claimed that Barron Hilton thinks Sid is a great coach, but sometimes comes up short in the area of public relations. "That man has the worst case of foot-in-mouth disease I ever saw," wrote a columnist. "He makes statements ridiculing San Diego and the story goes out all over the country. We got a black eye that is a doozy. Now I know why they say watch out for your enemies and beware of your friends."

. . . Uncle Sid hasn't changed, has he? But I think he's running out of cities.

IF ANY DOUBT EXISTED that baseball needs a new commissioner, it should have been dispelled a few days ago when Ford Frick made his ridiculous decision on Maury Wills' stolen base record. Instead of Maury owning an asterisk in the record books, Ty Cobb should be given the starlike sign. Maury already has busted Cobb's 154-game record by one stolen base, so if Fricksy wants to hold tight on his 154-game ruling, there's only one champion: Wills. (Frick's complete ineptness was demonstrated when he waited until the 154th contest to divulge his edict.)

. . . In spite of the feeble commissioner, Maury owns no worries. The nation's writers and fans unanimously recognize Roger Maris as the alltime homer champion (despite Frick). They will do the same for Wills.

. . . The Baltimore Colts' last-minute win over the Rams a week ago apparently made an impression on those people who tackle football cards and pro football wagers. A bad impression, that is. The Colts are now only four-point favorites today over the patch-work Vikings of Norm Van Brocklin. (And if the Colts aren't the best bet of the day, Texas has lost all its cows.)

LOOKS LIKE WE EVALUATED the Stanford Indians correctly after inspecting their football goods at Palo Alto last week. Their 6-3 skinner over Tulane Friday night backed up our summary that "the Indians aren't going to do much scoring this season, but neither will the other team." Credit Stanford's great defensive resurgence to the old Bruin and Ram center, Leon McLaughlin, who has been beating the bushes like a bug fancier.

. . . Sudden thought: After that blistering 48-0 win over Glendale, LBCC's Jim Stangeland better refrain from his two-week-long statement that "we've got lots of problems this season." George Halas and Bob Waterfield should have such problems!

. . . To all those boxing fans who have been awaiting eagerly this corner's prediction on the Patterson-Liston fight (so they can wager on the other guy), here it is: Liston by a KO within six rounds. Reason: If Sonny tags Floyd, the party's over. Now, go bet all your weekend football winnings on Patterson.

49ers Dealt 2nd Straight Loss

tled. Valois hit 8-of-17 for 76 yards, while Bennett clicked on 6-of-13 for 105.

Dee Andrews, who was shackled in his debut last week, managed to spring loose for 28 yards on six carries, while Bennett scampered for 26 on four tries.

How they scored:

* * * *

SAN FRANCISCO jumped ahead early in the second quarter when Valois capped a 33-yard drive with a five-yard TD pass to Enea. Bob Baird's PAT was wide with 12:12 left.

The Gators' march was set up when Gene Williams fumbled and Stan Crouch made the recovery.

After the 49ers had apparently checked the advance on their own 19, Valois clicked with Hurd on a key 11-yard gain for first and goal-to-go on the eight. After an incompletion and fullback Greg Baines cracked for three, the cool and deliberate Valois hit Enea over the middle.

* * * *

VALOIS held the right cards again as he whipped his charges 50 yards in 11 plays following a 49er punt. The payoff came when Enea pulled in a 10-yard pitch from Valois in the left flat 2:52 before intermission. The QB went for a two-point conversion but Don Montgomery broke up the pass.

Valois changed TD receivers in the third period when he combined with Hurd on a 24-yard strike with only 1:50 left. Hurd leaped high to pull in a Valois' two-point conversion pass to make it 20-0.

The night's biggest play came with the fourth quarter only 50 seconds old. Bennett combined with Lou Cadis on a sparkling 57-yard TD pass to put LBSC on the scoreboard for the first time this year.

San Francisco State 0 12 8 0—20

SF—Enea 5 pass from Valois (kick failed).
SF—Enea 10 pass from Valois (pass failed).

AIR FORCE STRUTS IN NEW STADIUM, 34-0

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP)—Air Force opened play in its sparkling new $3.5 million stadium Saturday with an appropriate 34-0 victory over punchless Colorado State University, losing its 17th straight game.

A capacity 41,380 fans jammed the glass-and-concrete showplace.

Except for Ken Cullars' 71-yard kickoff return in the second quarter to Air Force's 23, the CSU Rams never threatened. First string quarterback Terry Isaacson nailed Cullars from behind, just in time to prevent a score.

The Air Force, stalled early, scored once in the second quarter then added a pair of touchdowns in each of the final two periods.

314 YARDS FOR BAKER

Beavers Battle Back, Trip Iowa St., 39-35

PORTLAND (UPI) — Unbelievable Terry Baker brought Oregon State from the brink of defeat with a 43-yard scoring pass in the final 29 seconds to give the Beavers a wild 39-35 victory over Iowa State Saturday night.

Baker's pass to end Jerry Neil with 29 seconds left capped a tremendous performance which saw the senior southpaw quarterback score three times on runs and throw two other touchdown passes.

Oregon State trailed by margins of 21-7 and 28-13 before the Beavers went ahead 33-28 on a 10-yard pass from Baker to glue-fingered end Vern Burke in the fourth quarter.

But Iowa State, which got a great performance from halfback Dave Hoppmann, forged into the lead on a 59-yard pass from sophomore Larry Switzer to halfback Dick Limerick.

* * * *

BAKER racked up 312 yards passing and running, including a 43-yard touchdown scamper on which he broke Oregon State's all-time total offense mark.

UTAH BULLS TO 37-21 WIN OVER BUFFS

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah uncovered an eye-popping offense Saturday night and rolled to a 37-21 opening game victory over downtrodden Colorado University with junior quarterback Gary Hertzfeldt leading the way.

A record opening crowd of 25,878 saw Utah score its first victory over Colorado in Salt Lake City since 1948 and spoil Bud Davis' debut as new Buffalo head coach.

Hertzfeldt, the lanky signal caller with the penchant for the big play, passed for two quick touchdowns in the second quarter to pull the Utes out of danger after the pesky Buffs had taken a 13-9 lead.

Man to Ma'm

WYNN

BILLIE JEAN

By JERRY WYNN

From the side court at Houghton Park to the center court at Wimbledon has traveled Billie Jean, the tennis queen.

At 18, an attractive, vibrant young lady with a No. 3 ranking in the United States, Billie Jean Moffitt was Long Beach's No. 1 good-will ambassador last summer.

At Wimbledon, she startled the sports world with a first-round upset of top-seeded Margaret Smith of Australia, and, with Karen Susman, captured the doubles championship for the second consecutive year. She also competed on the victorious U.S. Wightman Cup team and finished her European sojourn with a mission to Moscow.

Now that you've traveled extensively, Billie Jean, how does Long Beach look to you?

"Very good. I'm glad to be home and back to a daily routine. And the weather here is the best anywhere."

Did you enjoy your trip to Russia?

"Very much in that we got to know how the people really live. In America, we hear mostly about their achievements in science. Being there, you can see how depressed the people are. Most of them are very poor, and dress very poorly. The average wage is 80 rubles a month. A ruble is worth $1.10 in our money."

Were the Russian people friendly?

"Yes, but there was a communications problem. During one match, I tried to protest a linesman's call, but I just didn't know how to express myself. All I could do was point and try to say "nyet, nyet." The other players on our U.S. team had encountered these problems before, but I was the baby of the team and it was new to me."

Did you enjoy being in the spotlight at Wimbledon?

"As far as tennis, yes; the other aspects, no. After beating Margaret, I was hounded by cameramen and reporters and had to go through a dozen interviews. I had an appointment for dinner at 10 o'clock, but they wouldn't let me go. Finally, I had to leave my hotel incognito. Then when I got back to the hotel, the reporters were still there. It is fun to look back on it, but it made me feel kind of punchy at the time."

Did you have an added incentive to beat Margaret Smith?

"Everyone has because she is considered the world's best, in fact the best to come along in 10 to 20 years. I had a feeling last year that I was going to draw Margaret in the first round, and told my family. I almost fainted when I heard the news. Before the match, Carole Caldwell told me to keep pressing on her forehand side because it has a tendency to become erratic. Then, Bob Kelleher, the captain of our Davis Cup team, stressed positive thinking to me. That's half the battle in sports and life."

Who would you rate as the top five women tennis players today?

"1. Margaret Smith; 2. Darlene Hard, she even has more ability than Margaret; 3. Maria Bueno; 4. Karen Susman; 5. Renee Schuurman."

Who do you consider the greatest of all time?

"Alice Marble, that's easy. She had the best all-around game."

Are you in favor of open tennis?

"No, the pros would win all the matches. Most of our amateurs are college boys, who can't concentrate on tennis alone. Open tennis might create better matches for the pros, but it would discourage young amateurs to be beaten early in a tournament."

What can Long Beach do to develop more outstanding young players?

"We need a public tennis center where all kids could come together to practice and play. San Diego has one. It would create more competition, and that is the most important thing for a young player."

Why did you choose to attend Los Angeles State College rather than Long Beach State?

"I wanted to be near the L.A. Tennis Club, and L.A. State took more interest in my education. Long Beach never contacted me. I am studying secondary education social studies, and L.A. State has an excellent program."

Now that you've escaped from the furor of Wimbledon, do you enjoy the attention given to a successful athlete?

"I guess it's only human nature to like attention, but I'd rather be treated normally just like anyone else. Too many times, it becomes a matter of—if you win, you're great, if you lose, you're no one. You can really find out who are your friends by losing a few matches."

Do you have one major goal in tennis?

"I'd like to win Wimbledon and our own National Singles. I would like to continue to play until I'm 25, but I don't want to play if I get married."

Once the cutest shortstop in the Long Beach little leagues, Little Miss Moffitt has come a long way.

16,000 Watch Wilson Whip Two Foes; Jordan Ties Poly

By DOUG IVES

No team has ever won three consecutive Moore League football titles, but the pesky Bruins of Wilson Saturday showed they mean business in cracking that jinx.

Before a jam-packed audience of 16,000 at Veterans Stadium, two-time defending champion Wilson easily posted identical 6-0 wins over Millikan and Lakewood to steal the spotlight in the 15th annual Milk Bowl Carnival.

Wilson, which has enjoyed only moderate success in recent Milk Bowl appearances, displayed more poise and better play execution than expected so early in the year and combined that with its usual crisp blocking and steller defense.

Poly also was unbeaten, but its record was marred by a 6-6 tie with Jordan. The standoff was somewhat of a surprise, but not totally unexpected from a much-improved Jordan team.

Millikan also was impressive. The Rams opened the show by blasting Jordan, 12-0, and then lost to Wilson. Millikan didn't get a chance to renew its offensive prowess against the Bruins, however, as it had the ball for only four plays.

Lakewood suffered two losses, but still the Lancers didn't look bad, at least on offense. They moved the ball well but lost both games on long runs. Defense is their big headache.

There was no contest for the top offensive performer, Poly's 160-pound fullback Cleve Harris winning that honor hands down. He scored both Rabbit TDs on nifty runs of 65 and 56 yards. He also made a conversion and totaled 127 yards on 5 carries.

Top defensive performers were Jordan tackle Mike Westpahl and Poly linebacker Wayne Davis. For overall play, Millikan QB Gary Christopherson was superb.

Longest run of the day was a 95-yard punt return by Wilson's Tom McCormick. It beat Lakewood.

HE DIDN'T GET TO CHURCH ON TIME

Millikan 12, Jordan 0

Christopherson's contributions to the Ram TDs were monumental. He completed two passes for 62 yards, recovered a fumble and intercepted a pass.

His fumble recovery came with 5 minutes to go on the Jordan 13 and two plays later halfback Steve Walden followed a wave of blockers around left end for a seven-yard TD.

Moments later, Christopherson intercepted a pass, fumbled when hit and teammate Dale Brown picked it off in mid-air. On the very next play, Christopherson hit Gary Lyon on a screen pass and the speedy back galloped 59 yards for the tally.

Christopherson had never played quarterback before Saturday. Moreover, he had only two days practice at that position.

Poly 7, Lakewood 0

On the second play from scrimmage, Harris took a pitchout, stumbled at the 38 and then bolted 65 yards to paydirt. Several boys had a shot at him but he outran them. Harris then converted on a plunge off tackle.

Lakewood bounced back, moving 27 yards to the Poly 42 but bogged down. Poly did nothing on two downs before Lancer Richard Espinoza intercepted a pass on the Poly 44.

Poly's Earle Church reversed matters moments later with an interception and the Rabbits lost a race with the clock and wound up on the Lakewood 18.

Wilson 6, Rams 0

The ball-controlling Bruins took the opening kickoff and methodically ground out 70 yards in 16 plays, using over eight of the 12 minutes in the process.

QB Craig Vestermark mixed his plays perfectly, alternating Gary Smith, Dennis Alford and Ron Rathburn in and around the Ram defense. He crossed Millikan up on the TD play, passing 13 yards to Jim Corbett in the right flank.

Millikan lost yardage in its series of downs and Wilson ran out the clock. Smith gained 34 yards and Alford 18 to pace the Bruin ground attack.

Jordan moved 29 yards with the opening kickoff, punted but kept control of the ball when Jack Hadaway pounced on the bobbled pigskin at the Hare 17.

After Jim Stratton got a key first down on the two, Trent Williams took a handoff from Jack Harnden and scooted in for the score. The conversion failed.

Two plays after the kickoff, Harris burst around left end, shook off three tacklers and sprinted 56 yards for the tying TD. Westphal led the Jordan charge which stopped the PAT try.

Poly had a chance to win when Davis pilfered a pass one minute later, but Westphal, Jim Akins and Rich Gallagher threw Poly backwards 21 yards in four plays.

Lakewood took the kickoff but couldn't get moving. Wilson's McCormick fielded the Lancer punt on his own five, cut left, then back up sidelines and rambled 95 yards for a score.

The Lancers started to move after that but were short-circuited by Corbett's interception. Bruin second-stringers then moved to the Lakewood six, highlighted by Stan Bauer's 28-yard run, but were turned away empty-handed.

Again the Lancers started upfield, but after picking up 20 yards, Pete Wishney of Wilson grabbed off another stray aerial and the Bruins ran out the clock.

Sooners Nod Syracuse

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) —Reserve fullback Joe Don Looney, inserted in the fourth quarter to give Oklahoma more running punch, twisted into the clear with 2:07 remaining, and sped 60 yards to give the Sooners a 7-3 opening — game victory over Syracuse Saturday.

Looney, son of former Texas Christian great Don Looney and star of the Junior Rose Bowl last season with Cameron College, did exactly what he was supposed to do. Once in the game he presented Oklahoma the running attack it had lacked most of the game.

His flashing runs featured an earlier drive which stalled because of a rash of penalties.

Then, with time running out, Oklahoma got the ball on its own 28 when Syracuse fullback James Nance failed to make a first down. Three plays later, Looney burst through the entire Syracuse team, jerked away from three tacklers and sped into the end zone. George Jarman converted.

Until Looney's heroic run, Syracuse looked to be the winner with Tom Mingo's 35-yard field goal which he booted with 49 seconds left in the first half.

Syracuse, with Nance and halfbacks Bill Schoonover and Augustine Giradi doing the damage, continued to hammer at the OU line. But three big chances were killed with three fumbles.

The Orangemen, who had not lost an opener since 1955, headed for what seemed like an insurance touchdown in the fourth quarter with a devastating ground attack. But quarterback Robert Lelli, attempting to pitch out, fumbled.

Penn State Awes Middies by Grinding Out 41-7 Triumph

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State's Nittany Lions, sparked by the spectacular running and defensive work of halfbacks Al Gursky and Junior Powell, trampled Navy 41-7 today in a battle between two of the East's top-ranked college football powers.

Both Gursky and Powell scored two touchdowns each and came up with stunning pass interceptions to break the Middies' backs.

Gursky electrified some 40,000 spectators in the second period by grabbing a Navy pass on his 23-yard line and racing 77 yards untouched for Penn State's third tally.

Powell did the same in the last period, intercepting a pass on his own 48 and scampering 52 yards to score.

Both also scored on pass plays from State quarterback Pete Liske, Gursky's covered five yards and Powell's nine.

Except for several moments in the second and third periods, it was Penn State all the way both on offense and defense in this opening game of the season for both teams.

Liske and reserve quarterback Ron Coates, getting excellent protection from Penn State's front line, teamed to complete 16 of 23 passes for 234 yards. Liske's aerials also played a key role in setting up State's second and fourth touchdowns.

Early TCU TD Aerial Thwarts Kansas, 6-3

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Big, talented Texas Christian made an early touchdown pass by Sonny Gibbs stand up for a 6-3 victory Saturday over a young Kansas club. The Jayhawkers disdained a tying field goal attempt and tried to win with a pass on the game's final play.

Gibbs, the 6-foot-7, 230-pound All-America candidate, directed a 10-play, 72-yard scoring drive which ended with his 12-yard scoring pass to end Tom Magoffin early in the second period.

But the rest of the game largely was a story of missed scoring chances by the Jayhawkers or hard-nosed defensive stands by the TCU Horned Frogs.

On the last play of the game, Kansas had the ball on the TCU 5 with three seconds left. They passed up a close-in shot at a tying field goal for a pass by quarterback Rodger McFarland, which misfired in the end zone.

A crowd of 35,000, a record for the 20-game TCU-Kansas series, watched in chilly weather under overcast skies.

Penalty Record, Win by Indiana

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Sophomore quarterback Tom Myers tied a 20-year-old Wildcat passing record set by Otto Graham Saturday, completing 20 of 24 passes as he pitched Northwestern to a 37-20 football victory over South Carolina.

Myers, an 18-year-old from Troy, Ohio, connected on 15 straight passes at one point during the game and completed two touchdown throws, one for 11 yards to Larry Benz and another to Paul Flatley for 40. He also threw twice for two-point conversions and scored a touchdown himself on a one-yard run.

Myers' 20 completions tied a Northwestern record set in 1942 by the great Graham against Michigan. His total yardage, 275, fell only 20 yards short of Graham's distance record set in the same game.

Until Myers opened up with his passing, the Wildcats' running game was stymied by the rough Gamecocks' defense.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana set a school record for penalties Saturday but the enthusiastic attack produced a 21-0 football victory over Kansas State.

The Hoosiers, upset by K-State in their 1961 opening game, sent three veteran backs across the Wildcat goal line and a good crop of sophomores contributed heavily.

Indiana's 16 penalties totaled 189 yards and cost them at least one touchdown. It was the most flag-waving ever against a Hoosier team.

Senior quarterback Woody Moore dived a foot for Indiana's first touchdown in the second quarter after a drive featuring a 45-yard punt return by junior Marvin Woodson and a 24-yard run by senior Nate Ramsey.

Senior Mike Lopa ran 6 yards for another touchdown in the same period in the climax of a 57-yard drive. Ramsey went 18 yards around end for the Hoosiers' final touchdown in the third quarter.

Tim Nowatzke kicked all three extra points.

Kansas State came closest to scoring in the last five seconds but time ran out with the ball on the Indiana 8.

Weatherly Near Victory

Gretel Rally Fails in 'Closest Finish'

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Defender Weatherly stood off a dramatic closing surge by Gretel and narrowly beat the gallant Australian challenger Saturday by 26 seconds—the closest America's Cup finish in history—for a 3-1 lead in the series.

President Kennedy and a floating gallery of about 800 craft saw Weatherly's canny skipper, Emil (Bus) Mosbacher Jr., send his blue-hulled queen of sea racers into a 340-yard lead on the opening eight-mile beat into the wind, then call on all his sailing wizardry to withstand a strong Gretel challenge on the final two legs of the 24-mile triangle.

* * * *

GRETEL, handled masterfully by 46-year-old Jock Sturrock, chopped Weatherly's commanding lead in half on the second eight-mile lap—a beam reach across the southerly wind under spinnaker headsails—and almost caught the American sloop on the final leg.

The U.S. sloop turned the frist weather mark with a lead of 1 minute, 26 seconds.

Now Weatherly needs only to capture the fifth race Tuesday to insure continued possession of the bottomless old pitcher, symbol of world yacht racing supremacy.

Incredible Win for Harris

Australia's Rod Laver and Roy Emerson beat down two of America's finest tennis players Saturday in the semifinals of men's single at the Pacific Southwest tournament.

HARD

The United States' only prestige was in women's play as Darlene Hard and Carole Caldwell, both Californians surged into the finals.

Emerson defeated Chuck McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., 8-6, 6-3. Laver downed defending tourney champion Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, 6-4, 6-3.

Then the Australians did the same thing to Sweden Davis Cuppers Ulf Schmidt and Jan Erik Lundqvist in semi-final doubles, 6-0, 6-0.

McKinley paried with Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield to defeat Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico 6-1, 6-4 in doubles semifinals.

MISS CALDWELL of Santa Monica, an upset winner over Wimbledon queen Karen Susman earlier this week, defeated Judy Tegart of Australia, 6-4, 0-6, 6-1.

And defending champion Hard, of Long Beach, defeated Renee Schuurman of South Africa, 7-5, 6-1, in the other women's semifinal.

Maria Bueno of Brazil and Miss Hard downed Miss Schuurman and Susan Behlmar of New York 6-0, 6-2 in women's doubles semis.

Miss Tegart and Miss Caldwell defeated Mrs. Susman of Chula Vista and Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach 4-6, 7-5, 6-4, in the other doubles match.

Miss Hard plays Miss Caldwell at 12:30 today, followed by Laver and Emerson at 1:30 at the L.A. Tennis Club.

In junior play Saturday, Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach downed Reed Witt, 6-1, 6-4, to reach the finals against John Tidball at 11 a.m. today.

In girls 16, Kathy Harxer of Seal Beach whipped Bonnie Ellis of Fullerton, 6-4, 8-6, and will face Kathy Blake of LaJolla for the title today.

PINEHURST, N. C. (AP) — Labron Harris Jr., 20-year-old son of an Oklahoma professional, stormed from behind an almost hopeless deficit with a string of pars and birdies Saturday and won the 62nd U.S. Amateur golf championship with an incredible 1 up victory over insurance man Downing Gray of Pensacola, Fla.

HARRIS

Five down and all but counted out after the morning round on the 7,150-yard, par 36-36—72 No. 2 Pinehurst course and still five down with 15 to go, the scholarly-looking Harris won five successive holes to square the match. He went two up with a par at the 28th and a clutch birdie ate the 34th and closed out the match on the 36th.

His lead down to one after he hit into a bunker at the 35th, Harris needed to two-putt from 75-yeet away on the last hole. He hit his first putt to within 3½ feet of the cup, watched while Gray missed a desperate 26-footer for the birdie that would have sent the match into overtime, then stepped up and rolled in his short putt for the victory.

When the putt dropped into the cup the 6-3, 185-pound mathematics wizard from Stillwater let his putter fall to the green, took one step and held his hands high in a "thank you" to the heavens.

The 24-year-old Gray, a 1961 graduate of Florida State University and only a weekend golfer now, trudged over and shook Harris' hand. Then he slowly walked away — still unable to believe that he had lost.

Alabama Romps on, 35-0; Engineers Wallop Clemson

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Sophomore quarterback Joe Namath put on a dazzling display of passing and ball handling Saturday night and sent the Alabama Crimson Tide roaring to a 35-0 victory over Georgia in a Southeastern Conference football game.

Namath, who 'Bama coach Paul Bryant calls the best player he has ever seen, passed for three touchdowns and displayed the aplomb of a senior in handling the defending national champions.

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech stormed from behind Saturday and routed Clemson, 26-9, on the brilliant passing and superb direction of quarterback Billy Lothridge before a crowd of 51,140 at Tech's enlarged football stadium.

Tech started the season sluggishly and spotted the Atlantic Coast Conference invaders a three-point lead on a 44-yard field goal by Rodney Rogers. Then Lothridge, a lanky, 184-pound junior, took charge of Tech's sputtering attack, hurled three touchdown passes and shattered Clemson's defense beyond repair.

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Halfback Jerry Stovall scored one touchdown, set up another with an intercepted pass, and sped 68 yards with a kickoff return Saturday night to pace the Louisiana State Tigers to a 21-0 victory over Texas A&M.

Stovall, a 195-pound senior, scored LSU's second touchdown on a two-yard run in the third quarter. He set up their third touchdown with a pass interception at the Texas A&M 46, and the Tigers scored 14 plays later with fullback Steve Ward socking over from the one.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (UPI) — Little quarterback Jim Rossi almost made North Carolina State fans forget the great Roman Gabriel Saturday as he passed and ran the Wolfpack to a 7-6 upset over backdoor rival North Carolina.

Carolina's Junior Edge passed for his team's TD in the final quarter but his PAT attempt was off.

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Pistol Pete Pedro, a flashing junior halfback who led major college scorers last season, ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday night to pace underdog West Texas State College to a 30-27 football victory over Texas Tech.

The Lynn, Mass., scatback electrified a record crowd of 40,000 in Jones Stadium with his running and the first pass of his career.

KENTUCKY HELD TO TIE

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Florida State moved the ball almost at will Saturday night against the University of Kentucky but had to settle for a scoreless tie in an intersectional football game before 30,000.

Spurred by speedy senior quarterback Eddie Feely, halfback Keith Kinderman and fullback Marion Roberts, the Seminoles mustered numerous offensive threats, moving the ball deep into Wildcat territory, but could not score.

Yanks Fall, So Do Twins

Compiled From Wire Services

The New York Yankees continued to back toward the American League pennant clinching Saturday when they lost to Chicago, 6-2, but saw their magic number reduced to two when Minnesota was beaten by Baltimore, 5-3.

The combination of events left the Yanks with a chance to sew up a World Series berth today if they can beat the White Sox in their single game and Baltimore takes another fall out of the Twins.

The White Sox knocked ace Ralph Terry out of the box in the eighth after Elston Howard's homer gave the Yanks their only two runs in the second.

Harmon Killebrew hit his 44th homer for Minnesota but Jackie Brandt, Jim Gentile and Dave Nicholson also homered for the Orioles.

AGGIES BEATEN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Little Billy Moore, a 176-pound quarterback, ran for one touchdown and passed for another to start Arkansas on a 34-7 rout of Oklahoma State in the opening football for both teams Saturday night.

Sophomore Billy Gray, even smaller than Moore, came on when Moore had the wind knocked out of him and passed for three touchdowns.

BILLY MORAN then singled and on the first pitch after Lee Thomas flied to center, Wagner crashed his second homer into the bullpen.

The blow was the 16th hit off Latman (8-13), who'll be ready for a big dose of pills from his father-in-law, drugstore magnate Leon Schwab.

ANGEL OF DAY

LEON WAGNER hit two home runs, the second in the 11th inning as Angels defeated Cleveland Indians, 6-4.

The victory went to Tom Morgan (5-2) who toiled the final three innings. The Plowboy's ninth inning mental error had almost given Cleveland the victory.

After Jerry Kindall and Latman singled to open the ninth, Ty Cline bounced back to Morgan. Tom went for the double play instead of forcing Kindall at third and got only one. Thus, when Tito Francona bounced to Moran, Kindall came home to put Cleveland ahead, 4-3.

* * * *

AS USUAL, however, the Angels had something left for the ninth. Jim Fregosi led off with a single and two outs later, L. Thomas doubled to right, his fourth hit of the game, to score the young shortstop with the tying run.

The Cherubs, 40-40 at home, wind up their Chavez Ravine occupancy for the season this afternoon with Dean Chance (13-9) dueling Jim Perry (11-12).

ANGEL ANGLES: Billy Moran received the first "Angel owners" trophy in pregame ceremonies. . . . Owners Bob Reynolds, Leonard Firestone and Paul A. O'Brien made the presentation. . . . The award was based on inspiration, leadership, sportsmanship and performance, and Moran was chosen in a secret ballot by his teammates.

Also in a pre-game ceremony, Albie Pearson was honored by the city of Riverside.

Chance and Bob Rodgers have been named to Topp's chewing gum's all-rookie team . . . the team will be feted at New York's Waldorf-Astoria on Oct. 25.

The Angels are off Monday, leaving International Airport at 3 p.m. for Detroit and a two-game series Tuesday and Wednesday. . . . They are off again Thursday, play a twi-night doubleheader Friday at Cleveland and single games in the teepee Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

With a first-inning single, Jim Fregosi lifted a modest hitting streak to eight games. . . . The 20-year-old shortstop may be in the leadoff spot for good.

Hatcher Breaks Records on Run

Chuck Hatcher of North Hollywood broke all existing records in his jet-powered dragster with a tremendous run of 209.30 mph in 7.33 seconds before a crowd of 7,793 Saturday night at Lions Drag Strip in Long Beach.

Hatcher's feat broke Art Arfons' old mark of 102 mph set at the Long Beach strip earlier this year.

Fuel eliminator was won by Bob DuBarr of Long Beach, while 1962 national champion Jack Chrisman also of Long Beach, came back just one week after a very serious pileup to win the gas eliminator and set a world record of 182.18 mph.

Art Chrisman of Compton had top speed of the evening at 183.28 mph with Jeep Hampshire of San Fernando turning in the fastest time of 8.47 seconds.

Hank Aaron's two-run homer in the eighth inning broke up a tight pitching duel between rookies Tom Sisk of Pittsburgh Pirates and Jim Constable to give the Milwaukee Braves a 2-0 victory Saturday.

It was the first major league start for Sisk, former Long Beach Poly High star, and the victory was the first for Constable who gave up only five hits, one of them to Bob Bailey, former high school teammate of Sisk.

Sisk gave up eight hits, three of them to Aaron, walked three and struck out five in going the route.

THE NEW York Mets, in losing their 116th game, 9-2, to the Cubs, set a modern National League loss record.

The San Francisco Giants fell four games off the pace when Roman Mejias' bases-loaded single in the ninth inning gave the Houston Colts a 6-5 victory. Willie Mays had hit his 46th homer in the eighth to put the Giants ahead.

Favor Bears by 3 Over Rams

By JERRY WYNN

BEARS
Chicago

Billy (The All-America Boy) Wade and Zeke (The Brat) Bratkowski fire slingshots at their old teammates today when the Rams and Chicago Bears tangle at the Coliseum in the National Football League home opener for the Rams.

Kickoff is 1:35 p. m. and 45,000 fans are expected to view the annual invasion of Papa Bear George Halas and his "Monsters of the Midway."

Chicago is rated a three-point favorite, surprisingly slim odds when you consider that the Bears jolted San Francisco, 30-14, last Sunday just one week after the 49ers dumped the Rams, 19-3. The Rams fell to the Colts, 30-27, in their debut, and finished pre-season play with three successive setbacks.

The Wade-Bratkowski rivalry, which began last season when the pair swapped uniforms — Wade after seven years with the Rams, Bratkowski after five years with the Bears—takes on added impetus this season because for the first time, both quarterbacks find themselves firmly entrenched in a starting position.

Wade paced the Bears to 28-24 and 24-21 squeakers over the Rams last year, but Bratkowski had his finest day in the game at Chicago. Last week, Bill threw only 13 times for 13 yards while Zeke gained 261 yards on 31 passes.

WYNN'S WINNER
Rams 24, Bears 21

Both have excellent receivers—Mike Ditka, Johnny Morris and John Farrington for the Bears; Red Phillips, Carroll Dale and Ollie Matson for the Rams.

The Ram ground game will miss Jon Arnett, but Dick Bass and Art Perkins should be able to carry the load. Bear fullback Rick Casares has a bad knee and probably will give way to former Ram Joe Marconi in the starting backfield. Chicago's comet is Willie Galimore, who gained 177 yards against the 49ers.

It appears that the key to success for both clubs lies in their offensive lines.

The Rams know Wade is susceptible to a firm pass rush, and will have John LoVetere, Merlin Olsen and Co. barrelling in at him. Likewise, the Bears are sure to keep the pressure on Bratkowski with their red-dogging and stunting line-backing crew of Bill George, Joe Fortunato and Larry Morris.

The Rams have not beaten the Bears since 1959, and will need all their ammunition to win this one. After last week's tough loss at Baltimore, their ability to bounce back today should be a test of true merit.

LITTLEST MONSTER

Johnny Morris, Long Beach's gift to the Chicago Bears, will start at flanker back against the Rams today. At 5-10, 180, the former Poly High Bee player is the smallest of the "Monsters of the Midway."

LISTON 7-5 TO WIN TITLE

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Patterson Tabbed to Whip Liston

Sonny Liston has been described by his newest manager as being "68 per cent mineral and 32 per cent animal." And that's what may win the heavyweight championship of the world Tuesday night.

Liston has been quoted as the favorite to beat champion Floyd Patterson since the very day the fight was made. On paper, Sonny appears to have everything going in his favor.

But on Tuesday night I'll be in the champ's "corner." I'm picking Floyd to whip Liston.

DAVE LEWIS

In the end, this pick may be just "wishful thinking" in the hope that a man with Sonny's background will not stand as the champion.

But there are much more solid reasons than that to believe Floyd can triumph in the greatest test of his career to date.

For one thing, is Sonny Liston really "true?" There is nothing in his record to indicate that he's anything more than a real tough guy, but only a mediocre fighter whose career has been guided by mobsters who, as we pointed out the other day, reportedly have "fixed" several of his bouts.

The only thing he has going for him that can't be questioned—and that's why the odds favor him—is his punching power. And the whole world knows by now that Patterson's chin is quite vulnerable.

LISTON HAS WHAT IS KNOWN in the trade as "heavy hands." He hurts you even if he hits you on the arm or shoulder. Joe Louis was a classic example of this and Rocky Marciano, too, to some extent.

Sonny also probably has the most powerful jab since Louis. He can also take a man out with his left hook, but it's his right hand which is his most feared weapon. Incidentally, the right with which he wiped out the German, Albert Westpal, a few months ago on the TV program which also featured Patterson vs. Tom McNeeley, admittedly was the hardest he has ever thrown.

Many boxing men, however, feel that Ingemar Johansson's right is much sharper than Liston's . . . and although Ingo had Floyd on the deck nine times in their three fights, he never kept him there for the full count of 10.

Another thing that Liston presumably has going for him is his durability. He has never been knocked down and, except for a freak accident, he has been shaken up real good by only one fighter—Cleveland Williams, who staggered him in the first round before being knocked out.

Sonny, though, did suffer a broken jaw in his only loss in 32 bouts back in 1954 when he was fighting Marty Marshall, a clowning, eccentric fighter.

AS SONNY DESCRIBES IT: "I'm standing there wondering what that nut was going to do next in the third round. All of a sudden he jumps up and down, lets out a whoop like a wild man and I get to laughing at him. I had my mouth wide open laughing when he hit me on the jaw. It didn't hurt much, but I couldn't close my mouth and they finally stopped it in the eighth." Liston beat Marshall in two return bouts.

Everyone knows Patterson's weaknesses. His chin is not too rugged; he is often off-balance; makes mistakes that would embarrass a good amateur, and is careless. And it is the feeling in many quarters that because of his short-comings, Liston will tag him somewhere along the way.

But, unless he is taken out very quickly, Patterson will do things to Liston that nobody else has done up to this time. No fighter has ever come to Liston. Nobody has ever dealt him any body punishment, something Floyd hopes to do in order to tire him. And nobody has ever hit Sonny too often on the chin.

IN FACT, VETERAN FIGHT MANAGER Jack Kearns is one who thinks Sonny's chin may not be made of granite. "Liston doesn't take a punch as good as a lot of people may think," Jack says. "I've only seen him twice, but I don't like him when he gets hit. Frankly, I think he's a bum!"

Liston has never fought anyone who would hit him like Patterson could on one of his rare good nights. Patterson is no powder-puff puncher.

Meanwhile, Floyd's biggest asset, of course, is his speed . . . both afoot and in his hands. He has the fastest hands since Louis.

Rapid movements of an opponent has always confused Liston. The speed boys have made him look clumsy. In 20 rounds, he didn't even shake up Bert Whitehurst, an old trial horse, because the latter didn't stand still. And just before Bert met Liston in their two bouts, he was flattened by Archie Moore.

Thus, Patterson looks like a winner to us . . . IF he uses his great speed with wise and sustained caution as he did in his second fight with Johansson!

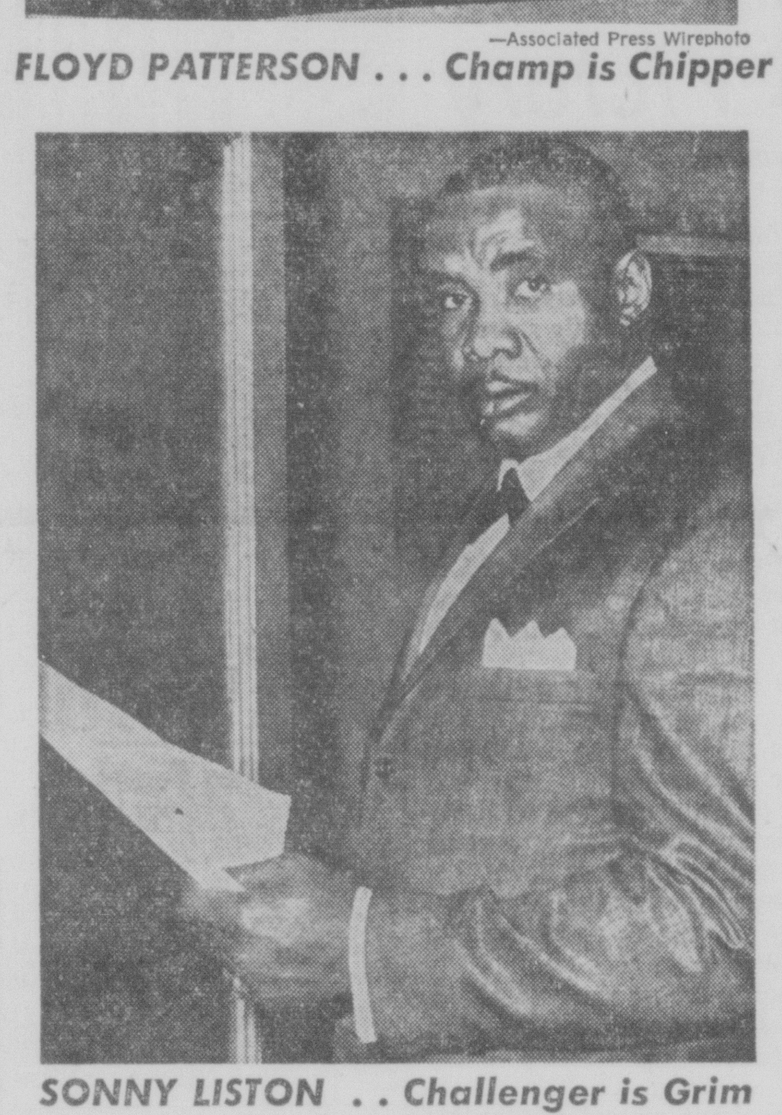
FLOYD PATTERSON . . . Champ is Chipper



SONNY LISTON . . Challenger is Grim

Chicago Bout Site Tuesday

CHICAGO (AP) — The world heavyweight title match into which defending champion Floyd Patterson was goaded by ominous challenger Charles (Sonny) Liston flares into a $5 million production in Comiskey Park Tuesday night.

The White Sox ball yard—scene of two previous heavyweight title bouts—this time is more a studio setting for a $4 million closed circuit TV display of underdog Patterson's 15-round defense against once-defeated and 23-pound heavier Liston.

The intriguing boxer vs. slugger bout is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., PDT, with a "live" park audience of perhaps 30,000 to 35,000.

For those around the continent not shelling out between $4 and $10 per seat at upwards of 270 closed circuit TV outlets, the fight will be broadcast nationally via ABC and also aired directly to at least eight foreign countries.

NEWHAN AT BOUT

Staff writer Ross Newhan will be in Chicago Tuesday to cover the Floyd Patterson - Sonny Liston heavyweight championship fight.

* * * *

LURED BY the "good guy (Patterson) vs. bad guy (Liston)" aspects of a title showdown to which a baited Patterson finally agreed, a record number of 620 working press men claimed seats from the sponsoring Championship Sports, Inc.

Liston, expected to weigh around 212, rated an early 7-5 favorite over the 189-pound Patterson. The odds may slim down by Tuesday's official noon weighin time, but the feeling generally is that Patterson, decked by far less potent punchers than Liston, will have to unleash the fight of his life to conquer the brutish challenger.

Embittered by many frowns against his prison past, not to mention what he claims is a beggar's 12½ share of rich receipts, Liston in his sullen way will be as dedicated a fighter as Patterson Tuesday night.

TICKETS AVAILABLE

More than 1,000 tickets, specially priced at $5.50 are available for the closed-circuit television showing of the title fight at the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium Tuesday night.

* * * *

PATTERSON, 27, like Liston, 28, was spawned in poverty, but the champion was only scratched and the challenger severely scarred in surviving the anti-social pressures of the slums.

Whether the sudden realization, when Liston enters the spotlighted ring in the Comiskey Park infield, that he is fighting for the world title will shake his imperturable confidence remains to be seen.

Lopsided Viking Win Shocker to Coaches

By KEN PIVERNETZ

It was hard to tell who was more surprised Saturday, the Long Beach City College coaching staff or victimized Glendale College, after the Vikings had won a stunning 48-0 opener Friday night.

Line coach Rollie Eilerts summed it up in a nutshell, saying, "We didn't expect anything so ferocious so early.

"Maybe Glendale was overrated, but we never gave them a chance to get started."

The truth is, the Vikes have at least a dozen good linemen. To say one outshined the other would be impossible.

* * * *

BENEFITING most of all were quarterbacks Ron Richardson, Jim Dunn and Gary West. They moved the ball with equal smoothness and received all the time in the world to throw.

Richardson, who never had blocking like this at Jordan, was especially impressive in the first half.

Stangeland called it his best opening win in the six years he has been at LBCC.

And while it's still a long time until the season ends in November, there were 20 Junior Rose Bowl selection committee members on hand. If they weren't impressed, then no one ever will be.

Titans Connect, 17-6, Against Inept Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—The stubborn New York Titans made the most of an inept Buffalo offense and handed the Bills their third straight home defeat, 17-6, in a sluggish American Football League game Saturday night before 24,024.

Bill Schockley's 35-yard field goal at 4:08 of the third period provided the only points of the second half as the Bills failed to muster a scoring drive in the final 30 minutes for the second consecutive week.

Quarterback Lee Grosscup, the former New York Giant, and halfback Dick Christy, along with an alert New York defensive secondary, paced the Titans to their second AFL victory in three starts. It was Buffalo's 18th loss in 23 home games over a three-year span.

Dietzel Bow Success as Army Romps

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP) — Army walloped Wake Forest 40-14 Saturday as Paul Dietzel made his debut as the new Cadet football coach in a glittering display of showmanship.

Using the three-unit system he made famous at Louisiana State—calling the platoons the Regulars, the Go team, and the Chinese bandits — Dietzel masterminded a continuous flow of players and the usually sedate Cadet corps joined in by donning red hats every time the bandits took the field.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

A Month of Uncertainty

September is the month of radical changes at the fishing landings. First, there's the hectic rush of the Labor Day crowds. It's the last holiday of the summer and everybody is out to squeeze the last possible fish into a sack.

Then comes the letdown. Sometimes you can hear a pin drop. The skippers and the operators try to keep smiling, but the effort is forced. The weather changes, the water gets roily and the fish play hide and seek.

Just now you can sack a limit of bonito in minutes if you play 'em hard and fast. It's easy to get kelp bass. Barracuda are around and, if you are on a lucky boat, you'll get some of those. Perhaps a yellowtail or a bluefin tuna!

But not albacore! They are far out and even if they come within striking distance of the fishing fleet, the water beyond Catalina Island has been terribly rough the last three or four days—so much so that some boats out of San Diego had to be rescued.

If you want good ocean fishing, stick to the boats that fish Catalina Island and the offshore banks. You'll have to settle for fish less game than the longfins.

THE NATIONAL AUDUBON SOCIETY wants all duck hunting prohibited this year. NAS president Carl W. Bucheister says the reason is that so many years of drought have so reduced the ducks and geese that a hunting season may seriously deplete the breeding stock.

For a look at the other side of the picture, let's listen to Angus Gavin, Ducks Unlimited general manager for Canada.

Gavin says that the waterfowl hatch is late, but production is good, although the fall flights southward will not compare with those of the middle fifties.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service already has set its seasons. Perhaps its officials listened a bit to the NAS because eastern and midwestern flyway limits were reduced, along with the seasons.

Our own Pacific Flyway got just about the same treatment as it did last year and there is reason to believe that the flights along this flyway may even be better than in previous years because of more watering places en route from Canada to Mexico.

It appears to this writer that the NAS steps out of bounds on some occasions. The Audubon supporters are wonderful people but far too many of them lean toward the principles of the United Humane Front, which would ban all shooting.

JOHN GARTNER, editor of Western Outdoors Magazine and a former football coach here and also formerly supervisor of publications at Long Beach City College—is there anything that Big John hasn't done?—has a new book on the market.

The title is "All About Pickup Coaches and Campers," and it is published by Trail-R-Club of America (P.O. Box 1376, Beverly Hills).

This makes the eighth book for Gartner, who previously has written three volumes about trailers, how to build them and what to do with them. This new volume, however, marks his first venture into the field of campers and four-wheeled self-contained coaches.

Big John and I flew together on a trip to Georgia two weeks ago and I had a chance to examine very closely his descriptions of the various types of such vehicles. And, believe me, there are dozens. Also, there are pitfalls for the uninitiated and if you are a neophyte in the camper ambition, you should read John's book.

John has field-tested many vehicles and he has found "bugs" in the shiniest of cars, trailers and campers. If you have one in mind, take a look at what John has to say about all of such vehicles.

THERE ARE FIVE WEEKS LEFT for trout fishing in the Sierra Nevada and all other Central and Northern California areas. Down south we fish the year around, but with a reduced limit.

Fall is starting to show in the Sierra Nevada and moderately warm days and nippy nights are the general rule of thumb for weather. There's always a chance of a snowstorm this month but, generally speaking, it's a great time to try for trout.

Fresh-water fishing in the south is at a low ebb, with little activity in the lakes, less on the streams that are still running.

Legg Lake, in the Whittier Narrows Dam Recreation Area, went on its winter schedule this week and now is open only on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

The state continues to stock the lake with catchable-size rainbow and the limit is five fish. Any person 16 or older, hwoever, must use artificial lures. Those younger can use worms and other baits.

We have said this before; now we say it again: Let the kids fish in Legg Lake; let the grownups watch!

The north section of the lake is good mostly for planted trout. The south section is stocked with large-mouth bass, catfish, crappie and bluegill.

Beathard, Bedsole Pace USC Victory

running the wrong direction when he got it and two linemen were bearing down on him. Lupo just keep retreating and finally was dropped down on the Duke 40.

It was a mistake that not only cost the Trojans points, but set up Duke's first TD. The Devils scored in six plays. The payoff was a pitch from Gil Garner to Jay Wilkinson for 25 yards. Wilkinson caught it on the five, spun away from two defenders and went in alone. The score came against the Gold unit, the defensive specialists.

Down 7-0, USC Takes Control

So after 8½ minutes, USC was 7 down instead of 7 up and the rooting section wasn't exactly bubbling over.

But after that, Troy took control. And everybody's bubbling now.

The Trojans opened the second quarter with their 5-yard drive. The scoring play, a swing pass to Brown that covered four yards, was the first time Willie had touched the ball, except for a pass catch that was nullified by penalty. Key play on the march was a fourth-and-three at the Duke 19. Beathard squirmed around on a keeper play and picked up five for the first down.

Wilson, on his first carries of the season, picked up four and three yards through the middle to set up the short-yardage swing pass to Brown.

Troy's big break came shortly before the half ended. Walt Rappold's long pass was intercepted by Beathard on the 24 and he returned it down the sideline to the USC 44.

On first down Brown made five around end on his first time carrying the ball. On second down Nelsen rolled out to his left and passed to Hal Bedsole who caught the beautifully paceld throw on the five and waltzed over. Bedsole made it look easy as he left the defender, Mark Leggett, behind.

But let's reserve judgement on the '62 Trojans for awhile. It may be that Duke was way overrated. It didn't look like a world-beater.

Joan Crawford's Daughter on Stage Where Mom Began

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Christina Crawford, 23, was at work on Sound Stage 11 at MGM Studios.

A veteran crewman approached her:

"Do you know that more that 30 years ago I watched another young lady become a star overnight on this very same sound stage?"

That long-ago Cinderella was Joan Crawford, mother of Christina, and the picture was "Our Dancing Daughters."

* * * *

"I LOOKED up at the rafters," says Christina, "I was thrilled and then it dawned on me—this was my first trip to MGM — unless mother wheeled me here as a baby."

Christina is a hard-working actress who admits — like Gary Crosby—that it is very difficult at times to be the child—even adopted—of a living legend.

"I want to make it on my own. I have suported myself since I was 19. I seldom see my mother but that doesn't mean I don't love her or respect her. I do tremendously," says Christina.

* * * *

THERE HAVE been reports that Joan and the eldest of her four adopted children have been feuding for years.

Not so, says Christina.

"We have had crises as all daughters do with their mothers but mine have been complicated because I have decided to make it in my mother's own profession.

"That's complicated our relationship but there is no feud. I have great love and admiration for my mother, both as a mother and as a great talent.

"I hope I achieve even a fraction of what she has in this business."

'Critic's Choice' Has Playhouse Moments

According to "Critic's Choice," the Ira Levin comedy which opened at the Community Playhouse this weekend, a play reviewer should have a collection of clever remarks stored away for future use on slips of paper, favorable ones in a white box, unfavorable ones in a black box. Then when he sees a play he need only apply appropriate preconceived witticisms and his job is done.

That wouldn't work for the local production, which turns out to be both black and white, sometimes a checkerboard, sometimes just a neutral gray. It has its moments, but it also has its doldrums.

The critic's choice is this: shall he, a prominent but somewhat pig-headed first-string reviewer on a New York paper, cover his wife's first play, which he knows from reading it, is very bad? He says he will because he doesn't want to lose his self-respect, then he says he won't because he doesn't want to lose his wife, and finally he does anyway and manages to salvage both self-respect and wife despite a cutting published comment on the play. What else?

* * * *

THE SITUATION obviously has potential for comedy, and the play in addition to its basic comic situation has a number of very funny lines, but somehow the Community players have not got the most out of it. The show demands a certain amount of tension and vitality on the one hand, and a quick-step pace on the other. It gets too little of either to keep it continuously interesting.

Don Kroll plays the critic. While he says all the right things and makes all the right gestures, he lacks the spark that makes the difference between art and artifice. He is never really convicing. Nila Williams as the playwright-wife has some of the same trouble, compounded by the fact that Levin has betrayed her by fashioning an impossible part.

* * * *

AMONG THE lesser players two do accomplish the magic of creating real people. Young Steve Dohnert as the son of the playwright is both charming and credible. Katherine Offill as the mother-in-law brings assurance and a magnificent deftness of touch to every scene she graces.

William Clements plays the director, Norma Aagard the first wife and Ann Cypher the maid. Larry Johns directed the show and built the set, which features a very striking window-view of the New York skyline.

"Critic's Choice" will continue on weekends through October. — Robert C. Wylder

LOVE SCENE with William Holden and Lilli Palmer in the Perlberg-Seaton Production, "The Counterfeit Traitor." Holden says he dislikes movie love scenes.

AMOUR IN MOVIES

Love Makes the Reels Go Around

By WILLIAM HOLDEN
Written for United Press International

If love doesn't necessarily make "the world go 'round," it has certainly kept the reels spinning in projection machines.

And yet, to me the love scene is the most difficult feature of an actor's profession, the one real embarrassment, the chief invasion of privacy.

In some 50 pictures I've played my share of them with some of the most beguiling partners in the business, but I hope it will be taken as no reflection against these ladies that I'd rather be anywhere else than in their arms.

* * * *

MOST OF THE scenes I pay on the screen are a combination of emotion and technique. That is, I react to the situation as I normally would, but, of course, tailoring my actions and words to the technical requirements of a performance.

It's a little more complicated than that, but that's the general idea. However, in a love scene, I'm all technique, as an actor, not as a lover. I play them strictly by the book.

Aside from the fact that there are upwards of 50 members of the crew looking on, there is also the little matter of turning up 18 times life size on the world's movie screens. This is too much. It's too personal.

* * * *

I SUPPOSE to be an actor in the first place, one has to be a bit of an exhibitionist. But there's something in me that is revolted by a love scene, at least when it packs any voltage.

Happily, I've been spared a certain amount of blushes because I'm invariably cast as an American, and American men are not great lovers in the world's theatrical tradition.

I think this is a most vicious canard, but it is perhaps the only lie to which I am grateful, in a professional way.

* * * *

THE FUNNY thing is that passion can be suggested better than it can be shown, on the American screen, anyway. In Europe they are able to go a bit farther. If it's done well, though, it is possible to convey tremendous physical attraction with the minimum of physical contact.

However, this takes time and they usually want to get on with the story and the quickest way to establish the relationship is with a clinch, which by its intensity sets the exact situation.

Lest I be misunderstood, please believe I'm not knocking any aspect of love. It's just that it can be a trifle embarrassing in Cinamascope.

Formula for Hollywood Marriage

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dan Duryea, married to the same woman for more than 30 years, gives this secret for happy marriages in Hollywood.

"An actor must never believe anything he reads — particularly the stories his own press agents give out about him."

Earl Reports on India's Solution to Bull Problem

By EARL WILSON

CALCUTTA — "Operation Bull" is a big success.

The sacred bulls that waddle idly onto the main streets of this city of 5,000,000 right at the rush hour—sometimes lying down to let the autos go around them—have been ordered out to rural pasture . . . and about half of them have gone.

Nobody'll mind but us American tourists . . . for that's always been one thing we exclaim about in India . . . driving along and having a bull back into you, or having a chance meeting with one on the sidewalk.

Besides lousing up traffic (just suppose you had bulls wandering at will in cross-town New York traffic), they also got rather bullish this past year.

* * * *

IN TWO DAYS, the bulls chased three constables and gored one.

There was a genuine case of a bull in a china shop—a bull broke into a curio store. The critters get in everybody's way. Probably they gave a large headache to the movie-makers who were filming "Nine Hours to Roma," in India with Horst Bucholtz and Valerie Gearon.

So with something which the Calcutta papers called "The Last Roundup," they began herding these bulls out to a holy place where they will be looked after as holy animals. This satisfied the devout Hindus who admitted they were getting pretty obstreperous.

* * * *

THE CALCUTTANS laugh as much about tourists as anything. There was the lady who said, as she gazed in awe at the Taj Mahal, "How did they ever build that before they got American aid?"

Supposedly a honeymoon couple, dazed by India and each other, wondered whether they were in Calcutta or New Delhi . . . "I think we're in New Delhi," said the bride . . . "I think, darling, we're in Calcutta," said the bridegroom . . ." Well, let's ask somebody."

So they asked the first person they saw who said, "I don't know, either. I'm also an American tourist."

* * * *

DESPITE the recent student rioting here and the burning of tram cars . . . the hunger . . . the thousands sleeping every night on the streets . . . stretched out looking like shadows on the sidewalks . . . or even dead bodies . . . the Calcuttans maintain their ability to laugh.

And they laugh largely about the Sikhs . . . those people with the whiskers and the wraparound toothache-bandage looking articles. They joke about the Sikhs being a little daffy at noon . . . any noon . . . because of the sun.

One Sikh, so they say, hired a gardener whose duties included watering the lawn daily. One day the "boss" chastised the gardener for not watering the lawn.

"No, I didn't water it today, because it was raining," explained the gardener.

"That's no excuse," said the Sikh, "you could have carried an umbrella."

Are women tight with the tips?

According to suavely genial Richard Carpenter, who table hops from dining room to kitchen in a posh local eatery, they are.

Says he, "The gals don't go dutch—they go Scotch. When the bill arrives, they're so busy tallying-up they skip the tip. The waiter waits in vain."

Reflecting further on the vagaries of dining femmes, Carpenter comes up with his observation.

"It's the bright-eyed little homemaker who most often breaks the waiter's heart—and budget. She's so used to cutting pennies from the food bill, she doles them out sparingly for the tip.

"Take the case of the young executive's wife who entertained the office staff while hubby was away. The bill? It came to $50. Her tip? $1.50. That, after her husband (who later set things right) gave her instruction to be particularly generous."

HOW IS IT that many a kindly mother-homemaker takes on the guise of a tight-fisted Scrooge when it comes to giving a gratuity?

Carpenter believes he has the answer. And, he's sympathetic, though despairing. "Women aren't used to the dining-out details. After all, it's the man who usually foots the tip along with the bill."

"But to give the girls their due, the woman who works is about as generous as her fellow man," says he.

Other waiters in the area agree. In fact, one such dapper denizen of the dining room says he gets better tips from the gals.

But, alas for the poor waitress who works with him. "She has to look to the men if she wants coins jingling in her apron pocket."

For, as a general rule, he's found that men tip women better and visa versa. Why? He won't hazard a guess.

JUST HOW MUCH does a waiter expect? In most restaurants a 15 per cent tip is the going rate. This adds up to about two-thirds of the waiters' (or waitresses') take-home pay. "My salary just covers essentials like gas, water, electricity," says one top table tender. "A tip should be considered part of the dining tab," he adds.

But, of course, service does enter in. When a waiter pours soup down a patron's back, upsets the coffee cup, brings the wrong entree, he shouldn't get a tip — for that matter, he shouldn't be a waiter.

What types tip best? "I can't spot them," says Carpenter. "For that matter, the grouchy customer often turns out to have a heart of gold."

OVER-TIPPING? Is it true that the big spender lets himself in for behind-the-kitchen-door snickers? Wives who've used this line on a "spendthrift" spouse will find Carpenter a real bubble burster. "Who laughs at money?" he asks.

Not Tip-Top

BUT, BACK to the feminine diner. What is it about the approach of a bobbing flowered hat that sends shudders up a waiter's back?

General complaints from the men who carry the trays are: Women sit and chat, taking up a table for hours (less turn over, less tips); they are fussier about their food, the silverware and the surroundings than men. Most ghastly of all — they bring children with them.

"Ah, children," sighs Carpenter. "They are darling—but so very, very messy. And, mama's so worn out by the time the meal is over, she's in no mood to smile at anyone — OR feel kindly about leaving a few coins under the saucer."

In conclusion, Carpenter gives this best tipper line-up: waiters and waitresses themselves, men on expense accounts, men, career gals and (the very bottom of the list) homemakers.

"One thing for sure," he says. "I'm not waiting for the day when a woman hands me a $20 or even $10 tip. That could never happen!"

Same Routine . . . No Change

READY FOR A WORLD of fun and fantasy (left), David Griswold (with biddlestick) compares notes with brother John and Susan Fillipow. Threesome will travel to far-off places through this year's "Programs for Children." Performances (keyed to young theatergoers) will be given Saturday mornings in Long Beach City College theater starting Oct. 6.

On Stage: Programs for Children

"Programs for Children" will open its sixth season of plays to please the younger set Oct. 6 in Long Beach City College Theatre.

Season tickets to the non-profit series (sponsored by Long Beach Children's Theatre and Junior League of Long Beach), are being handled by Mrs. Francis Fillipow, 471 Daroca St.

For the first time, a reduction in price will be offered with purchase of tickets for the complete series of six Saturday morning performancess.

* * * *

AS THE CURTAINS part this year, children will be whisked away to such exotic fun places as the circus; dangerous Indian country, the tulip fields of Holland.

The season, including a West Coast premiere, will open with Santa Monica City College Family Theatre's production of "Clown's Around."

A ballet performance of "Sleeping Beauty" by Valerie Silver Theater Arts Studio will follow Nov. 24.

* * * *

IN JANUARY, Downey Children's Theater will make its first appearance here in "Indian Captive." Then, on Feb. 16, Long Beach Children's Theatre will present its colorful production of "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates."

The premiere, Jan Popper's Opera Workshop performance of Lukas Foss' "Griffelkin" will play to the pint-sized audience March 9.

UCLA Theater Workshop's laugh provoking Chinese play, "Off With His Honorable Head," will close the season April 20.

* * * *

BROCHURES DETAILING the plays and their casts have been mailed and are available in local schools and libraries.

Mrs. Robert M. Griswold and Mrs. William Macrate worked together to arrange and present the programs.

Other members of the committee are Mmes. Baird Sammons, Thomas Graham, Gordon Hayter, Leroy Jensen and William Artman.

* * * *

"PROGRAMS FOR CHILDREN" will be seen by an estimated 13,000 children this year.

Affiliated with Junior Programs of California, the series is part of the growing movement in Southern California which aims to present live theater to children.

Since the start of the Long Beach group, similar groups have been formed in San Gabriel, San Fernando Valley, Santa Barbara and Covina.

The mother group, Junior Programs of California, gives its productions at UCLA Theatre. Headed by Mrs. Stuart E. Weaver Jr., its members work closely with the Long Beach contingent.

* * * *

HERE, THE IDEA for the series of live theatre performances originated when Children's Theatre was forced to limit productions from two to one a year.

"The young audiences had been so receptive to the plays it seemed a shame to be cutting back instead of adding to them," says Mrs. Griswold.

The Junior League agreed. By combining forces with Children's Theater, it has helped make the present series possible.

"There is so much celluloid today—TV and movies—that many children have no idea of what real theater is. We feel that letting them see a live production—(suited to their tastes), is a very important thing," concludes Mrs. Griswold.

Editor's Note: While Woman's Editor Iola Masterson is on vacation this column is being written by members of the staff.

Athens and the Greek Islands. Up the Nile to the Aswan Dam. A cruise down the coast of Yugoslavia. Vienna. Paris! All this wonderful melange is the itinerary of Ellie and Frank Person who're off for an enviable six weeks abroad. Enviable is a weak appelation for the way we feel about this journey.

"Bon Voyage!"

* * * *

While we're still an unhealthy shade of absinthe green we might as well add that May Holtz and Georgia Combs are going the Far East route in October. The girls like to travel; their husbands, Art and Frende, don't, so the husbands stay home. You wouldn't think that it would be, but it's just as easily resolved as that.

Japan, Hong Kong, Bangkok and Singapore will be some of their exotic stopovers. In Bangkok they hope to see the king when he makes his annual pilgrimage down the river. They planned the trip to coincide with it, matter of fact, because it's supposed to be an ultra glamorous spectacle.

* * * *

Dolores and Hermann Weissker have returned from San Francisco where they entered their daughter, Sandy, in the San Francisco College for Women. They met former localites Eleanor and George Kading there with the similar purpose of entering their son, Don, at Santa Clara. All joined forces and had a jolly outing.

* * * *

George Steele Jr. and his Texas Tech roommate have departed our shores, where they found the surfing better than anything in the vicinity of their homeland, Houston, Texas. They were the houseguests of George's aunt and uncle, Rosalie and Bob Wells.

* * * *

Just as Pat Stack and the five children were about to take off for Tierra del Fuego with the house rented and a mountain of clothes and supplies suitable for Cape Horn living Joe's business plans were changed and he cabled "don't come." So Patty and the children moved right up to Arrowhead, where they will be well prepared for the coldest winter ever.

* * * *

Oh, to be in New England with the autumn foliage turning! Lucky Jean and Kenneth Davis depart on Tuesday for an extended motor trip leisurely touring New England, visiting relations here and there. They'll be gone about six weeks. Kenneth's brother, Henry Davis, will occupy their Bay Shore home during their absence.

* * * *

Paul Grandle was mighty surprised last night when the door flew open and a gaggle of old and true friends laden with some pretty interesting birthday gifts trooped in. Ever loving wife Gloria planned the party with the cooperation of neighbors, Beth and Jack Hannaman, who assembled the group at their house.

* * * *

Understand the Dames Club and husbands had quite a luau at Joan and Greg Hoskins in Rossmoor. The Dames vacation in the summer so the party is a sort of send-off into the new year.

About 40 South Sea types assembled around the pool; and everything was exotic with flowers in the trees. Marilyn Brock, we're told looked very authentic in her grass skirt and a beautiful queen's headdress brought back from Samoa by her mother.

But the part that intrigued us was that so many people went swimming. Quite a few managed to hit the pool in one way or another. Carol Greer didn't intend to go in; but she did, and has her suspicions. Sounds just like the Kennedys, eh?

Alma and Doug McFarland are the proud new owners of a beautiful boat, well known to members of Pacific Coast Yachting circles, "The Oldtimer." It's parked in front of their bayfront house, and if you can't get Alma, it's because she is very busy these days what with decorating problems, brass polishing and other fun.

Donna and Richard Prior kept their friends in a fine stew preceding the luau they had Saturday night at their home on Marita. They sent the invitations in four installments so that until the very last minute their guests knew there was going to be a party alrighty but hadn't a clue who was giving it or where it was going to be.

* * * *

Last Saturday night was no time to come crashing down with a broken leg or rib or anything. Tess and Dr. Ed Wiater had a corner on all available orthopedists; they were entertaining at a dinner party in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Dana Street, recently arrived from Little Rock, Ark. Dr. Street is new chief of staff of orthopedics at Harbor General Hospital and an associate prof of orthopedics at UCLA.

As cars began to arrive at 4335 California Ave. one recent eve the theme of the evening's party being given by Marion and Walter Groshong was suggested by little Japanese parasols adorning the curb lamps.

Two chaming geisha girls bowed low to welcome them at the door before they entered the garden where their hosts awaited them. Our geishas, authentically attired in every respect, were Geneva Weiss in ivory silk with an accent of red on her obi, and Florence Cole in white silk with delicate mauve shading. Each required a Japanese woman familiar with the ritual of dressing a geisha to come to her home before the party to attend to the intricate details from their shining black wigs to their dainty footgear.

CANDLELIGHT BALL

Flickering light of multitudes of candles will set theme for party next Saturday given by St. Mary's Hospital Guild at Park Estates home of Dr. and Mrs. John F. McGill. Cocktails, dinner and dancing to music of Jimmy Whetmore's orchestra are on agenda. Pictured (center) is Mrs. James E. Brennan, president, with Mrs. Gus Gurley (left) and Mrs. Arthur V. Hodge, in charge of arrangements. Also assisting is Mrs. Herman A. Weissker, not present for picture.

Rick Rackers Plan Student Trust Fund

Aiding youth to develop its real potential is a deeply satisfying objective, according to members of Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary of Assistance League, who work with members of the league's various Girls Clubs. Among these junior high school age girls the Rick Rackers sometimes meet girls with tremendous scholastic and leadership abilities.

Many, however, through lack of financial assistance, will not have the opportunity to acquire a college education. Because of their association with them, Rick Rackers have evolved an idea for a new area of service to the community.

A Rick Racker scholarship trust fund has been created to benefit Long Beach students at Long Beach State College. Interest from the fund will assure a certain number of scholarships each year as long as the fund is in existence.

* * * *

AS THE principle of the fund grows, increased interest will make available an even larger number of scholarships. With the enthusiasm and support of the community in this new venture, it is hoped that many boys and girls will avail themselves of this opportunity for higher education.

Application for the scholarships will be made through Long Beach State College.

WILL AID SCHOLARS

To benefit Long Beach students at Long Beach State College a scholarship trust fund has been created by Rick Rackers, junior auxiliary of Assistance League. Pictured conferring with H. L. Keown, an executive in Bank of America trust department, are Mrs. C. Robert Langslet (left), Rick Racker chairman; and Mrs. Norman Jaques, chairman of scholarship committee.

Auxiliary Gavel Changes Hands

President's gavel of the Volunteer Auxiliary to Memorial Hospital is now in the hands of Mrs. Hugh J. Prichard who succeeded Mrs. Earl Burns Miller to the post at the third annual meeting last week in Assistance League Clubhouse.

Mrs. Hugh J. Prichard

A wealth of experience in civic and charitable groups is brought to the office by the new president. Mrs. Prichard is a past president of Women's Auxiliary, Long Beach District of Los Angeles County Medical Assn.; has served on the board of directors of the Junior League; has been junior coordinator and board member of the Long Beach Auxiliary of Southern California Symphony Association.

She has been active in Republican politics in the county and is currently chairman of the distributing campaign for jewelry for "Nixon for Governor" and member of the Nixon for governor finance committee. She is a founder member of the auxiliary she now heads.

* * * *

MRS. PRICHARD'S hobby is music, both organ and piano. She and Dr. Prichard are parents of three children, Gay, a medical secretary; Sue, a UCLA student; and Hugh Jr., a senior at Wilson High School.

On her executive board are Mmes. Clare D. Hamman, Robert Gray, Llewellyn Bixby, Arthur Buell, Bill Barbee, and Carlton Wood.

Annual reports at the meeting revealed that the 400 active members had contributed 38,000 hours of volunteer services.

Couple Feted

Mr. and Mrs. Weckford Morgan are entertaining at a reception this afternoon in their 4142 Greenbrier Road home, honoring their daughter, Marilyn, and her bridegroom, Lawrence Lynn von Seeger.

The newlyweds were married earlier this summer in Riverside with Mr. and Mrs. Gary Folker as attendants.

* * * *

THE BRIDE is a graduate of Lakewood High School and currently is a student at Long Beach City College where she is on the Dean's List and a member of TNT. She will finish the current semester before joining her husband in Riverside where he is stationed at March Air Force Base. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar von Seeger of Geneva, Switzerland.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Sees Bumper Crop of Roses

DEAR ABBY: A man wants to marry me and I am undecided. I like him very much but I don't love him. I was married for six years to a man I loved but didn't like. He took off and left me with four children and $2,000 in debts. I divorced him. The man who wants to marry me is 40. He is a prosperous farmer and the kindest man I've ever known. He is willing to be a good father to my children and pay off my debts. I am only 29. Is this too young to live without love?—UNDECIDED.

ABBY

DEAR UNDECIDED: Instead of the word "like"—substitute "respect and admire." And for "love"—"physically attracted to." Your chances for happiness, in my opinion, are better with a man you respect and admire. You'd be surprised how easy it is to love a man who is good to you. Marry the farmer and everything will come up roses.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell my wife how foolish she is to put her name and address on her key chain? I tried to tell her that if she lost her house keys, whoever found them would know right where to go to rob her. She thinks some honest soul will return them to her just because her name and address are on it. Or am I wrong in wanting to take no chances?—ED.

DEAR ED: You're right—although the majority of finders are not keepers. It pays to take no chances.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: I am 26 and my husband is 27. We have been married for five years and here is my problem. I love to dance but my husband doesn't. He knows how to dance and he is a good dancer, but he doesn't like to dance. I knew this before we were married but I thought he would change. I want to dance, but it takes two to tango. How can I get him to dance?—LOVES TO DANCE.

DEAR LOVES: If dancing is such an important part of your life, you should have married a tango dancer. You could probably get your husband on his feet by begging, insisting or nagging, but why bother if he doesn't enjoy it? Get off his back.

* * * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO "CAN'T GO HOME": Send me your name and address and I will send you a list of homes for unwed mothers in your area at once. Yes, some of them are free, and you will be cared for confidentially.

* * * *

Unload your problem on Abby. For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Virginia Vasey Says Lines

The sweetly haunting music of recorders and a harpsichord filled First Orthodox Presbyterian Church as Virginia Ann Vasey, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Beach Vasey, approached the altar to become the bride of Charles A. Croninger of Torrance.

She selected for her vows a dress of pale gold silk shantung fashioned with short bell skirt. Her bridal bouquet was of yellow rosebuds combined with the lace handkerchief made and carried by her maternal grandmother, as well as her own mother, at their weddings.

Samia Webbi of Culver City, the bride's only attendant, was gowned in emerald green and carried yellow spider chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Croninger of Torrance, was assisted by Ted Menmuir of Colton as best man.

* * * *

MAGNOLIA branches and gold mums, prominent in church decor, also were used throughout the Vasey home for the reception which followed the wedding.

The newlyweds honeymooned at Idyllwild and now are residing in Los Angeles where the bride is secretary to Rev. Elbert D. Hoffman who officiated at the wedding.

The new Mrs. Croninger was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Long Beach State College. Her husband studied at University of Redlands.

Italy added five International Match points to its lead in the first hand of the sixth session of the World Championship match.

Both North players chose to open with one diamond. The American East overcalled with two clubs. South went to two hearts and West jumped to three notrump. The defense cashed the first four tricks and West made the rest of the score 600 points for a vulnerable game.

* * * *

ITALIAN East elected to pass — considerably better action than a club overcall. The American South jumped to four hearts. West looked at his two sure trump tricks and ace and king of spades and doubled.

The defense was easy for him. He opened the ace of spades. (This Italian pair leads ace from ace-king). He continued with the king after receiving a come-on in the suit. Then he shifted to a low club so the defense had four tricks before surrendering the lead.

West still had his two trump tricks and South was down three, 800 points, and a net loss of 200 points on the hand.

STUDENT ACTIVITY IS IN HIGH GEAR

Business, Technology

Now that fall semester classes are in full swing, students of the Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division will get the activity program into high gear this week with a student body assembly, rushing and the start of the intramural sports schedule.

On stage at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the gymnasium will be The Highlighters, vocal sextette, who have many TV, radio and concert appearances to their credit. Admission will be free to student body card holders, and ASB president Ed Buras will preside.

* * * *

RUSHING for men's and women's social clubs is now in its second week. Members of Sigma will host new BTD women students at an afternoon tea today, with president Cathy Ross presiding. Theta holds an off campus rush meeting Wednesday evening.

Members of Kisab will hold open house for all interested men students on Friday evening, and Norsemen have scheduled a "Back to School Picnic" for members and alumni this afternoon at Irvine Park, with president Larry Crozier in charge.

Intramural sports on the Pacific Coast Hwy. campus will begin Friday for both tennis and basketball.

Liberal Arts

Activities at the Liberal Arts Division of Long Beach City College are now beginning to get underway, or perhaps it would be more accurate to say get underplay, as Richard L. Jones and his Varsity Band prepare to entertain the football crowds with complicated halftime routines. Included in the festivities will be the song, flag, yell and majorette groups, along with the ever-present and effervescent Viking mascot, Ole, in performances designed to delight the throngs.

* * * *

Rushing is top on the AWS agenda at this time, with formal rush teas to be held today by the five campus sororities: Aurora, Entre Nous, Mahabharata, TNT and Tammuz. Still more open house meetings are scheduled by all the men's social clubs.

Temporary budgets have been issued by the Student Cabinet; Permanent budgets will be determined in the near future.

Patricia Morison

Patricia Morison Signed for 'Pops'

Patricia Morison, reigning star of the musical comedy stage, will be guest soloist at the fourth annual Pops Concert to be given by Long Beach Symphony Guild Friday, Oct. 5.

"A Mediterranean Holiday" is theme of the 8 p.m. dinner affair, which will be held in the International Ballroom of Lafayette Hotel.

Miss Morison, a mezzo-soprano, has had a brilliant career in Broadway musicals, movies and television. Her Broadway successes include "Kiss Me Kate," in which she co-starred with Alfred Drake, and "The King and I," in which she had the leading role opposite Yul Brynner.

* * * *

AT THE POPS Concert she will sing "Wunderbar," "Secret Love," "Say You Will Not Forget," "Hello, Young Lovers," "You've Never Been Blue," and "Never Walk Alone."

Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Lauris Jones, will accompany the soloist.

The orchestra also will play an arrangement by Benjamin Britten, "Soiree Musicales," a series of melodies with a Mediterranean flavor from Rossini's operas, and "Tales From the Vienna Woods" by Strauss.

Dancing to the music of Roger Bacon's orchestra will complete the evening.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Timothy Spangler, 645 Sand Piper Drive.

Major & Minor Notes

YEARS DO NOT DIM TALENTS OF ARTISTS

By RACHEL MORTON
I, P-T Music Critic

There seems to be a vitality in performing artists that the years do not dim. Their metier of expression may change, but they "carry on" in splendid accomplishment despite advancing years.

I heard the famous Wagnerian soprano, Lili Lehmann, give a wonderful song recital in Berlin when she was 75 years old. The voice was not quite in full bloom —but the artistry was still supreme.

Lotte Lehmann, now 74 years of age, although no longer a singer, is returning to the Metropolitan Opera this season to co-direct a new staging of Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier," an opera which she made her own for many years.

* * * *

WHEN I VISITED Amelita Galli-Curci in her home in Rancho Santa Fe I was amazed at the beautiful oil paintings which hung on the walls of her music room. "After Homer Samuels (her husband) passed away," she confided, "I found comfort and distraction in going out with my painting materials and putting down on canvas the beautiful scenes all about me."

She never took a painting lesson, as she has never taken a singing lesson, she told us.

Most opera divas write an autobiography after they have retired and many take up a life of teaching.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH 73 years of age, Tito Schipa, famous tenor of the Met, is making a concert tour of this country. The first concert will be at Town Hall in New York in October. After the American tour he plans a series of recitals in Japan.

Kirsten Flagstad, like Rosa Ponselle, became an opera impresario ofter retirement, and most successfully. Flagstad in Oslo, Norway; and Ponselle in Baltimore, Md.

Joseph Szigeti, noted violinist, who celebrated his 70th birthday recently at his home in Clarens, Switzerland, has just recorded the Beethoven Concerto with the London Symphony Orchestra under Antol Dorati, conductor, and also the Bach solo sonatas.

* * * *

PIERRE MONTEUX, the venerable conductor, now in his 80s, is scheduled to direct two concerts with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra this season. Every summer he holds classes for young conductors at his summer home in Maine.

Another greatly esteemed conductor, the late Dr. Bruno Walter, gave me a copy of his book on Gustav Mahler which he had lately published. He was at that time 83 years of age.

Although, I personally do not belong in this category of great artists, still I had an enviable career as an opera singer in England. When my strenuous singing days in public were at an end, I plunged into the hectic life of a music critic.

Bolshoi Ballet Opens at Shrine on Oct. 5

Maya Plisetskaya will dance in "Swan Lake," opening performance by the Bolshoi Ballet, at Shrine Auditorium Oct. 5. The ballet will be repeated at a matinee and in the evening of Oct. 6.

The Bolshoi, making its second visit to Los Angeles in three years, will present the spectacular "Spartacus," said to be the biggest ballet production, ever put on a stage, with more than 200 dancers participating in several of its scenes. "Spartacus" will be danced Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Oct. 8, 9 and 10.

The full-length "Giselle" will be seen Oct. 12. "Ballet School," "Paganini" and "Walpurgis Night" are scheduled for the matinee and evening of Oct. 13.

* * * *

A SPECIAL highlights program, to include "Bayaderka," "Gayane" and excerpts from the Bolshoi's extensive repertoire under the title "Divertissements," will be performed Oct. 11, 15 and 16.

Brought to this country by S. Hurok, under the new Cultural Exchange Agreement, the Bolshoi Ballet represents the largest ballet company — more than 300 people — ever to be transported coast to coast, with literally tons of stage equipment and costumes.

Tickets are available at Southern California Music Company, 737 S. Hill St., Los Angeles, and at all Mutual Ticket Agencies.

Andre Previn

Previn and Trio Set L.B. Date

Andre Previn and his trio will present a concert of classics, show tunes and jazz at Lakewood High School Auditorium Friday evening, Oct. 12.

The 32-year-old arranger, musical director, concert pianist, composer and recording artist has been nominated seven times for Academy Awards. He won his first Oscar in 1958 for scoring "Gigi" and his second in 1959 for "Porgy and Bess."

A strong individualist, Previn has the ability to make an audience understand what he is doing musically. He was recently named by Life magazine as one of the 100 most influential young men in America.

His Long Beach program will include works by Gershwin, Ravel and Debussy; music from motion picture scores with which he has been identified; and selections from his top-selling albums.

Tickets are on sale at Humphrey's Music Co., Wallichs Music City in Lakewood and at Plaza Platters.

L.B. Chorus to Rehearse

Long Beach Civic Chorus will begin rehearsals Monday at 7:30 p.m. in John Dewey High School Auditorium, Eighth Street and Locust Avenue.

Singers interested in joining the chorus may audition at 7 p.m. any Monday.

Padua Hills

Performances by the Mexican Players of Padua Hills, Claremont, will resume Oct. 3, when the actors, now on vacation, will open a six-weeks run of "Festival Mexicano." Dining room, gift and pottery shops will open the preceding day.

Scots Will Pipe, Dance at Bowl

Massed bands, pipes, drums and dancers of two Scottish regiments never before seen in America will join their talents to present three performances at the Hollywood Bowl on Sept. 27, 28 and 29.

The regiments are the Royal Scots Greys, whose headquarters are at Edinburgh Castle, and the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, based at Stirling Castle.

The two bands will perform 71 musical numbers, marches, counter-marches and precision drills.

One of the highland dances will be the famed Sword Dance, originated by Malcolm Canmore, a Celtic prince, to celebrate the slaying of one of Macbeth's chiefs in 1054.

Both the Scots Greys and the Argylls have fought in many battles throughout the world. Their patron is Queen Elizabeth.

Audition Set

Greene Show Opens Gallery

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Lucille Brown Greene of Long Beach will be the first artist to exhibit in the new Roberts Art Gallery at Santa Monica High School, which will be dedicated at an 8 p. m. reception Friday.

The gallery's name honors Mrs. Josephine Roberts, who headed the school's art department until her retirement in 1954. She was succeeded by Mrs. Greene, who was chairman until 1959, and who now teaches at Santa Monica City College.

Mrs. Greene is a former president of Long Beach Art Association, is a charter member of Long Beach Museum Associates and has served on the board of the California Water Color Society. She has exhibited in local and national shows.

Her invitational one-woman show at the new gallery will include "Kid's Matinee," an oil-collage owned by Long Beach Museum of Art. It was a gift of LBAA and won a $100 prize in 1957.

The artist's new paintings are large abstracts and semi-abstracts with philosophical and psychological undertones.

The Friday reception will be open to the public. The exhibit will close Oct. 26.

DR. MARQUES E. Reitzel, California artist-in-residence, will give a demonstration of oil painting and will show slides at a meeting of Lakewood Art Association Thursday.

The group will convene at 7:30 p. m. in Mayfair Park Clubhouse, South Street and Clark Avenue. The public is invited.

Dr. Reitzel was commissioned in August, 1959, by the artists' supply firm, Winsor and Newton, to paint the biography of California.

Interest in his project has brought invitations from art groups and schools, and since taking over his assignment Dr. Reitzel has demonstrated techniques of water color and oil painting to scores of organizations.

He studied at Chicago Art Institute, headed the art departments at Rockford College and San Jose State College, and is the only artist to win the Edward B. Butler purchase prize two times consecutively. His paintings have been exhibited extensively.

The public also is invited to attend the association's workshops Oct. 1 and 8 at 7:30 p. m. in Simon Bolivar Park Clubhouse, Del Amo Street and Downey Boulevard. Tom Rose will show the technique of print-making with a view to planning Christmas cards.

CONFLICT OF INTERESTS

Off-Broadway's star, Betty Conner, as Jo in "A Taste of Honey," tries to restrain Peter, played by Lou Lyda, from making advances toward her wandering mother, Helen, enacted by Eleanor Shibley.

California Films Now at Library

Now that most groups have resumed their fall meetings and programs, the Public Library's Film Service is receiving requests for films on California, its past and future.

A good place to start, according to Miss Nina Boyle, film librarian, is with "Indians of California," which portrays life before the white man came.

Foundings of the missions and the part played by Father Junipero Serra is presented in "Rosary of the Missions." It also deals with their restoration. Another on the same subject but including views of Hollywood, San Francisco's Chinatown and Fisherman's Wharf, is "Along the Camino Real."

Gold and ghost towns are interestingly shown in "Ghost Towns of the High Sierras," "California and Gold," and "Ghost Towns of Death Valley." Views of Death Valley Scotty's home are included in the latter.

"The Story of a Pueblo" traces the history of Los Angeles from the past to the present through transformation of old landmarks.

* * * *

"NOTES ON the Port of Saint Francis" is about San Francisco. Narrated by Vincent Price, it is taken from an essay on San Francisco written by Robert Louis Stevenson in 1882.

The question, "Where is California Going?" is dealt with in "California and its Natural Resources." In the same vein but dealing with another aspect of the question is "Bunker Hill," a documentary on slum clearance seen through the eyes of a Bunker Hill dweller in the midst of the redevelopment project.

Many of the films listed are in color. There is a service charge for their use.

Elliott, Adams Win LBAA Show Awards

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

The Still Life show at the Long Beach Art Association Gallery in the Villa Riviera is charming. It will continue until the end of this month and will be succeeded by a show of landscapes and seascapes by members of this prolific local group.

The 72 works demonstrate a wide range of abilities from the highly professional to the "Sunday-painter" variety. It is appropriate that they be hung together; each has its own appeals. Those awarded first and second places by Frederick Black, director of the Long Beach Museum of Art, are Joy Elliott's "Strelitzia Augusta Regina" and "Still Warm Light" by Robert Adams.

* * * *

THE FORMER, in positive wide brush strokes of blues and mustard yellows, is an involved, cubistic composition and really swings.

Adam's casein is in hues of orange and red, some greyed, some assertively pure. Masses are blocked in with vigorous semi-dry strokes and the objects . . . wine cooler, globlets, flowers . . . are suggested in fast lines. The effect is both festive and mysterious and totally different from the watercolors and oils I have previously seen by this gifted painter.

* * * *

OTHERS in the show stand out for many different reasons. "The Bookshelf," a watercolor by Madeline Cook, sparkles with rhythmic pattering and sophisticated, spare use of color. Moise Fair's collage is a brilliant use of pasted papers in which many colors result from overlays . . . the table drape seems literally to flow. Melita Artin is another who uses collage well, along with other media, in "Green Still Life."

* * * *

JULIA PALOUSKY is a master of magic realism in precision and startling light of "Still Life with Fish" and her more cubistic "Still Life with Apples." Helen Frankline shows great promise in her oil, "Still Life," and in "Loaf of Bread." This promise should be achieved when she becomes surer of her direction.

Leander Diaz is a "primitive" who paints small and with loving care. His "Home Interior" is of a white-washed wall, a turkey-red carpet, an old-fashioned desk bearing a stamp album and some very recognizable magazines. On the wall are tacked a religious picture and two old-fashioned tapestries.

Each visitor will discover his own favorites among the many offerings in the show.

Thomeys Dine Well In as Well as Out

Chef of the Week

(Editor's note: Mildred K. Flanary, I, P-T Food Editor, is in attendance at the Food Editor's Conference in New York City. Her Chef of the Week column is being authored by guest writers in her absence.)

By TEDD THOMEY

The time has come. Tossing caution aside like a dirty napkin, I am about to break down and confess how many times my redhaired wife and I dine out each week.

Many people suspect that we eat out every night. So why should I deny it? And of course, we also have our luncheons and breakfasts out. And in between meals we visit our restaurant friends for little snacks, such as chilled lobster with champagne and perhaps a bit of flaming duckling on the side.

Tedd Thomey

Adding up all those meals, you can see quite easily that we dine out at least five times a day, which is 35 times a week. No, I better correct that. On Sundays we have brunch out as well as a late supper, in addition to our usual meals, naturally—so that makes a grand total of 37 times we dine out each week.

* * * *

NOW DOESN'T that sound like a lot of nonsense? I certainly hope so because that's what I intended. The ideas some people have about the number of times Mrs. T and I dine out are exactly that—a lot of nonsense.

Actually, we dine out once a week on the average. Occasionally, in order to check out a new place, we dine out twice a week, but that doesn't happen very often.

But no matter how hard I try to explain it to people, they go right on believing what they want to believe. No matter how hard I strain at the typewriter (see picture), they go right on believing that Mrs. T and I are a couple of hogs who dine out 150 times a week.

* * * *

I REALIZE that I have one of the finest jobs in town and I consider it a privilege and a trust to be able to dine out once a week (at I, P-T expense) and then write a truthful account of what we encountered. I am sure most readers have noticed by now that I do not assail or criticize a restaurant which serves us a poor meal. When that happens (about once or twice a year) we simply pay the check and walk quietly out, and I don't mention the restaurant in my column.

But there are peculiar little drawbacks to my job. Every so often the phone rings at our house and a strange feminine voice will inquire: "Are you Tomay or Toomey or how do you pronounce it?"

And when I acknowledge that I am he, she shouts: "You poor miserable jerk! Why didn't you marry somebody who could cook?" And crash goes the phone, hanging up before I can blurt out a reply.

The women who make calls like that to our home, or to the I, P-T, are obviously jealous old biddy types whose husbands never take them out to dine. Having stayed at home cooking all these years, they suffer from common psychoses known as paranoidic gas-on-the-brain (from hovering over too many burners) or traumatic, glassy-eyed frigidity. (The latter has nothing to do with Freud or sex; it is simply mental fatigue from staring too long into supermart or home freezers, trying to decide what to cook for dinner.)

* * * *

IT MAY NOT seem like it, but I do have a strong point to make in this little essay. I have been taking my sweet little spouse out to dine—once a week—for years and years and years.

And do you know what this heart-warming generosity of mine has produced?

A terrific cook, that's what!

My spouse has eaten and enjoyed dozens of different restaurant specialties. And she has seen me dining with pleasure on those same dishes. So for years she has been purchasing cook books, and talking to chefs in order to duplicate those dishes at home.

And she has succeeded beyond my wildest dreams. At home we dine on beef Stroganoff, tenderloin tips in wine, lobster Newberg (and also quite often on hamburger, since Mrs. T is budget conscious like any other thrifty housespouse).

She also fixes chicken cacciatore, veal scaloppine, a wonderful wine dessert known as zabaglione and one of my particular favorites, a dish I call Beef Roulades a la Pat in her honor.

Following is her recipe for it:

BEEF ROULADES A LA PAT

Ingredients: 2 pounds round steak, ¼ inch thick; 2 dill pickles; 3 slices bacon; 1 large onion; ½ cup burgundy or other red wine; 1 clove garlic; 1 bay leaf; salt, pepper, thyme, flour.

Cut steak into six pieces. Pound as thin as possible on floured board. Season to taste with salt, pepper and thyme. On each piece of steak place ½ slice of bacon, 2 slices of dill pickle and one or two slices of onion. Roll and tie with string. Brown in oil under broiler on all sides. Add wine, garlic and bay leaf. Simmer covered on top of stove or in 350-degree oven for about two hours until tender. Remove string before serving.

We first dined on those roulades 15 years ago in a San Francisco restaurant called Bob's. When Mrs. T saw how much I enjoyed them, she hunted until she found the right recipe.

I've been dining like a king ever since.

And all I can say is thank heavens I'm a restaurant columnist so I can also enjoy such fine food at home.

In-Laws Dear But Too Time Consuming

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I suppose everyone who has an in-law has trouble one way or another. Mother-in-law gets nosey and father-in-law gives uncalled-for advice. It's harder to cope with when you think a great deal of both of them.

My mother-in-law is a good mother and Dad is about as perfect as a man can get. He's dependable and charitable. He'll get up off a sick bed to help a friend.

Mom is pretty much the same, but she's selfish in wanting her children around her 24 hours a day. It's not enough that we spend every holiday, every birthday and almost every weekend with her. If we haven't appeared, the phone starts ringing and excuses start flying.

This has got to come to a screeching halt. And when it does, I'm afraid feelings on both sides are going to be hurt. I don't want this. We're lucky to have such fine parents, but how can we let them know we want to feel we're married to each other and not to the whole family? Isn't once a month often enough to see each other?

MRS. J. B.

DEAR MRS. J. B.:

Too much is too much, but what seems enough to you may be starvation for mother. Your mother-in-law is a good mother, you say. Your father-in-law is charitable. Go to them. Tell them your schedule is out of balance. You need time for this and this and this. That you want to see them when you can give them all of you—probably once or twice a month.

Hurry, now. Don't hesitate a minute longer. You'd be surprised how easy it is to communicate with good and charitable. people—even. if they are in-laws.

M. M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

We're 13 years old, and there's a group of real sassy girls who are stealing all our boy friends. They have parties and they spin the bottle and play post office and have kissing contests.

We don't want to be included in their group, but we don't want to be left with all the crummy boys either.

—THE THIRTEENS

DEAR THIRTEENS:

Perplexing? Dear girls, I hope you never have anything more "perplexing" to bother your little heads.

For Pete's sake, if you don't like their parties, try giving some of your own. But I can't help feeling you're both a bit priggish. And another thing, how can you be sure the party was so bad if you didn't go?

—M. M.

Jay School of Dance of Torrance will present a variety of dance numbers in Exhibit Hall of Municipal Auditorium as the Monday offering on the Community Program by the Long Beach Recreation Department.

Students ranging from 4 to 17 years old will present tap, ballet, modern jazz, hula and novelty numbers. A high light of the show will be the Charleston by the entire company.

Carl Robertson will lead community singing to open the program at 7:30 p.m. Regenia Beam will accompany.

Old time and square dancing to the music of the Tyo Orchestra with Joe Marshall as caller will follow the stage show. The public is invited to the free civic program.

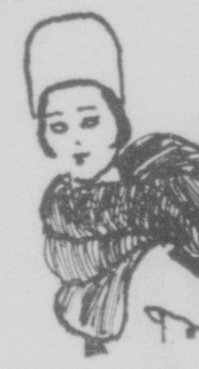
The Looks We Like . . .

The SPARE Look

A suit that's three ways new: it's high-rising at waistline; it has a dramatic touch of fur; and, most important, it's styled in the new spare silhouette—lean, pared down, unadorned. By Couture West of California; at Schick's, 701 Pine Ave.

Fillip of Fur

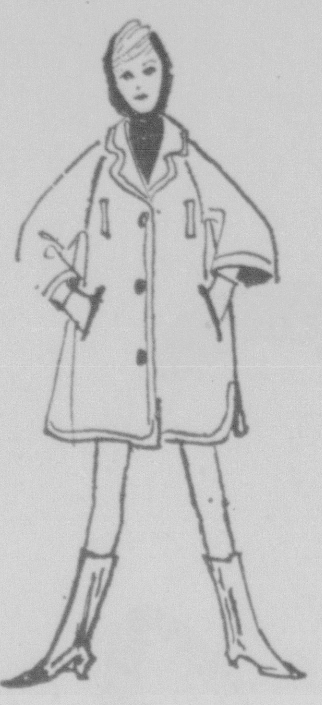


Fur boas and collars give fashionable refurbishing to cloth coats, flat-collared suits, tailored dresses.

Borrowed From the Boys

Part of the great male robbery in women's fashion, circa 1962, the pea jacket, here covering another male influence, the turtle neck sweater . . . this one gone femininely cashmere. To top it, a slouch hat—leather banded. At Buffums' downtown store, Pine Avenue at Broadway.

The Bermuda Coat

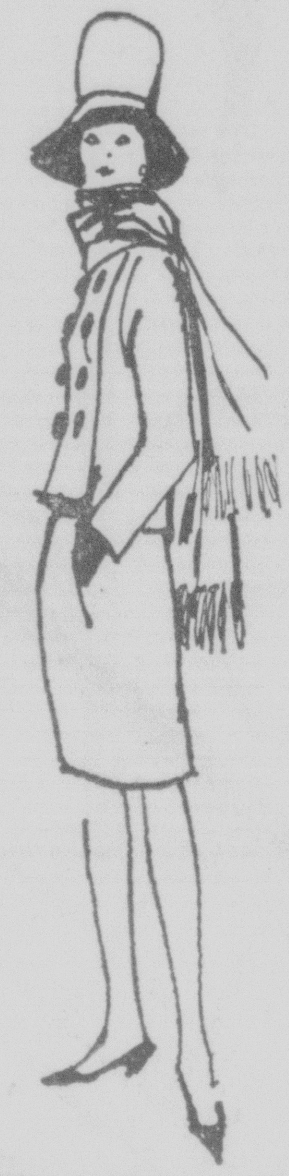


Ever known anyone who didn't have a stash of Bermuda shorts in her closet? NOW, add the Bermuda coat, a knee-nudger like its namesake, best seen with knee-nudging boots—the most exciting, zanniest look afoot!

Hoods Are Good

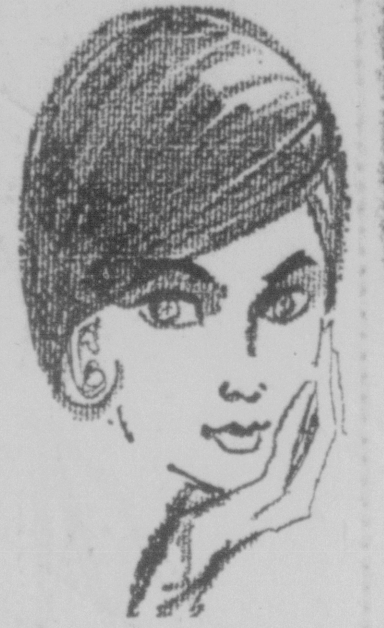
New: the sweep of hoods, innocent and romantic, the ultimate in sophistication . . . also the perfect foil for blustery winds, harassed hairdos.

The Muffled Look



In a bit of fashion intrigue, designers have created new muffled look for all would-be femme fatales. It's achieved with scarves and stoles of fur or costume-matching fabrics. Wide collars, also, turn up to shut out chill breezes.

Smoother Hair



Bouffants are out . . . the "Marienbad" (or some adaptation of it) is in. The latter is shorter, flat, with plaster of bangs swept across forehead, almost hiding it.

The Fur Flurry

Fur is going everywhere for fall . . . as linings in coats, as banding for hems and sleeves, as showy chapeaux — and, of course, as lavish collars on suits. Example: This three-piece costume of imported black and white tweed with tuxedo black fox collar on short-cropped jacket. The blouse, jet silk. At Parisienne, 539 East Ocean Boulevard.

Take Your Druthers . . . Many Looks 'In'

A unique season, this, when a gal's wardrobe can reflect the influence of such diverse personalities as Mata Hari and Little Red Riding Hood.

But listen further. Lurking there, too, are updated hand-me-downs from a dozen or so other individualists.

There are Nehru coats, cowboy hats, army trench coats, Navy pea jackets, little boy vests and Cossack boots. Also Sherlock's trench coat and granddad's nightshirt.

To say nothing of Jackie Kennedy's little nothing dress.

It's a wear-them-all year with no rubber-stamp silhouette, no follow-the-leader attitude in fashion.

* * * *

BUT WHETHER you're Westward Ho! in a cowpoke scarf or Oriental-influenced in a rajah coat, there are certain 1962-isms that date you up-to-now.

THE SCARF . . . the essential extra: the look-completing touch for suits, coats and dresses. Wonderfully becoming in mink or sable, irresistible in ropes of beaver and ermine, knotted or ascot-tied, filling in a strict, collarless look. A fashion status-maker to be reckoned with, it goes formal at night in velvet, mohair or satin.

THE HOOD . . . a far cry from the paths of Little Red Riding Hood, forsaking the days of cloaks and carriages for today's fast-paced life of freeways and Jaguars.

It goes many ways: the coat with hood, the cape with hood, the hood-haped hat, the hood-wrapped scarf.

THE TUNIC. Dramatic, nostalgic — but very '62. Modern interpretations: a carved coat stopping two inches short of the skirt beneath; a molded sheath, knee-length and worn over a brief-topped evening dress.

THE MIDDY. As always, young and carefree, now with new chic and sophistication—even in mink. Way it appears: as the top half of a suit that buttons down the back; a pullover jacket launched over a dress; a buttonless suit jacket with sleek, flattened front.

THE BELT. Counterpointing the softness of the coat-dress, the suit, the coat, it takes a strong hold on the waistline. Seen most often in hard, polished leather or wide, supple suede.

AND FURS. THEY'RE EVERYWHERE. Soft elegance of tawny fox, Russian sable, Fisher, beaver, mink, Persian lamb—to underline not overwhelm, every costume, every look. As muffs, scarfs, ruffling, trimming, to soften the season's supple silhouette.

A BOOT TO STROLL IN, to loll in, to dine in, just look devine in. Herbert Levine designs it in every texture from leopard and leather to evening brocades. Sketched here: ocelot, imported French Moroccan calf. At Joseph Salon Shoes, 547 E. Ocean Blvd.

Boots Gain Toehold

Boots are kicking up their biggest season in years.

There are low boots that stop short to punctuate a pretty ankle; more ambitious boots that climb to the knee and a number that stop short at various points along the way.

Apart from warmth and protection, they impart the dashing "total look," so important for fall.

* * * *

HEMLINE treatments such as fur bandings, tunics and apron panels draw the eye downward to the leg and foot.

Result: the pull-on, dressed-up boot is the way to achieve a perfect fashion footing.

Designed for country roads, city streets, supermarkets and super-duper galas, the new boots come in kid, calf and patent leathers as well as suedes and pigskin.

Dressier versions, take a far leap from the practical puddle-takers of yesteryear; they appear in fake fur, velvet and paisley—even false alligator.

* * * *

TOES, TOO, are new and different. They'll curl up, be squared off or gently rounded.

The most popular and wearable styles are slim flat-heeled boots in suedes and pigskin that just graze the ankle.

These, when treated with the new leather protectors (which repel water), turn storm proof—so, let it rain, let it rain, let it rain.

To wear IN the boot—a smart collection of "bootlegger" stockings and socks.

For city boots, there are walking sheer-nylons with a ventilated foot; for dress-up boots, dress-sheer seamless stockings with a cotton sole to cushion the foot; wool or orlon knee-high casual socks in the greatest colors for casual or campus boot wear.

Comfee foot covers, such as golf socks, provide a lining for unlined boots; hip-to-toe tights in bright autumn colors, natural beige, or sophisticated black—for cold weather boots.

Tip Your Hat; Let It Tower

There's a hat wave ahead! There are towering toppers, full-blown brims, deep cloches, high pill boxes and turbans, too.

Most important, the high-rising shape of chapeaux for fall; also the sophisticated tilt they're taking.

The MORE-hat theme is being interpreted in huge rounded crowns and brims. The tilt trend? They're forward-rising with a stylish a la Garbo slouch.

* * * *

BUT, THE TRUE elegance for '62 lies in the lavish use of fur and furry fabrics.

Real furs (all kinds), usually repeat themselves in coat and suit trims. Fur-like fabrics (long-napped and beaver pelts) are also fancifully handled for furry flattery.

In a somewhat different mood: printed velvets, fine wool fabrics, fluffy mousses and soft-touch felts.

* * * *

UPLIFTED heights create an Egyptian effect patterned after Nefertiti, while high-wrapped turbans are reminiscent of Oriental potentates.

There's a lot of attention focused on manipulation of brims—as they roll up, flip over an eye, curve gracefully.

There's a happy return to flame red, bright peacock, orange and a variety of "wild rice" tints as well as the high fashion neutrals and pale tones.

And, there's use of two and three colors in harmonious combination for lots of head-on drama in new suave-shaped chapeaux, too.

* * * *

ACCENTING the new styles: leathers (bright and matte) and feathers (sweeping and demure) plus veils, scarves and jewels.

For casual and sportswear hats go smaller turning into caps—with and without visors—head-hugging turban types and jaunty berets.

Dirdls 'n Hipsters Both Hep

Sportswear this year freely combines beautifully made separates with that casualness and ease that is thought of the world over as "American."

The peg for the look is a turtle-necked jersey, borrowed from skiers who wear this cotton knit style under sweaters, parkas and shirts.

Variations have invaded the sweater market. All look especially good under the perennial ubiquitous "riding" jacket.

* * * *

RIDING clothes, in general, have made the biggest impression on fashion thinking. From hacking jacket to hunt coat to high boots and frontier pants, from English style to Western dude ranch, the mark on fall sportswear is undeniable.

Stock shirts, rat-catchers, ascot and scarf ties fill out a classic picture.

* * * *

SKIRTS, often with matching detailing, are receiving more attention than they have in years.

Graded pleats, side flares, all are important — along with a revival of that old favorite, the accordion pleated skirt.

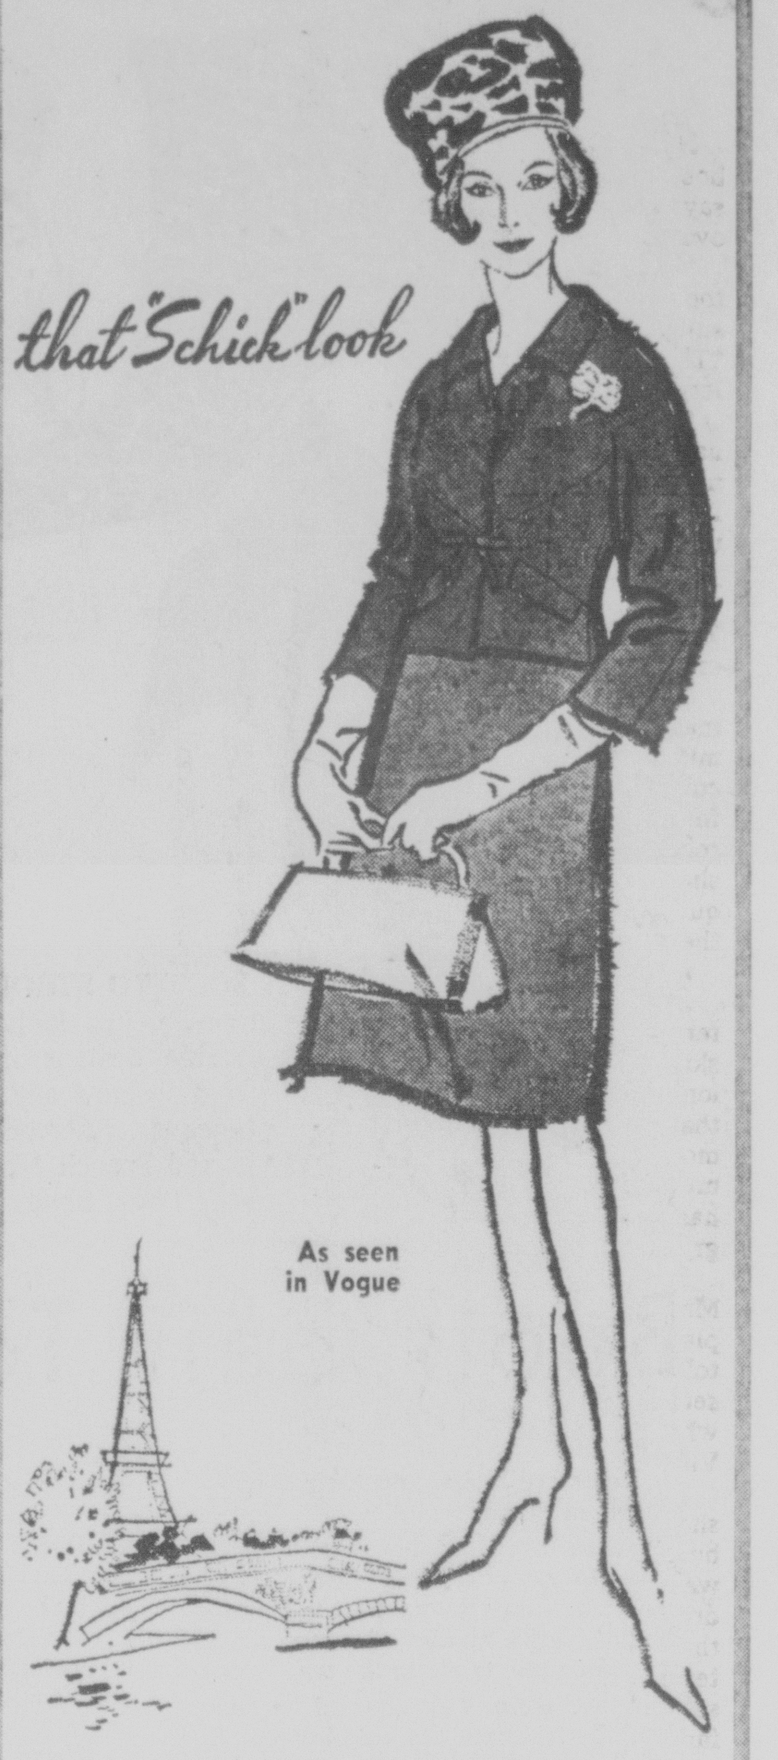
But most significant in an ultra-tailored season is return of the dirndl. Full shaped and worn with a fitted top—sometimes a wide belt—it heralds a return to prettiness.

* * * *

HIPSTERS continue into fall in both pants and skirts. Stretch woolens look important for hipslung pants, often utilizing horizontal stretch for comfort.

The hip-slung skirt looks strong for fall often in flannel with colorful, detachable suspenders which also can be worn on pants.

Real shirts have made a comeback in fall lines. Classic types with convertible, tab or button-down collars create news in men's wear shirtings such as tattersall checks, pin stripes and checked, herringbone and striped oxfords.



Schick's newest fashion created from an outstanding Paris original. The unfitted suit that gives all the curve of fit. Skirt slightly flared, jacket intricately detailed and closed with a flat bow. Pure wool tweed, from our fall collection. 95.00.

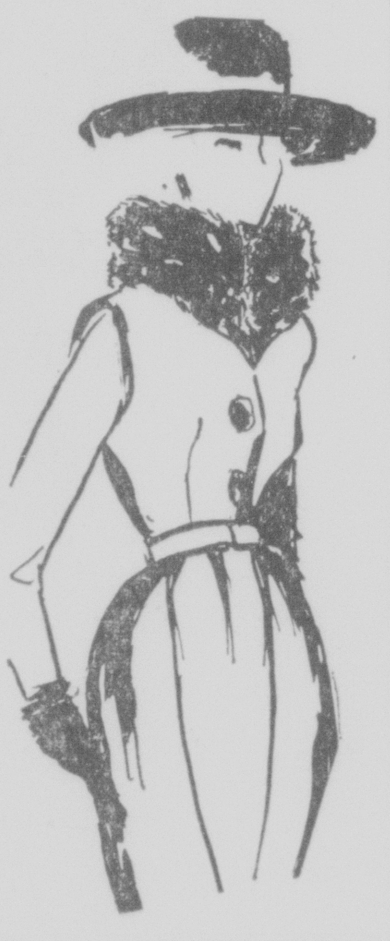
Chin-High Collars Give Rise to New Silhouette



Although summer styles were bare and breezy, this fall women will be modestly and stylishly wrapped up to their dimpled chins.

New tall, tall collars are sometimes leopard, more often Persian and occasionally white mink, or rough and textured on jackets topping swingy skirts.

* * * *

FOR A BREATHER, the collars usually fold back, often to reveal scarves tied ascot style over the throat. In Herbert Sondheim's collection the scarves are not an accessory; most often they come with sleek satin ascots.

The same slithery satin is used for blouses or for piping in contrast to jacket materials as coarse as a gravel road.

Don't Make Over-Makeup Mistake

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK—A woman boss of a cosmetics firm says American women are overdoing their makeup.

"Most of them are using too much, with harsh results," said Estee Lauder. "There isn't enough subtlety."

"I see no reason why a natural look in makeup cannot be considered beautiful," said Mrs. Lauder. "Fix up your face according to your SKIN, not according to what your neighbor is doing. The skin should have a creamy, luminous quality.

"Naturally, the shades in makeup should be determined by the individual's coloring. But I have often found that one shade of rouge (deep rose) and one shade of eyeshadow (turquoise) will do wonders for the average woman."

* * * *

MRS. LAUDER, who offers a 10-point program of skin care, boasts a creamy-looking, unlined complexion that is her own best testimonial. Yet the blonde, brown-eyed businesswoman has two grown sons and two grandchildren.

Born at Flushing, N. Y., Mrs. Lauder originally planned to become a dermatologist, following a pattern set by some of her uncles who were dermatologists in Vienna.

But love intervened when she met Joseph Lauder, a business analyst. And it wasn't until her two children were of school age that she resumed her interest in skin care. She started selling one of her family's all-in-one face formulas in the rear of a small, hairdressing shop in Manhattan.

"They say the way to spread the word is by telephone, telegraph and tell a woman," she said. "It was the last that worked for me. One customer told another."

* * * *

TODAY, MRS. LAUDER'S beauty products are sold in stores nationwide, in Canada and Europe. Her husband is boss of the production of the line. Son Leonard, 26, is a vice president, and chances are that son Roland, 18, will join the family organization when he finishes school.

This week, for her "remarkable achievements in the creation of dramatic, youth-restoring cosmetics," Mrs. Lauder was presented the Neiman-Marcus Award at the firm's 25th annual fashion exposition in Dallas.

In an interview, Mrs. Lauder suggested these 10 skin care rules which she says certainly have succeeded for her.

—No soap and water unless you have a problem skin. "I haven't washed my face since I was 12," she said. She recommends a pure, light-textured cleansing oil that lubricates as it removes soil and makeup.

—Always use a little protective cream on the face when in the tub or shower. "Steam creates a taut, drying effect," she said.

—"Stay out of the sun, or at least if you must sun, keep the dosage small. "Otherwise, you come up leather," she said.

—Any woman over 30 should use a facial mask to tone the skin and bring up the circulation. "I use one every day when I get home from the office," she said. "I call it my five-minute cocktail."

—Learn the art of applying makeup. Get advice from one of the hundreds of trained personnel which various manufacturers posted behind cosmetics counters. Mrs. Lauder alone has "several hundred" who have been schooled in cosmetics use.

—Never smooth rouge on the cheeks only. Put a faint touch on forehead, chin and ear lobes to bring the whole face in harmony.

—Select one fragrance and make it your signature.

—Always use fresh cotton pads to apply powder. Don't just powder your nose when touching up makeup. Take time to go into a powder room and go over the entire face.

—And remember that a good rule is, "whatever goes on the face should go on the neck too." This holds for powder, foundation, cleansing lotion and the creams.

Brides Walk in Elegance

Fall's bride will walk down the aisle in an elegant gown. After several seasons of simplicity in bridal fashions, brides are returning to more lavish gowns.

The elegant bride may choose a sheath, classic cut or sweeping fullness, but whatever her silhouette choice, her wedding dress will almost certainly be lavished with lace or embroidery.

Many gowns reflect a medieval splendour. The look is regal and trains carry out the 'court' motif.

MANY brides on a budget want gowns that can be worn after the wedding. For them, fashion interprets the elegant look in removable jackets or boleros over strapless gowns, or detachable trains or overskirts covering slimmer skirts.

Peau de soie and satin remain favorites for fall wedding gowns, but designers offer a variety of fabrics for the bride who prefers the unusual. One of the newest and most luxurious is cut velvet.

Looking and feeling elegant, fall's bride will truly be wearing the dress of her dreams.

What's News? Knees, No Less

Calling all coeds: You'll love the smart good looks of knee-high length textured hose in soft orlon or stretch nylon.

They look terrific with kiltie-skirts, body-skimming jumpers, bermudas and other casual wear.

Sea 'n Air Figure in Fall Fashion

Couturier designer Ceil Chapman went all out this season. She drew inspiration for her latest collection from the sea and the air.

A master at draping fabrics around curves and snipping daring necklines, she turned out one slinky dress that makes a lady look like a mermaid. The fabric slithers down the figure, leaving little walking room. The crepe creation is covered with metallic discs.

From the air, Miss Chapman plucked inspiration from a missile silhouette. This is seen in long formals hugging the anatomy to mid-thigh and then flargin out slightly at the side — like the flange at the base of a rocket.

White's Right

There will be lots of white around for fall and winter, strange as it may sound. But it isn't the true white of summer; it's the off-white, a slightly creamy shade.

A Beauty Plan for Coed Set

Teenagers, it's never too early to face your beauty problems. Good complexion care today means greater beauty tomorrow.

Here's a program for clearer skin recommended by dermatologists from a well-known beauty research center:

1. Keep your face, neck and hands scrupulously clean. One of the causes of acne is the plugging of pores by secretions of oil glands in the skin.

2. Keep your hands off your face. Constant touching of affected areas will increase possibility of infection.

3. Wash your hair at least once a week, more often if it's oily. Acne is aggravated by dandruff, and if you have dandruff, use a shampoo designed to control it.

4. Don't fret or bury your "bad spots" in heavy make-up. Follow a sensible plan of care and you're bound to see improvement. Medicated aids available today help achieve a clear,. healthy complexion.

5. Get plenty of fresh air and exercise. Spectator sports are fun—but getting in the game is better skin therapy.

6. Put aside that heavy powder and paint. It won't make you look better, it'll just multiply your problems. Investigate the medicated makeup sticks that cover and help heal your "secrets."

7. Get at least eight hours sleep each night.

8. Be sensible about eating a balanced diet. Choose high protein foods that help maintain health and energy.

9. Be well groomed. Maybe some gals think they can win the game by looking "beat," but it's not recommended for anyone who cannot boast a flawless skin and figure. In fact, even beautiful teen-agers soon realize it's a childish approach to feminine beauty.

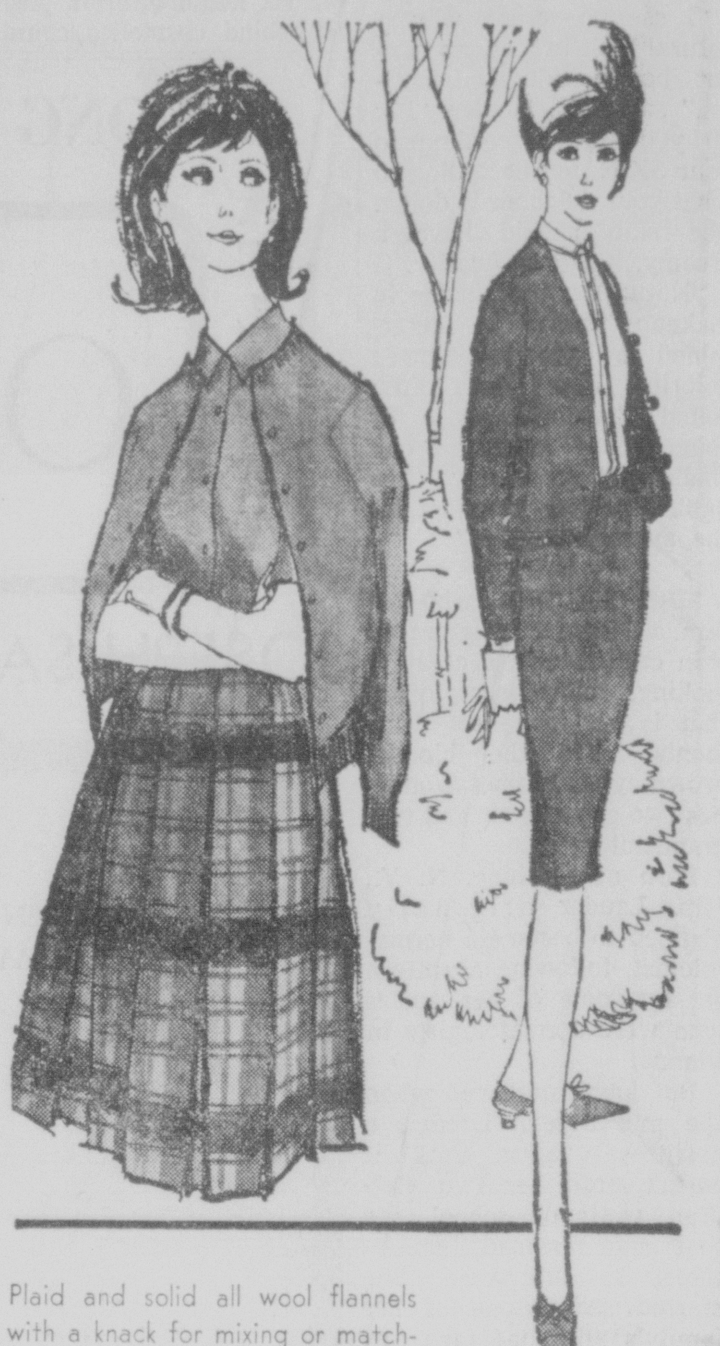
Dog Collar Back

At the House of Dior in Paris, the dog collar made a jewelry comeback in Oriental designs.

Fine Leather We're Having!

Leather is leading an extraordinary busy life. Pull-over blouses in doe skin look marvelously chic, as do exciting suede culottes.

Also, captivating, the squared-off suede stocking cap and the little snug black calf jacket.



Good Mixers

Plaid and solid all wool flannels with a knack for mixing or matching. The stitched down pleated skirt mixes well with the cardigan sweater in matching shades of Shetland type wool. Also slim skirt with lined seat worn with long sleeve, V-neck blazer jacket. Sizes 8 to 16.

Checkerboard Look: Fashion's New Move

The current move of the fashion world is at the checkerboard.

Rarely has the garment industry produced so many squares—in fabric pattern, that is.

Many of the fall and winter spongy, but featherweight tweeds, come in the traditional black and white. Also in the traditional size of checkerboard squares.

But in other instances, the squares produce a dazzle of black and white or other combinations with their two, three and even four-inch measurements.

Other color combinations are red and navy, yellow and black, brown and black, beige and black, green and black and green and red.

Fashion Intrigue: Mata Hari Style

A spy glass view of new fall-winter fashions reveal that the style world's newest fad is the cloak without the dagger.

There's a whole new cover-up trend, for daytime, which includes trench coats done in fabrics lush enough to make gabardine look seedy ... and collars shaped up so high around the throat and chin, they nearly cloak identity of the wearer.

About the only thing missing from the season's fashion spy thriller is Mata Hari herself — and in true life, this femme fatale never ran around in a trench coat anyway. That was for movie heroines who portrayed her life story.

* * * *

BUT EVERY WAY you turn in fashion this fall, there are references to the Mata Hari influence.

Sometimes it's called the muffled look ... other times "conspiracy in chic." In many instances, collars are of fur—black or brown Persian, mink or nutria—set on nubby tweeds or smooth wools.

In the Arthur Jablow collection, costumes consist of car-coat length jackets, plus skinny skirts, plus tunic length over-blouses (belted), finished off with a strip of fur tucket in at the throat. Yes, go ahead — combine mink and tweed.

Makes Short Story Long

To make a long story short, the gown that's long is going strong—especially with teenage girls.

Stimulated by Jacqueline Kennedy's beautiful long gowns, as well as requirements for proms and graduations, the new teen trend is for floor-sweeping formals.

To keep up with demand, manufacturers are stepping up production of longer versions of the ball gown. By Christmas, they predict, teens will turn belles in billowing, long formals.

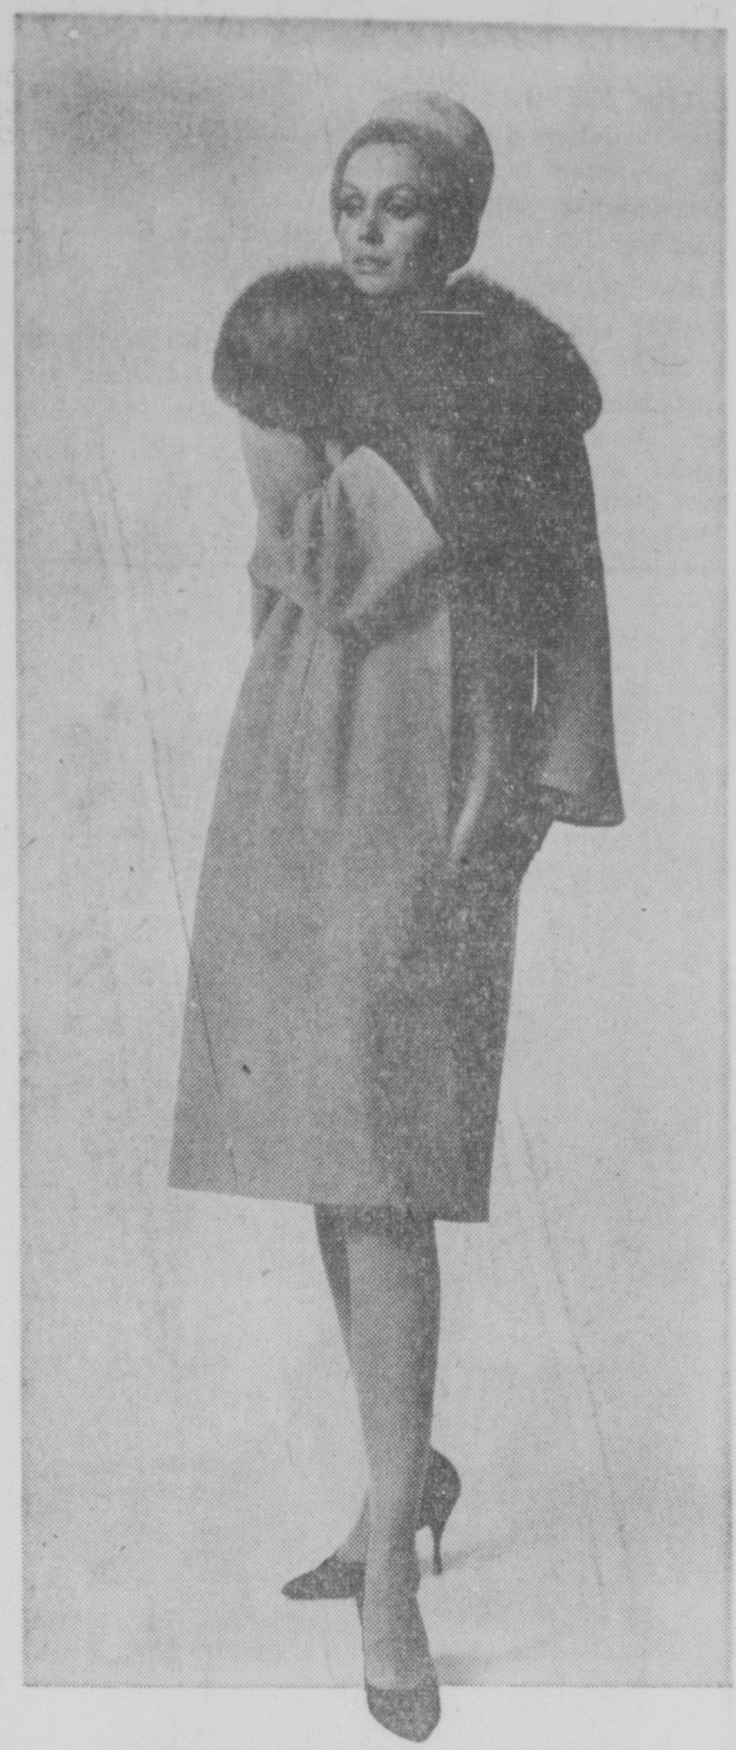
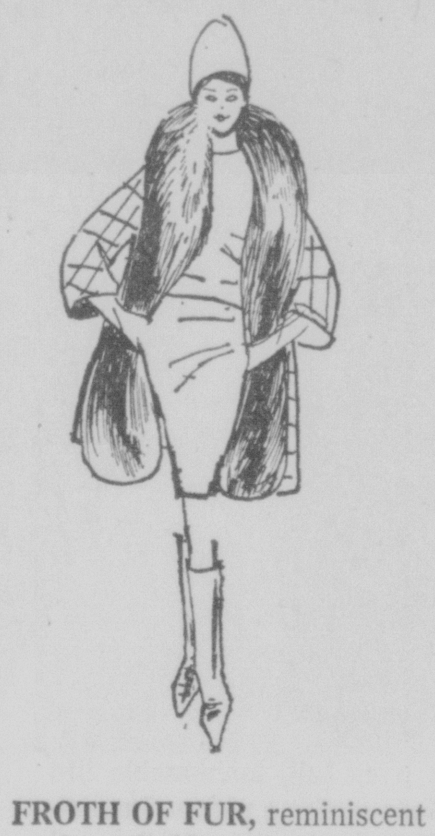
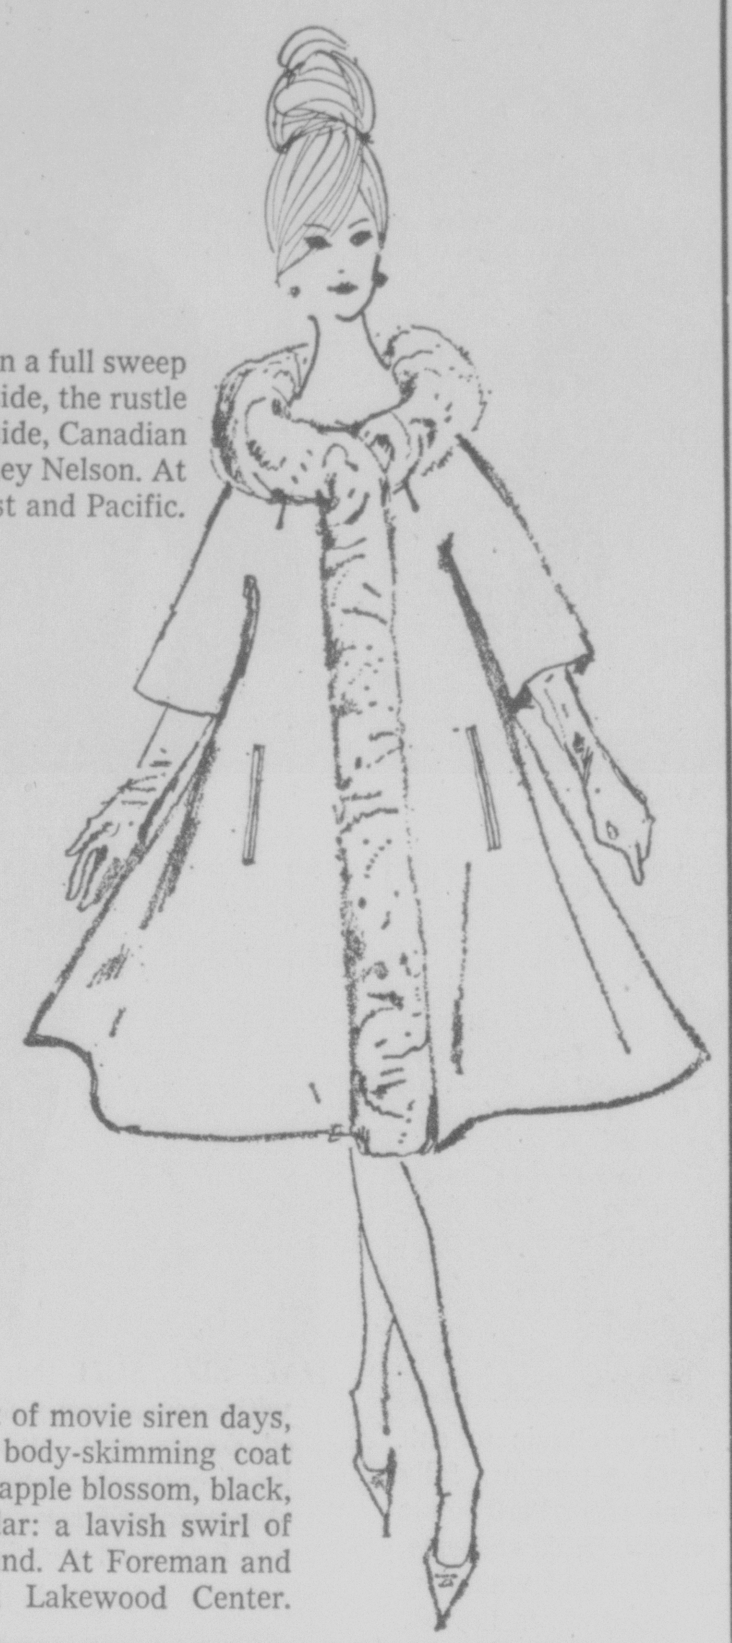
Pre-Fured For Fall





OYSTER WHITE . . . elegance in a full sweep of virgin wool. Inside, the rustle of silk taffeta. Outside, Canadian beaver trim. By Stanley Nelson. At Columbia, First and Pacific.



FROTH OF FUR, reminiscent of movie siren days, gives fashion wrap-up to body-skimming coat in shades of wild rice, pale apple blossom, black, red, soft neutrals. The collar: a lavish swirl of natural blue fox from Poland. At Foreman and Clark, 144 Pine Ave., and Lakewood Center.

Trench Coat Tops for '62

The trench coat silhouette has broken through fashion's front lines, gaining a toehold in medium-priced ranks and in the rarified atmosphere of clothes costing up to $2,700 per.

In the higher-priced brackets are trench coats of Alaskan seal, gold lame with casual notched collar and wide belt, also some with sable collar.

* * * *

OTHER TRENCH coats are done in lush imported mohairs. Still others in gabardines and cottons.

Especially unusual: Maurice Rentner's raincoat in a sleek-looking blend of rayon, silk and wool that looks for all the world like snakeskin.

The New Look Is the 'You Look'

Where there's smoke, there's fire in a woman's eyes!

This season soft smoke shades emerge as the most popular tones to shadow the lids, color the lashes and tint the brows.

But shades-of-smoke makers suggest that this "New Look" be the "You Look"—that each damsel dabble with hazy hues that are most flattering to her.

* * * *

SHADOW, for example, should no longer be one defined color. It's now a misty cascade that covers the lids in a smokey blue or green that's exclusively your tone.

To make this possible, one cosmetic house is offering a unique fluid eye shadow that simply floats across the lids, never smears nor fades.

Lid-liner too, has a softer, more muted smoky dimension this fall. To apply, follow your natural eye shape at the very root of the lashes. Only extend a line slightly beyond the corner of the eye in exactly the same direction.

In other words, not a harsh, obvious stroke—simply a cloud-soft line. Select a blue, green or purple hue as the base lid-liner—then draw a second heavier line in a heathery dawn grey or burnished brown (whichever suits you best).

* * * *

ANOTHER "fringe benefit" of the misty look: lashes lavished with "controlled" color.

Mascara comes in clouds of colors. We suggest jet ebony or briar brown (ideal with smoky grey and brown liners), sparked by deep blue night, foresty greens or blue-green tones. These hues will merely add subtle tone to the flattering browns and blacks.

In shadow, liner and mascara—experiment and mix-match until you find the most glamorous, yet soft combinations for you.

Wool's a Long Story

The wool dress has gone to great lengths to make a place for itself in the fall fashion picture.

Examples: Donald Brooks' dramatic black and white wool evening dress . . . also a tusk white ivory one that reaches to the collar bone in front, bares shoulders and back, then becomes ever wider until it ends in a great circle at the hem.

A black one—with dippy v-neck and ditto back—follows the same skirt silhouette as that of the white.

DETACHABLE SCARF . . . fall's fashion extra: the look-completing, perfecting touch on suits, coats, dresses . . . here the fashion bonus for a three-piece imported knit in charcoal gray with black trim. Harris aire, 4260 Atlantic Ave.

A TOUCH OF MINK . . . in a classic to suit Milady. In all-worsted wool pettipoint, fully lined, with T. M. Emba mink trim. Pertly chic when topped with mink pillbox. In dawn beige, cerulean gray, Wedgewood blue and white, by Jack Bloom. At Desmond's, Broadway at Locust.

HALF-SIZE SUIT that lives full, fashionable life with ease, expertly done in three pieces. Imported double knit, styled along season's "spare" look, costume features Chanel jacket, cap-sleeved overblouse, slim skirt. Modern Woman, 436 Pine Ave. and 5243 Hazelbrook, Lakewood.

Spats From Out of Past

Take the word "past," give the letters a twist and, lo, you have "spats," that over-the-shoe, shin-climbing boot top.

For daytime they're simple and tailored; for evening they go as resplendent as a queen's jewel box. A narrow strap fits under the shoe and the spat climbs as high as you want it to.

Whether plain or fancy, spats are a real fun footnote for fall.

Silk Touch

If you can have just one evening gown in your wardrobe this fall, make it the short black silk chiffon. Preferably with little cap sleeves so that it can go out to dinner.

Miss Thin—You, Too, Can Be Curvy

If you are reed thin, not merely slender, take a tip from a girl who keeps this secret so well that even her best friends think she's curvy.

"Hiding boniness is not easy though," advises Mary, a local teen-ager who has learned a number of deceptive tricks worth passing on. "You've got to work at it in everything you do. Even if you are away at school, you can disguise skinniness by wearing long, loose nightgowns instead of tight pajamas."

* * * *

MARY PINPOINTED these mistakes made by too-thin girls:

1. Feeling obligated to dress like other girls, they wear shorts that reveal bony knees and matchstick thighs.

2. They choose unbecoming hairstyles such as pony tail which just reveals the thinness of the face, and a center part that accentuates a long nose. They wear hair in long strings, making their faces look even shallower.

A hairdo that widens the forehead and shortens and rounds the face features bangs that start high and extend past the temples on the forehead. Deep wave coiffures are good too because they soften the features as they fill out the face, especially when a little height is at the forehead.

* * * *

THE NEW-STYLE clothes are right for even just-slender types look well-padded in them, Mary points out.

"Snatch up plaid skirts and jackets and the enormous bulky sweaters. Bright-patterned wools give the illusion of weight for dress-up occasions. Avoid sheath dresses and even the jumper, although a heavy shirt or sweater worn under a jumper helps fill it out.

When choosing a full skirt make sure the waist is gathered, tucked or pleated so that it doesn't point up your little midriff by contrast."

* * * *

WEAR HEAVY cable-stitch or ribbed socks and heavy mesh nylons for dress-up occasions. Hemlines should be longer. Avoid silky clinging materials, she says. High necklines cover bony necks.

Mary likes to wear big heavy jewelry around her neck and wide bracelets on her arms. She likes big button-type earrings for dress-up occasions and has a "fat" ring on her finger.

What tricks did Mary use in summer to disguise her thinness?

"I joined a boating group on purpose, so I'd have a good excuse for wearing duck pants. They make you look heavier. I wore a heavy cotton knit shirt that I rolled up in a wide cuff just below my elbow. On a real hot day I'd wear a pleated white pique skirt. Boys never care if you don't wear shorts."

Color Cover-ups

Milady will be covered in color this fall, often in bright primary colors and deepened shades — bright reds, blues, greens and yellows.

The contrasts: olive-greens, chocolate browns, rusts, winter navy, grey and black.

TWO WAYS '62 . . . knit and check, looks that are fashionably solvent for fall. Three pieces and Chanel styling, it comes in combinations of blue-gray, green-brown. By Sacony, exclusively for Haggarty's 5029 Hazelbrook Ave., Lakewood.

Buttons 'n Zippers Climatize Small-Fry

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

Nothing but kids change faster than the weather.

Thus, both parents who must keep their children appropriately dressed, and manufacturers whose business it is to provide their clothes have had their problems.

But today these seem to have been licked by the old-fashioned button hole and button and the newfangled zipper.

* * * *

THESE NOW switch a garment from hot to cool quicker than a water faucet. In so doing, they eliminate the need for a raft of coats, suits and jackets in various weights in the kids' clothes closets.

A mannish-style trench coat designed for little men by Charles Sheldon is an example. The waterproof poplin fabric does no more than shed inclemency during the warm fall days when no more than that is required of it.

Still, when the thermometer plunges, a lad can warm up his raincoat in a hurry, and by himself, by buttoning in its orlon pile lining. It's warm, not bulky, and doesn't weight his little shoulders down. Best of all, it beats trying to force an ordinanry raincoat over a stubborn winter coat.

* * * *

BOYS' JACKETS are convertible too and most also have zippered, or button-on hoods that stay put in their closets until red ears demand them.

Even boys caps change with the seasons. To look at some Eton-style ones with their tiny bills, you'd never guess that under the crown are wool-like flaps that drop down cosily around the ears as the mercury drops.

Avoid Gestures

You spoil your attractive appearance when you fidget with your hands. Nervous gestures, such as twisting your hair and patting your face will mar your coiffure and complexion and are not pretty to watch.

Natural Look

Don't forget to apply foundation make-up beyond the chin and jawline to complete the natural look. Make-up should be blended into your natural skin tone slightly below the jawline and under the ears.

IT'S THE LAST WORD

Snippet Is Mobile in Chiffon Souffle

Call them designers, couturiers or modistes — the nation's fashion trendsetters are never at a loss for words when it comes to describing their "wears."

In constant use are such terms as understated elegance and the little nothing dress.

The first refers to a woman's ability to dress like a million but not look as if she's spending all that dough.

As for the little nothing dress, Mrs. John F. Kennedy wears it constantly — sleeveless, narrow silhouette. No trim, no clutter.

* * * *

DESIGNERS, each season, get carried away with names for their favorite silhouettes.

New this year is the snippet, used to describe a two-piece look to a one-piece dress . . . and the missile, which is a long formal hugging the figure to the knee, then flared out to the hem, like the flanges on a rocket.

Skirts are never flared in the parlance of garment showrooms. They're mobile. Wool never is sheer; it's a chiffon souffle.

Mesh is not simply lightweight; it's a zephyr. Taffeta is whispering silk. Long or short formals in the overall metallic embroideries are not simply jewelled dresses; they're Maharanees.

* * * *

BUT IT'S in describing colors that the industry gets furthest carried away.

This year, blank is onyx. Gray is shadow. A dull copper is whiskey. Brown is mahogany. Emerald is Picasso green.

Orange red is red wing and white now is white jade.

All this re-naming of colors once led Kenneth Collins, the late columnist of Women's Wear Daily, to some comments on color nonsense — and to include a letter he'd received from a reader in Rome, Ga. Mrs. McDill M. Gassman had enclosed this poetic bit:

"There was a day when grey was grey
"And black 'tis said was black;
"And white was white—
or so they say,
"But that was some years back.
"Now grey is dingy,
drab or DUN
"And black is SMEAR or sable,
"Or even soot—or sometimes—SLOE
"(Believe this if you're able).
"Now, white is never simply white—
"(Right here my senses quivver!)
"For white is pearl or, help my soul,
"It's even—CHICKEN LIVER."

Wool's Cool, Ma'am, for Evening

It'll be wool, wool, wool, wool in the cool,cool,cool of the evening this fall and winter.

The unconventional use of sheer wools for formal -apparel shows throughout most fall collections.

Satin is teamed with pale tweeds in evening suits. Wools show up as slinky, floor-length evening gowns. And floral brocades line tweed coats or other bulky woolens and top formal dresses repeating the brocades.

* * * *

EXAMPLES: Monte Sano and Pruzan does floor-length formals sculpturing the body in chiffon weight woolens in black or Egyptian clay, a reddish brown hue.

Bill Blass, designer at Maurice Rentner, uses souffle wools for long formals with bared backs and halter or scoop-front necks.

Luis Estevez does sheer wool sheaths with chiffon toppings to cover otherwise bare shoulders.

And Marquise does a show stopper in a Kelly-green coat whose surface looks deep-piled as an unshorn sheep. It tops a white satin formal gown, the satin repeated in the coat lining.

* * * *

BEN ZUCKERMAN'S favorite combinations for theater or dinner suits are tweeds or other bulky wools combined with silk moire or shadow-printed brocades in pale blues, pinks and yellows on white background.

Donald Brooks at Townley has a group of long, flowing formals in sheer wools. They're bias cut and come either in black or "tusk white," a new name for ivory after Jackie Kennedy's trip to India.

No Crack, No Creak, All Gleam

Newest thing afoot for fall is the gleam of patent.

The reason they're in season: they're a new variety made by man and they won't crack in cold weather.

In fact, they have none of the season problems of patents you've always known, mostly because this patent isn't leather—it's a DuPont material.

* * * *

IT WON'T stretch, peel or chip, but will keep its shine without being shined, can be cleaned with mild soap and water!

Quite appropriately, it's called "Pattina."

Not just a casual innovation, it's the result of some 14 years of experimentation.

You'll find it in boots, spectators, flats and dress shoes—and in colors that are themselves a miracle.

Little Cowpokes Spur New Look

Cowboy clothes have really hit their stride in children's wear this season.

The look is rugged, relaxed and far-reaching. There are hip-slung pants, sheriffs' vests, wrap-around skirts, cowboy scarfs and frontier shirts. Suspenders, saddle stitching, brassy brads, metal and leather buckles are trimmings.

Women's Wear Daily notes that rugged fabrics figure importantly in the Western look, along with calico and patchwork prints.

No Wonder It's 'Touch' of Mink!

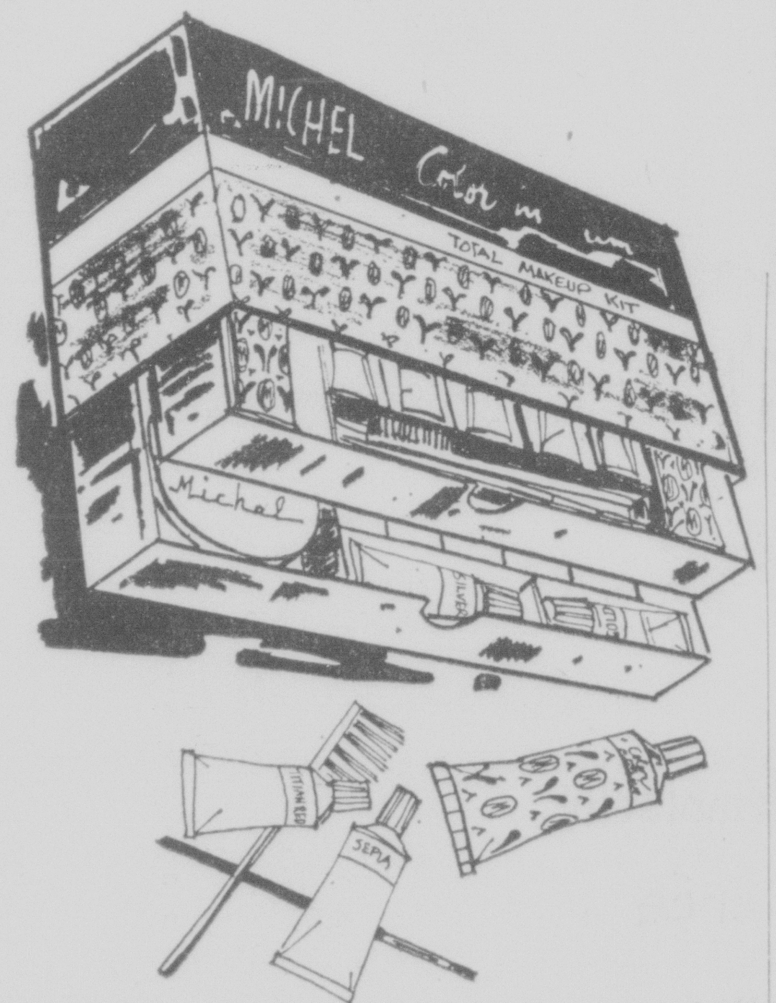
Ever wonder why that full-length mink coat or the status-symbol mink stole are so expensive? Here are some good reasons—along with other statistics about that much sought-after fur:

—60 to 85 pelts make a full-length mink coat; 17 pelts make a mink stole.

— Mutation minks come in 12 shades and 56 hues, ranging from snow white to gun metal gray.

—3.5 million pelts were sold last year by the ranchers of mutation mink. The most expensive: a mink pelt described as early morning light, a color that's a mixture of beige and blue. The prize: $400 a pelt. A coat of such pelts would cost better than $24,000!

—One in every 166 women in today's economy can afford a mink wrap or coat.



A PORTRAIT OF YOU . . . by you, to fit YOU in any season, any mood, any ensemble. Michel's color-in-creme kit of blended beauty crystals and satin moisturizers is a totally new concept in make-up:- primers, toners, tinters and outliners all have one base. Result: they can be applied to face as foundation; cheeks for highlights; eyes for intriguing shadows; to lashes, brows and lids for definition. They flow on evenly, blend beautifully, leaving smooth, unbroken complexion. At Egyptian Pharmacy (in artist's kit or separately), Second and Nieto Streets.

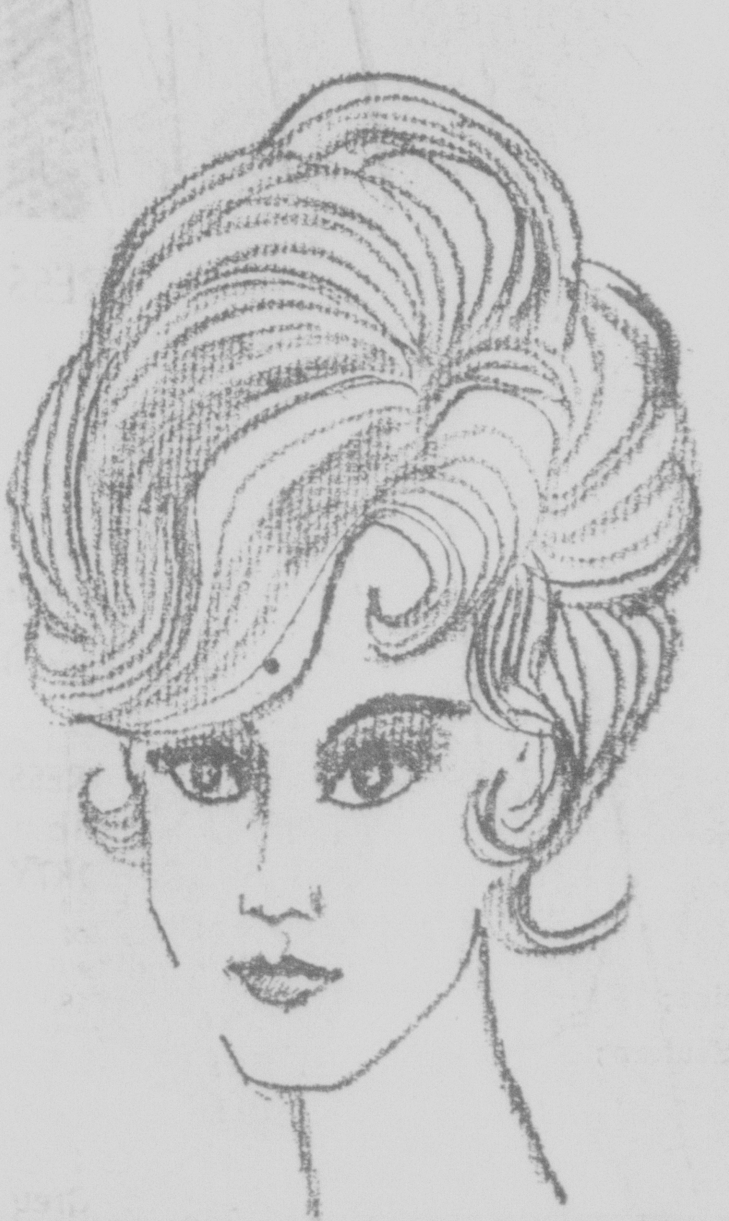
CREAM OF CROPPED JACKETS, a perfect show-off for the cinch of a belt (so good this year), the swish of a skirt, here plaided in contrasts of camel and black. From Walker's, Fourth Street and Pine Avenue.

IMPORTED FROM SPAIN, a three-strand choker with matching two-strand bracelet of simulated pearls by Marjorca. The gem of it all: they combine to make an opera-length necklace. Sterling silver clasps are set with rhinestones and pearls. At. C. C. Lewis, 333 Pine Ave.



SLEEK SWEEP . . . Elegant hairdo has shiny sweep of bangs across forehead, side part, silky lines brushed from behind ears. Styled at Staber's of Beauty, Locust Avenue and Eighth St.

COLLARS, WIDE AND FULL, or muffled close to throat, a la Mata Hari, give new intrigue to fur fashions. Here, huge cape collar rides high or hugs shoulders on mink jacket of natural EMBA AUTUMN HAZE. Other 1962isms: bloused waist, higher-than-wrist sleeves. At Furs by David, 203 E. Third St., downtown Long Beach.

Set-Ins Are 'In'

The new spare shape in fashion presents many slim-shouldered silhouettes with long, narrow set-in sleeves. In some instances, sleeves have more than a hint of "leg o'mutton" styling.

Counterpoint to the set-in trend (also spare-looking) are dolman-effect sleeves—slope-shouldered, with underarm width.

Black Is Back

Back again is that old-time girl-watcher's delight—the bosom-accenting black crepe dress.

The 1962 model includes versions with long sleeves, portrait neckline, exposed backs — and beady treatments adding glitter.

Many are the all-purpose styles that can be dressed up or down, as suits the occasion.

Panties Double as Slip

Petticoats that are panties—and vica versa: that's the newest undercover story for fall.

Many are full-blown, to-the-knee panties in two weights of nylon tricot that, together, give a bouffant look to underline the full A-line skirts of many after-five fashions.

Pettipoints, the long slender pantie with the half-slip look, wheel freely into fall in rich colors and Persian-inspired prints.

CAMEL HAIR with satin in globe-trotting suit that adapts to a world of activities—from luncheon in Paris to sightseeing in Rome. All line and understatement, two-part costume is punctuated only by bound pockets. By Couture West of California; at Chrysteen's, 4518 Atlantic Ave.

Look Chic-Shape; Weather or Not

Sunny California, we all know, has few rainy days.

But weather or not, modern rain 'n shine coats have become an important item in every woman's fall wardrobe — whether she lives East, West, North or South.

Women everywhere love their casual look, light weight and adaptability. Weather coats have the happy faculty for looking as smart over dresses and suits as they do over shorts and skirts.

They go to market, to work, to play — anywhere, any day.

* * * *

GENERALLY speaking, weather coats come in two major groups—one, the all-weather, rain or shine coat; the other, the practically car and storm coat.

In styling, the newer coats are narrow in silhouette, often with a modified swing in the back. They tend away from the exaggerated widths or extreme slim lines of past seasons. Essentially, they're classically simple.

Extremely fabric conscious, the new styles come in a variety of menswear plaids, tackle twills, poplins and corduroys.

* * * *

SOFT TONES color the scene, especially in warm brown hues, pale beiges, taupes and other paled neutrals. There are still lots of smart blacks around — and black and brown often combine in plaids and checked fabrics. Soft greens, bright reds and some olives are also favorite colors.

Flattering collars of pile, raccoon, black fox and alpaca are handsome fashion trims.

Too pretty to save for a rainy day, 1962 styles reflect new trends. There's the polo coat, the trench coat and the revived polo coat — all interpreted in fabrics designed to withstand the weather, be it rain or shine.

Middies Go Mighty Chic

The middy has graduated fashion cum laude.

Now, visibly so chic, it's the new, very-in-the-know way to look. Some come with hoods, some with their own middy - matching scarves.

Either way, buttoned or in a sleek stretch of pullover, they give impact-plus to straight skirt or dress.

Today's Expectant Mother Waits in Latest Styles

One was when an expectant mother spent her days in waiting looking like a prototype of Mother Hubbard.

Today, she can be fashionable in clothes designed along the latest style trends.

Like this season. Maternity fashions run the gamut from free-flowing shifts to easy maternity suits, all artfully designed to camouflage milady's figure problems.

* * * *

MATERNITY sportswear includes Western look suspender skirts and cowboy shirts. The current Indian influence appears in rajah tunics paired with pants.

And from Paris comes fashion's latest love, the pea jacket, as well as the brilliantly printed French smock.

After-five maternity fashions, creating a flattering illusion of slenderness, include silk chiffons with floating panels, capelets or ruffles, lavishly embroidered sari-influenced dresses and under-stated velvets.

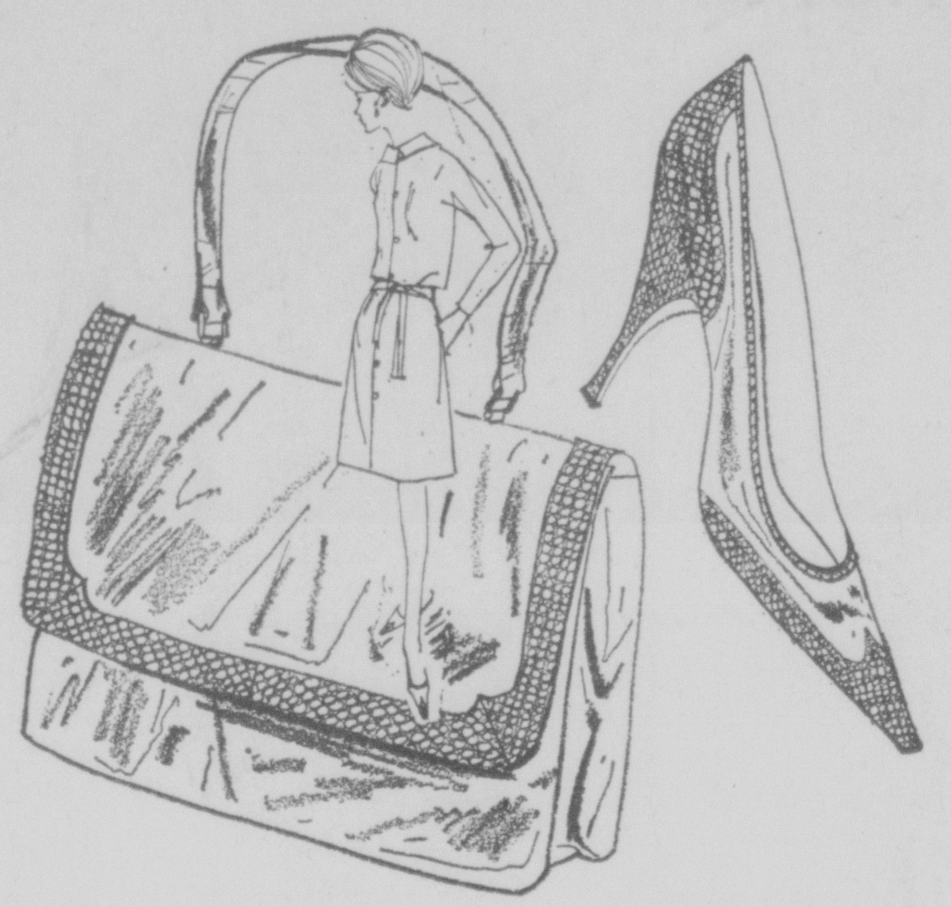
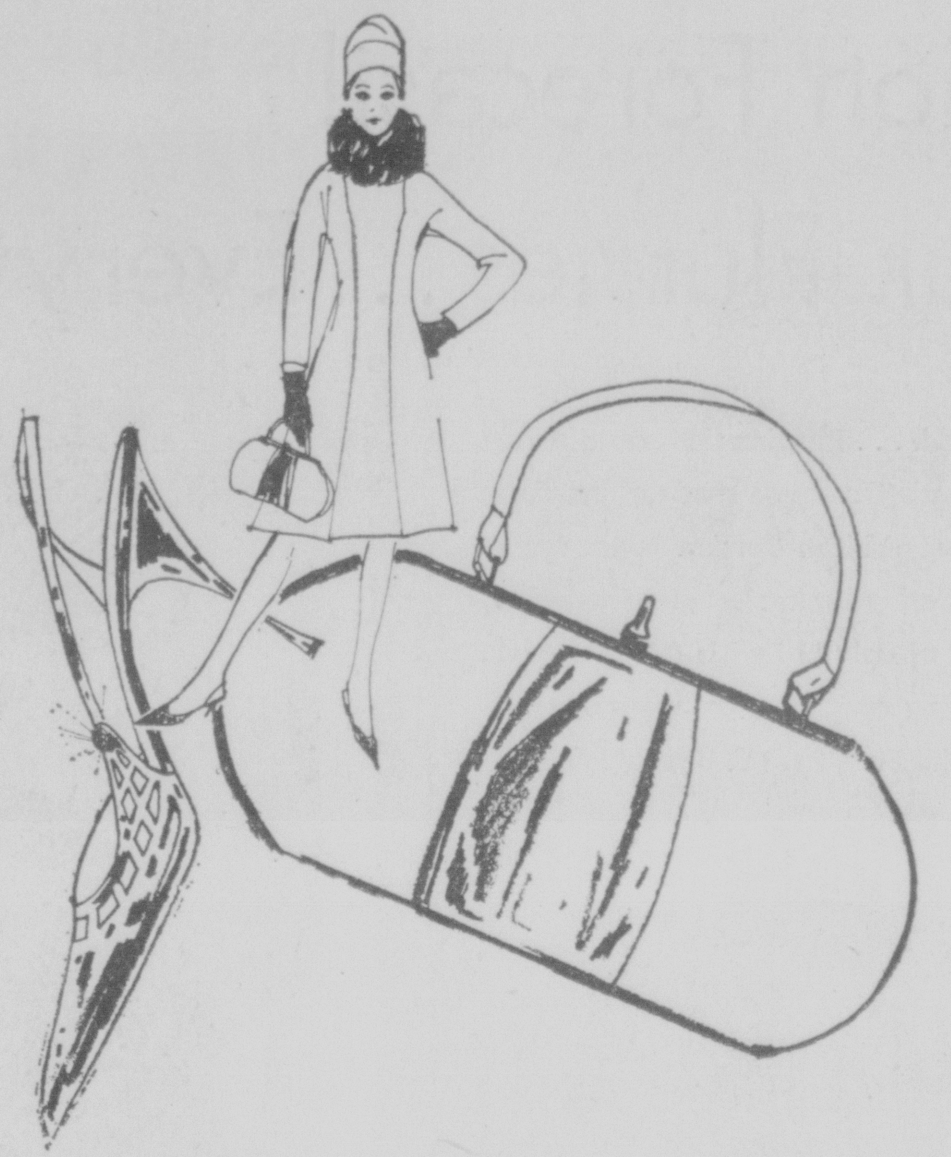
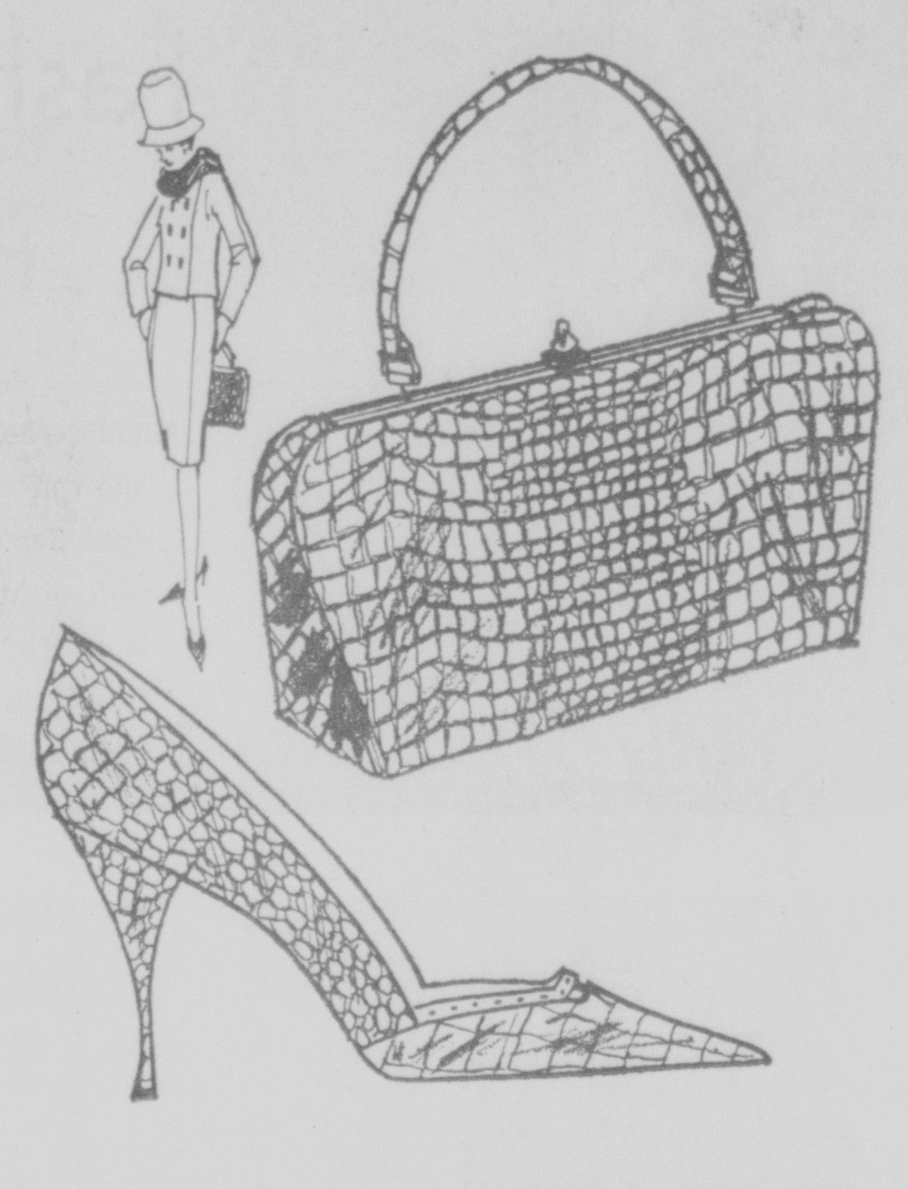
Style Is Taking a Shine; To Reptiles and Patents





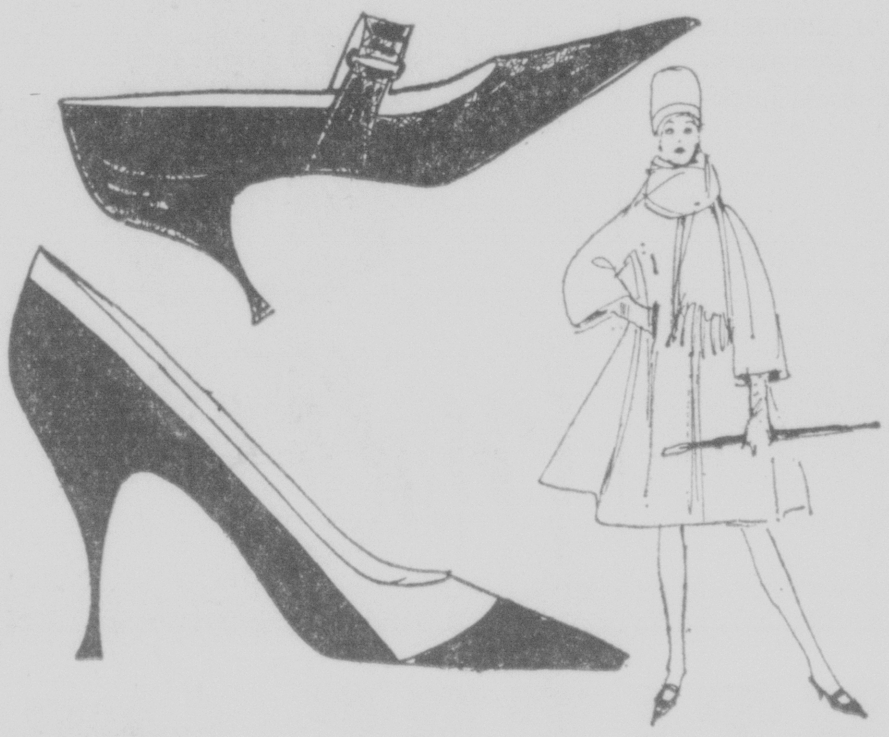


ARISTOCRATIC STANDING . . . goes spectator in genuine Calcutta lizard and diamond jubilee patent. Tailored for foot flattery in black, brown and nectar (neutral beige), with handsome handbag to match. At I. Miller Guild House, 507 E. Ocean Blvd., in downtown Long Beach.

THE SLING'S THE THING . . . here styled by Mademoiselle, sleekly slung in subtle nectar, lacy design on toes; comes in season's latest Pattina fabric (won't crack, just gleams). Go-with, elegant handbag. Made especially for Jacob's Shoes, 5016 E. Second St., Belmont Shore.

ON A FEMININE FOOTING . . . "Patagator" nude pump by Valentine. Grained to look like richest reptile: fine French calf, gleaming patent leather finish, in black and brown with bag to match. Also, in smart black snipped toe sling pump. Innes, 5030 Pepperwood Ave., Lakewood Center.

Yes, Please, Just Give Me That New Soft Shoe



Fashion Walks on Many Heels

GROUND-FLOOR STORY: well-heeled look calls for heels both high and low. Pump by Mister L comes high in shades of rum, benedictine and brandy; otter, green olive and tobasco red. Matching handbag. Medium-heeled pump by Guanti; soft-as-a-glove creation in gray on black calf. At Mandel's, 301 Pine Ave., and Lakewood Center.

This fall and winter, shoes are doing the light—and bright—fantastic.

After years of the sharp toe and the high—even sharper—heel, there's a totally new shoe silhouette afoot.

Reason for the lightfooted approach: the young look in fashion.

This calls for lowered heels and softly rounded or oval toes to balance off short and, often flaring, skirts.

* * * *

THERE ARE three new shoe shapes for fall: the oval, the crescent and the squared-off toe. (The latter, seen in recent seasons, remains strong for fall.)

Keeping in stride with these toe shapes are new lowered heels. They'll be on the go anywhere and everywhere this season: city, suburbs and in the country.

Newest heel: one set directly under the back of the shoe. (This is translation of a heel style popular in Europe for many years.)

Stacked versions give a well-heeled look to everything from afternoon shoes to theater pumps.

Even the highest heels are much lower than those of a few seasons back . . . and, for the most part, they're reserve for afternoon and evening wear.

* * * *

AND, IN CASE you haven't heard the big toot, the newest thing afoot is the boot. This dashing new shoe fashion, direct from gay Paree, isn't just for bad days but for fair days and for evening, too.

They're done in leather, fur and satin; in every heel height and style. They come in calf, leopard, lizard and brocade.

* * * *

AND FASHION has taken a new shine to patents. The season barrier is broken . . . and this season fashionable femmes will be wearing patent leather pumps, walking shoes and spectators into fall and winter.

Once an exclusive feature of the spring scene, gleaming patent shoes are making their debut as daytime dresswear—thanks to recent technological improvements in leather-making.

The new patent now has built-in resistance to extremes of weather and temperature, making it a natural addition to the fall shoe wardrobe.

Extra bonus: They have a built-in shine. So with patents you can polish off another chore and step out in style!

News in Hosiery: They Run Less OR Are Runless

Runless . . . non-run . . . run-resistant!

These terms, applied to an increasing variety of stockings, highlight hosiery news for fall.

Meshy in construction, the wonder stockings are said not to run in normal wear . . . some are even accompanied by guarantees against that age-old hosiery affliction—runs.

Early-in-use tests indicate that, while the stockings may not be indestructible, they will, at the least, run less and have longer wearing qualities than stockings of conventional construction.

RUN-RESISTANT features apply to the body of the body of the stocking—not to heels, toes or welts.

Since the ne whosiery is intended primarily for casual daytime wear, there is also a wealth of fashion news in colors and textures for dress.

Color Goes Undercover

Color is undercover news for fashionable ladies this fall.

Predominate in new foundations are the brown tones, from chocolate to deep gold and blond; the blues, from medium to sapphire and bright aqua; the reds, with emphasis on corals and soft vibrant pink.

To these are added a number of autumn prints, paisleys and floral motifs.

Shades of Today--Shadow To Match Your Chapeau

The latest thing in hattery flattery is to match your eye shadow to — not the color of your eyes, but—the color of your hat.

For instance, if you have a blue hat, a slight shading of the same blue on your eyelids makes your orbs seem larger and brighter.

Also: If your hat has a flirtatious brim, you can use more eye makeup than usual to counteract the slight shading of the brim.

* * * *

SINCE THE HAT is a frame for your face, make sure you complete the picture with makeup base and lipstick that complement the chapeau.

Example: If you've bought a charming gold roller to go with your fall suit, get the most flattery out of its rich color by pointing it up with an orange-toned lipstick and golden-toned base and powder.

And here's a hat hint: Remember the shape of your face and your height when buying a new hat. Its silhouette should balance your figure properly and add symmetry to the shape of your face.

Examples: height for a round face, width for a long face, back-dipped brim for a narrow chin.

Pockets--From Head to Foot!

Pockets, haphazardly or thoughtfully placed, are big sportswear news. Bonnie Cashin puts "foot" pockets at the bottom of wooly plaid car robes.

Sweaters for bicyclers have pockets at the shoulder blades so that the rider can carry his lunch there.

And teen-agers are sewing crazy patch pockets to the knees of their dungarees.

A practical idea used this season by Donald Brooks of Townley is a floor-length evening gown with a knee-length tunic.

The tunic can be worn by itself as a cocktail dress or with the floor-length skirt for formal occasions.

THE NATION'S UPS AND DOWNS

As Goes the Stock Market, So Goes Milady's Coiffure

CASUALLY COIFFED . . . Today's natural mood is reflected in sleeker-lined hair-style; has deep, cheek-caressing waves and an alluring swoop of polished hair across forehead. At Crowning Glory, 251 E. Fifth St., Long Beach.

The state of the nation and the state of a woman's hair have much in common. They go up or down together.

The hair-raising conclusion that business curves and hair styles react similarly comes from researchers of a nationally known beauty chain.

Based on hair style trends for winter—smoothed over a network of back-combed, raised fullness — the researchers forecast a stabilized market for 1962-63.

The forecast indicates the stock market won't rally to the heights it reached in December, 1961, when coiffures reached a peak of bouffantry. Nor will it plunge to the depths of 1933, then hte coifs were painfully close to the head.

The '62-'63 market forecast will hold, if the correlations of the past continue, said Arthur Caplin, director of marketing for Helene Curtis, in an interview.

* * * *

WE POINTED out to Caplan that style-setting models and a lot of other chic women have deserted the bouffant "do" for hair almost plastered to the head. This would indicate a declining stick market.

Yes, if the flat coiffures caught on nationwide, said Caplin. But indications are they will not.

"We see a strong spanish influence," said Caplin, "with still plenty of fullness and fluff to the hair."

THE RESEARCHERS' study of curves and curls begins at the turn of the century and shows hair styles through panics, recessions, the great depression and good times.

Start with the panic of 1907-1908, set off by failure of the Knickerbocker Trust Co. of New York. Hair went to a new low from the plush and piled-high luxuriance of the Gibson Girl look. The 1907-8 style was close to the head, stressing downward curves with a false chignon at the nape of the neck.

Then, with the first World War and the rally in the economy, came a revolution in coiffures — high, decorative, puffy, often many-curled creations loosely patterned after the ceremonial coiffures of oriental women.

* * * *

AFTER WORLD WAR I, business and hair curves remained on the upbeat until 1921 and a sharp decline. Hair began to be worn straight or softly waved, shingled in the back and partly covering the ears.

Two years later, the national income rose to $69.5 billion dollars, after a 1921 low of $51.7 billion, and coiffures become a mop of permanented curls.

Silhouettes were billowy, sometimes tamed with a "head ache band," and the vamp hairdo became the blue chip stock in a girl's beauty portfolio.

Minor market fluctuations in 1926 were foreshadowed by a short bob, softened with finger waves. With the stock market crash of 1929, variations of the short, severely natural coif reappeared. As business improved gradually during the 1930's, hair styles made gains toward the longer, softer, more feminine look. But from 1933 to 1936, hair was styled so close to the head the line of the skull was obvious.

* * * *

CAME THE 1940's, and World War II, and hair styles went up. They were elaborate combinations of curls, pins and rolls. Shoulder length bobs with high, puffy, upswept pompadours reflected gains in the wartime economy.

When the market fell temporarily in 1946 and again in 1949, hair styles—true to form — once again became short. In 1949 came the shortest coif of all, the "poodle."

In 1953, the national income jumped to a high of $302 billion dollars, and the first of the modern bouffants appeared. The style was fullest at the sides, with little or no back-combing at the crown. Soon after came the bubble coif. with variations on the full, round, richly-padded showing throughout the 1950's.

As the stock market reached a new high in 1961, so did coiffures — higher, wider and more elegant than in many a year as represented with the beehive and the full-blown cap cut.

Today, with stock prices down after soaring, hair styles are showing more natural-looking trends.

Brown Takes the Crown

Browns lead off the season's color list, beginning with spice tones and running through to deepest coffee shades. Red is a standout in new rusty wine, flame and paprika.

Blues are fall favorites in every shade but navy. Royal and teal are strong and the black-and-white combination is a prime favorite in plaids, tweeds and checks.

And gold begins with amber and follows through with saffron topaz and antique.

BOLD AND BEAUTIFUL

Be a Fashion Pin-Up!

To pin down fashion—use a pin, a dramatic one.

Big and bold, in gold or jewels, they will be worn everywhere by everyone this season.

The jeweled, opulent pin placed front and center on one of the new turbans is an important trend. It may be of diamonds or rhinestones, real or simulated colored stones, gold or pearls.

Most important: it must be big and dramatic.

* * * *

FOR DAYTIME wear with suits and the simple, untrimmed dresses of the season, gold pins of all sizes and finishes are tops in smartness.

And don't overlook the new freedom in placement. Pins are turning up everywhere—one the thigh, the hip, the belt or the shoulder.

A dashing rhinestone pin worn near the hemline of a slim black cocktail sheath is daring and stylish, especially when teamed with an identical pin worn on a go-with turban.

Downey Booming in Population, Industry

DOWNEY—The population of this city has nearly tripled in the past 12 years to reach an April 1962 estimated total of 90,300 from 29,516 in April 1950, according to a report on industrial location factors prepared by the City Industrial Development Committee and the Downey Planning Department, in cooperation with the California State Chamber of Commerce.

The new industrial survey sets forth the rapid growth of the community and presents data of vital importance to industry seeking factory locations in the Southern California area.

Additional figures pointing up the rapid growth of Downey include an increase in grade school enrollment — grades 1-6—of from 3,745 in 1950 to 10,052 in 1961.

For the period 1961-62 assessed valuation of the city is listed at $155,821,225. The

Buffums' to Build Palos Verdes Store

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Plans for opening of a new Buffums' store in Palos Verdes have been announced by Vaile G. Young, president.

Larger than the firm's first speciality store near the Long Beach Marina, the new 50,000-square-foot two-story facility will feature clothing and accessories for Southern California living, Young said.

The store, due to open in mid-year of 1963, will be in the Peninsula Center of Palos Verdes Peninsula.

MEANWHILE, Buffums' is making ready for grand opening of its new store at the 'top of the Mall' in Pomona.

Ribbon-cutting ceremonies are planned for noon Oct. 1 at the official opening with numerous dignitaries in attendance.

Jerry Moss, land developer, says the Peninsula Center is the name for the new commercial city, or Town Center, which rapidly is being built at the top of the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

LAND PLANNED by Charles Luckman and Victor Gruen Associates, two well-known planners, this new Town Center was designed to become the focal point for marketing, cultural and civic activities on the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

ROLLING ALONG FOR 50 YEARS

L. B. Truck Executive to Note Anniversary

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Hanging on a wall in a frame near the desk of H. G. Appleton, president of the Advance Truck Company, 21740 Alameda St., is a 50-year-old check for $25.

It's the cancelled check for his down payment on the first truck bought for what now is one of the major pipe equipment carriers in the west.

On Oct. 4, Appleton's firm will celebrate its 50th anniversary. On open house observance is planned for employes and business associates.

H. G. APPLETON
President

* * * *

GORDON H. SANDBERG of Long Beach is vice president and C. C. Carter of Baldwin Park is secretary.

Dominated by a vast array of piled pipes, the Advance Trucking Co. occupies a 25 acre parcel at Carson and Alameda streets and a 12-acre property at 101 Highway and Alameda. The concern presently transports and stores oil field tubing, line pipe, cast iron piping for water mains and commercial piping used for plumbing.

The yard is used by most major steel and oil companies.

* * * *

WHILE MOST of the pipe handled arrives in Long Beach on ships, some 600 railroad carloads are processed yearly.

Pipe is handled by fork trucks and pipe maintenance service is available. The company operates more than 30 pieces of heavy duty equipment. More than 100 concerns use the yard for storage.

Appleton, still active in the business, looks back over a colorful career. As a young man, he studied to be an architect. Along the way, he became manager of a Los Angeles furniture business. A major problem was transportation of furniture in those "horse and buggy" days.

YOUNG Appleton decided to buy a truck to haul furniture for his employer, and Here's an old Packard truck hauling first load of cotton to Goodyear Tire & Rubber plant in Los Angeles. H. G. Appleton recalls that the only brakes were on the two rear wheels of the first unit. Note hard rubber tires and wagon type trailers.

Visiting Group to Eye City's Potentialities

Long Beach potentials will be under close scrutiny Sept. 27 and 28 when the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and a group of financial leaders visit this city.

President Orville W. Cole of the local chamber has announced that Ladd Plumley, U.S. chamber president and head of the State Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Worcester, Mass., will be accompanied on his official visit by nine members of the firm's finance committee.

"Long Beach is singly honored by this visit," Cole said, "since Plumley is to make only three stops on the West Coast.

"I regard this as a wonderful opportunity to impress these outstanding business leaders within his delegation of the great future our area holds."

Local chamber officials are planning special fact presentations to the visitors; and special tours have been arranged. The guests also will be feted at a reception and dinner at the Pacific Coast Club.

Six Deals in Week: $553,000

Some days, things just go fine; but when the trend continues all week—wow!

Take, for example, Bernie Specht, realtor, of 421 Orange Ave., who believes in newspaper advertising.

On Sept. 9, his office closed a $98,500 apartment house sale.

On Sept. 10, there was a $110,000 sale.

On Sept. 11, things really got better to the tune of a $225,000 sale.

Next day, business 'tapered off' with a $60,000 deal.

Then, on Sept. 13, there was a $40,000 sale.

Friday, Sept. 14, a $19,500 sale was wrapped up.

Score for the week—all apartment house deals—$553,000!

What more could Specht expect?

Tower Developers Hail Long Beach Future as 'High Rise' Living Area

Long Beach is destined to become the "finest residential high rise community in the Southwest," in the opinion of the owner-developers of the 21-story Pacific Holiday Towers for which ground was broken the past week at 1900 E. Ocean Blvd.

"We wish to acknowledge the consideration and cooperation extended by the city of Long Beach and all departments having control.

"We extend our thanks to the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce for their welcoming us to Long Beach and their wholehearted support. Men like these assure the great future of the city," said Myron Bayler, Herb Klein, Leo Allen Minskoff and Walter Minskoff.

* * * *

COSTING IN EXCESS of $5,700,000 the Tower will stand 17 stories above the Ocean Boulevard level, with four stories below the bluff area. These underground levels will house the largest garage in the city with a capacity of 288 cars complete with attendant parking.

Containing 288 units the structure is designed for occupancy by senior citizens and has received special FHA approval for such purposes. It will contain 112 singles, 112 one bedroom units, 56 two bedroom units and 8 penthouse suites. All units will be air conditioned, furnished with wall to wall carpet and have all-electric kitchens.

This building is the first FHA approved high rise structure for senior citizens to be built on the west coast and will be the tallest structure in Long Beach. Special design factors have been incorporated in the building to accommodate the senior citizen residents.

* * * *

EACH ROOM will have a balcony area that provides a view of the surrounding beach and harbor areas. Additional recreational sections will be established to include reading rooms, a large putting green, shuffle board courts, and bathhouse facilities.

The project has been 2½ years in the making. Special arrangements through J. Halperin & Co., secured the necessary $6 million financing through the John Hancock Life Insurance Company. William J. Bird, western vice-president of John Hancock, commented on the project as "concrete evidence of our belief in the future economy of Long Beach."

* * * *

NOW TAKING reservations for apartments in the Tower, the developers publically announced the rent schedule. Apartments excluding penthouse suites will run from $115 to $305 per month. The eight penthouse suites will be from $420 to $605 per month.

Serving in the technical side of this multimillion dollar project are Robert E. Donald and Associates, Beverly Hills, Architects; Raymond Weiss, electrical engineer; C. Don Hoover and John A. Martin and Associates, structural engineers. General contractors for the project are Bayer-Klein Construction Co. and Minskoff Construction Co.

Local Tower Corporation representatives Jonah Jones and Konstantine George announced that the project is scheduled for completion within 18 months.

GIANT LONG BEACH BULK LOADER READIED
Dwarfing nearby automobiles is this huge bulk loader under construction on Pier G by Long Beach Harbor Department. Largest such loader on west coast, it will be able to handle 2,800 tons of iron ore an hour. It will be operated under lease to Metropolitan Stevedore Corp. Loader will run on tracks along 600 feet of water frontage. Carrier belt is four feet wide. Big user will be Kaiser Steel Corp., which has contracted to ship 10 million tons of ore from Eagle Mountain, east of Indio, to Japan in the next 10 years aboard specially built Japanese ore carriers.

Rotary Press Firm Opens New Plant

GARDEN GROVE — James P. Matthews of 12332 Chapman Ave. is the president of the newest and one of the largest continuous-roll four-color offest printing plants in the west. The newly opened plant is the Matthews Rotary Press.

Located at 4571 East Sheila St., Commerce, the plant was established to serve the expanding need for high-speed quality printing in southern Califronia.

* * * *

THE PRESS alone is 87½ feet in length, and is capable of printing 25,000 four-color impressions per hour. It prints on both sides, folds, perforates, pastes, scores and imprints—all automatically on one pass through the press.

Rolls of paper are fed through the press at the rate of 800 feet per minute. Even at this tremendous speed, both sides of the paper are printed simultaneously — in perfect register—in as many as four different colors of ink per side.

* * * *

THREE of the corporation's directors have among themselves a total of more than 68 years of printing experience.

William Stallings, vice president and operations manager, has had more than 20 years of experience in all phases of plant management. Stallings lives at 12681 Morningside Ave., Garden Grove.

Edward H. Kelly, vice president, lives at 1200 Ocean Blvd., Long Beach. Kelly has operated his own business, the Kelly Printing and Stationery Company, 1428 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Long Beach, for 10 years.

Ercil B. Rose, vice president and general manager, has had 38 years of printing experience.

Within the city are currently 23 elementary schools, 5 junior high schools and 4 high schools; 42 churches; 5 newspapers; and 7 banks. The Downey police department employs 95 full-time personnel, while the fire department boasts a total of 76.

New projects authorized or planned, according to the report, include the Downey Exchange Center constituting 200,000 square feet of retail construction, occupying 7 acres in central Downey; a 4-story Court Professional Building; County Superior Courts (12) in Downey; a new 28,000 square-foot post office; and an off-street parking district established.

* * * *

THERE ARE 385 acres in the city limits zoned for industry of which 26 per cent is vacant and available in parcels up to 10 acres. Typical sales prices in 1961 averaged from $40,000 to $45,000 per acre.

Adjacent to Downey are approximately 3,000 acres of vacant land zoned for industry with railroad sidings and available in parcels up to 100 acres in size.

The survey reports that there are over 200 manufacturing plants within the community. Within the 6 largest firms alone a total of 18,825 persons are employed.

Contained in the survey are all vital industrial location factors, such as climate, transportation, utility services, water supply, governmental facilities, tax rates, housing and community facilities.

THE STUDY, known as the Standard Industrial Survey Summary, is one of a series which includes the reports of more than 200 California communities which participate in the State Chamber's program of industrial reports.

They enable communities, whatever their size and financial capacity, to receive a quick evaluation of the advantages each city has to offer. The reports are distributed nationally by the State Chamber to service some 30 sets of reports maintained by banks, railroads, utilities, field offices of the U.S. Department of Commerce, and major libraries.

Buffums' to Build Palos Verdes Store

serve the newcomers to the Peninsula, which have been averaging approximately 8,000 per year.

The Peninsula Center, which contains more than 120 acres, had its first building built only a little over one year ago. Since that time there have been over 300,000 square feet of commercial buildings constructed!

* * * *

TENANTS now located in the Peninsula Center include: Safeway Market, Thrifty Drug Store, J. J. Newberry, Leed's Shoe Store, Security Bank, Innes Shoe Store, Lucky Market, Pacific State Bank, Mayfair Sports and Riding Shop, Motherhood Shop, Bentley's Ltd. Men's Store, California Federal Savings and Loan, Hayden and Stone Company, a 20,000 square foot Medical Building, three office buildings exceeding 100,000 square feet, a new Palos Verdes Newspaper Building, a new Dental Building and approximately 50 other additional businesses. National Theaters expects to break ground soon on a new theater.

A new public library and a Little Theater Building also are in the immediate offing. The Hunting Horn Restaurant, a 10,000 square foot dinner house, is approximately half completed at the corner of Hawthorne and Silver Spur Boulevard.

* * * *

A WIDE VARIETY of recreational activities, including the new Country Golf Course, which will be located approximately one mile to the west of the Town Center, may be enjoyed on the Peninsula. And it is perhaps these factors which have caused new cooperative and rental apartments to be springing up on the view sites surrounding the Peninsula Center, Moss says.

The Center itself nestles in a small valley at the top and center of the Palos Verdes Peninsula approximately three miles south of Pacific Coast Highway and it can be reached from either Crenshaw Boulevard or Hawthorne Boulevard.

It is being developed by Moss in partnership with Sidney M. Barton of New York City and Lester R. Giegerich of Westport, Conn.

Trucking Company Soon 50 Years Old

branched out. His first truck, with the $25 initial down payment, was a Little Giant, with buggy type wheels and solid rubber wheels. Hauling increased. He soon had four trucks, and went into the trucking business.

The present firm was incorporated Nov. 24, 1923. Since coming to Long Beach, Advance Truck has made seven expansion moves.

A garage Appleton had built at May Street and Alamitos Avenue was destroyed in the 1933 earthquake.

* * * *

PRIOR TO specializing in pipe products, Appleton hauled "everything, including elephants."

He has seen many "firsts" in transportation from the days of Pierce Arrow and Packard trucks, with their hard rimmed tires; and when all the braking on a truck-trailer rig was on the rear axle of the truck.

Advance Truck hauled the pipe for the Discovery oil well on Signal Hill in 1921, and Appleton recalls many exciting experiences in the oil fields and with oil well fires.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to business affairs, Appleton has taken time for many civic activities. These include:

As president of the Automotive Council, he was one of 20 men who rewrote the State Vehicle Code about 40 years ago;

Chamber of Commerce director seven years, serving as chairman of the streets and roads committee, vice chairman of the oil committee, and member of the subsidence and highway committees;

Member of the mayor's advisory committee for six years and influential in improvement of the West Beach;

Member of the Marina Advisory Committee for seven years;

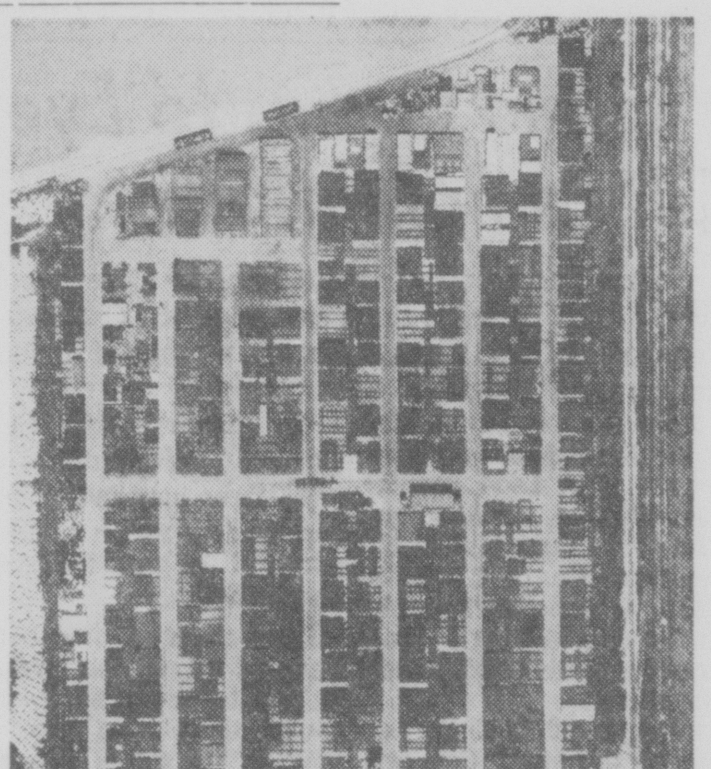
* * * *

FORMERLY member of the Long Beach Safety Council, Rotary board; advisory board of the Rick Rackers; Long Beach representative on Los Angeles Metropolitan Freeway Committee;

Now chairman of the advisory board of the Assistance League; vice chairman of the Marina advisory board; member of the Heart Association and of the Alamitos Bay Civic Improvement Association.

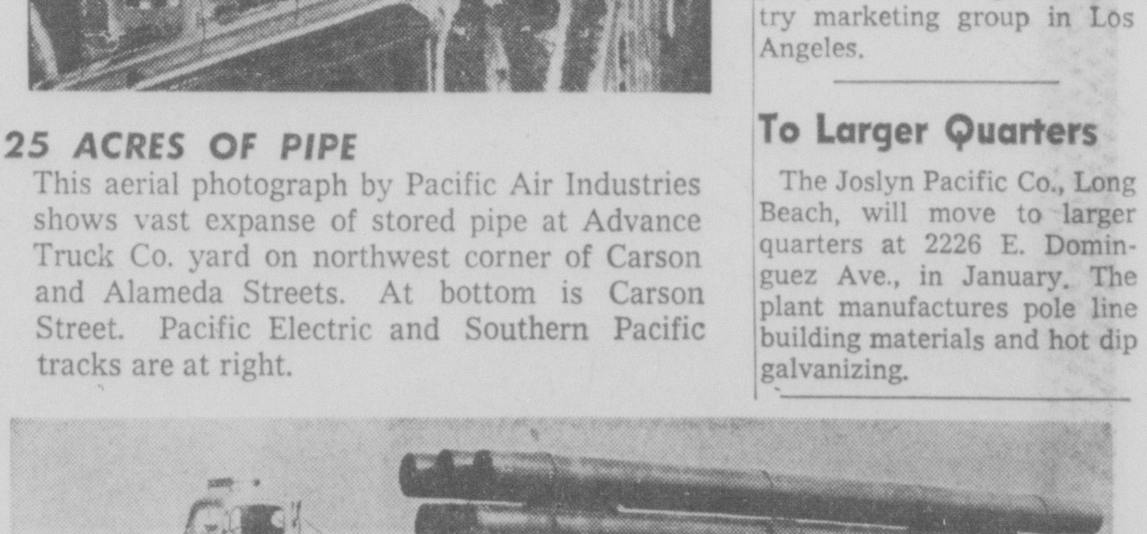
Appleton, whose home is at 25 Laguna Place, is an enthusiastic gardener. Other hobbies include photography and swimming.

Retirement? That'll have to wait when a man has things to do.



25 ACRES OF PIPE

This aerial photograph by Pacific Air Industries shows vast expanse of stored pipe at Advance Truck Co. yard on northwest corner of Carson and Alameda Streets. At bottom is Carson Street. Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific tracks are at right.



MODERN EQUIPMENT

Woerner to Manage IBM Branch Office

G. W. Woerner Jr., has been named branch manager of the East Los Angeles office of International Business Machines Corporation. He will direct the marketing and installation of the company's electronic data processing equipment.

Woerner succeeds J. R. Amon, who joins the company's western region industry marketing group in Los Angeles.

Loan League Hears Builder Executive Blast at Socialism

A fiery attack on socialism and "strong talk" in behalf of free enterprise and the profit system was made by Merrill Butler Jr., president of the Home Builders Association, in an address to the 72nd annual convention in Los Angeles of the California Savings and Loan League.

"Anti-capitalistic forces under the banner of socialism are in the ever-accelerating process of making our customers, namely the people of California, dependent on government for everything in order to take away their individual freedom," he declared."

MERRILL BUTLER JR.
Builders Executive

* * * *

BUTLER DEPLORED government "domination" and voiced opposition to "unwarranted intervention into the housing industry by various levels of government."

"If government can, by intimidation, prevent Big Steel from raising its prices to reflect increased labor costs, how soon will it be before government prevents the home builders and our associates from raising their sale prices to reflect the same kind of cost increase?" Butler asked.

"If this happens how long will the home builders be able to profitably exist and thus remain as the principal source of loans from members of your association?"

A DETAILED INQUIRY into how "free and effective competition" can best be promoted within the $16 billion savings and loan industry has been initiated in California.

Preston N. Silbaugh, California savings and loan commissioner, told delegates that the inquiry comprises two studies.

One, by Dr. Fred Balderson of the University of California, will concentrate on application requirements and new association operating expenses.

The other, said Silbaugh, is being conducted by Dr. Edward Shaw of Stanford University and concerns the industry's performance in California with special reference to mergers and consolidations.

* * * *

CALIFORNIA now has a moratorium on savings and loan association mergers, pending completion of the two studies, Silbaugh said.

Some industry leaders in California have been forecasting a future tendency toward mergers and consolidations to meet rising competition from commercial banks for mortgage loans.

In a panel discussion during the final day's session Robert T. Souter, president of Lynwood's World Savings Association, predicted that within 10 years California's present 256 savings and loan associations will be reduced to 20 major firms through mergers and consolidations.

* * * *

ANOTHER PANEL participant, President Russell C. Chase of Los Angeles' Marina Federal Savings, predicted that the country's mutual savings banks would merge during the next 10 years with the nation's mutual savings and loan associations — the type in this state.

A recently returned visitor to the Soviet Union told the delegates today that Russia fears a direct war with the United States which it knows it can't match in strength.

Robert R. Gros, vice president of Pacific Gas and Electric Co., of San Francisco, said this was his conclusion after a talk with Niikta Khrushchev.

"Russian living standards have improved tremendously since my first trip behind the Iron Curtain in 1956," he said.

"Actually, though," Gros said, "the gains were relative, and Russian consumer goods are still shoddy by Western standards, particularly Russian housing, which puts greater emphasis on quantity than quality."

* * * *

JOHN F. MARTEN of Los Angeles was elected president of the league.

Marten, president of Great Western Savings and Loan Association, succeeds F. Marion Donahoe of San Francisco. Marten had been vice president of the group.

Named new vice president was Fred C. Stalder of San Diego, president of Central Federal Savings and Loan Association.

A dinner-dance and installation of officers climaxed the league's three-day convention at the Biltmore Bowl.

S.I.R. Trophy Award

Contest Could Lure Industries to State

The third annual Professional Trophy Award contest sponsored b ythe Society of Industrial Realtors offers California a unique opportunity to capture the attention of site-seeking industries in all parts of the country, according to Robert L. McCourt Jr., president of the society's Southern California Chapter.

"The winner in this year's competition for this coveted award will receive national recognition as the state with the most effective industrial development program," McCourt stated.

* * * *

A PANEL of independent judges will select the winning state from entries submitted on or before Dec. 1.

Gov. John H. Reed of Maine, whose state won the Professional Trophy Award in 1961, calls it the highest award that can be bestowed upon a state in recognition of its industrial development program.

California has made great progress in attracting new industries as a result of the activities of the Los Angeles an San Francisco Chambers of Commerce and other city chambers working with the State Chamber of Commerce.

The California Industrial Development Conference will be held in Los Angeles on Oct. 25 and 26 under the direct supervision of the Socieyt of Industrial Realtors.

The society, a professional afiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is composed of realtors who specialize in industrial real estate. There are 28 active and three associate members of the SIR in the Southern California area.

The "Milwaukee Story" of what is being done there in urban renewal and redevelopment was told recently to the Long Beach District Board of Realtors by Lt. Charles O. Meyer, assistant director of the Milwaukee Housing and Sanitation Division.

C. O. MEYER

Meyer attended a meeting in the local office presided over by Melvin L. Mould, first vice president of the Long Beach board.

Many officials and members of all boards in the 22nd District were in attendance as were city officials from Long Beach, Lakewood, and Signal Hill.

Lt. Meyer, here on a speaking engagement for the California Real Estate Association, entered Civil Service in 1929 and has served his city in the health and housing divisions since 1940.

He said the personnel in his division has grown from 20 inspectors, 2 sergeants, and 1 lieutenant in 1957 to their present 40 inspectors, 4 sergeants, a director and assistant director, and their program was begun on a house-to-house, block-by-block basis.

Cites Need for 'Good' Salesmen

"The continued population expansion in the Long Beach and Lakewood areas has caused a sales problem in the real estate field—lack of salesmen to service homebuyers," says Oliver Speraw, manager of Walker & Lee, Inc.'s Long Beach and Dutch Village office in Lakewood, whose job it is to find homes for dozens of families per day.

"Walker & Lee, as a large, successful sales organization, depends on professional standards in its operation and sales personnel. Not all sales applicants qualify," Speraw said.

* * * *

ALL WALKER & LEE salesmen are given continual training in up-to-date selling techniques as part of the firm's personnel policy. Newly employed salesmen are given free, on-the-job indoctrination for a peroid of two months. During this time full commissions are paid to the trainee.

"Right now we have need of four salesmen at the Woodruff Center office. To qualify, applicants should be under 50 years of age, have no health problems, be licensed, and own a late family-size car—we'll do the rest in our training program," Speraw said.

The executive added the Walker & Lee sales have averaged over $2 million in sales per week since the first of the year—the largest residential sales dollar volume in the nation.

Dog Catcher Gets New Weapon

WINSLOW, Ariz. (AP)—The Winslow City Council has purchased a rifle to shoot dogs.

The weapon doesn't fire bullets, however. It shoots needles filled with sedatives. After 15 to 30 minutes, the dog catcher has little trouble catching his prey.

Cinderella Homes Eyed by Investors

"Buyers with an eye toward the investment potential of a new home as well as the living comfort it provides are especially pleased with what they find at Cinderella Homes in Yorba Linda," report sales agent Gordon Tripp.

"A new 30,000 student university is being built just two miles away. When the university is in use, the facilities the students will demand will cause land values to spiral. Farsighted buyers, aware not only of the financial gains but also the 'college-town atmosphere' the university will bring, are purchasing their homes now before the prices zoom out of reach."

* * * *

THE HOMES are offered in distinctive floor plans and 21 unique elevations. "Although these homes are priced in the $26,000 range, they have the '$40,000 look' throughout," Tripp said. "Every feature and every detail receives personal attention from the builders, Shannon D. Vandruff and Jene V. Vandruff."

Royal Cinderella homes immediately border the Alta Vista golf course, and are six minutes from Yorba Linda Country Club.

$15 Million Sales Made in 7 Months

Home sales of $15,329,000 for the first seven months of 1962 are reported by Verdie Mattocks of Coordinated Sales Inc., sales agents for developments of Heritage Construction Co. A total of 832 units were sold in developments in Orange and Los Angeles Counties.

Of the total figure, the Diamond Bar development in Brea Canyon sold 587 units of the three and four-bedroom homes at an average price of $17,000.

Over 200 units of College View Manor in North Fullerton were sold. These three and four-bedroom homes averaging $20,000 and were built under the direction of "Bud" and Dick Raulston, a father-son team, well known as successful builders. Sunny Hills development in a prestige Fullerton location, accounted for 45 units at an average price of $30,000. In all three developments, the homes were designed by Development Coordinators of Fullerton under the direction of Howard Eichen.

Troy Hills Double Patio Plan Proving Popular With Buyers

"Our Troy Hills double patio plan is proving to be one of our most popular homes," reported Jim McCarthy, vice president of the McCarthy Co., co-builders with Sant Construction of the rolling hills community in Fullerton.

"The home is a versatile one," he continued, "so the reasons for its popularity are many and varied. The skillful blending of indoor and outdoor living brought by the two patios is one reason. The enclosed entrance patio brings the front garden into the living room through sliding glass doors, and the side patio, reached through sliding glass doors from the breakfast area, gives another area of the homes the same spacious outdoor feeling.

Another reason for buyer enthusiasm for the double pation plan is its excellent floor plan which provides for a formal living room, completely separate family room, an eating area which adjoins the kitchen and leads to the side patio, and a three-bedroom sleeping wing in the back of the homes for greater privacy and quiet."

* * * *

TROY HILLS homes are offered with 23 different exteriors. Priced from $19,600, the homes may be purchased with veteran's no-down-payment terms, FHA financing from $900 down, conventional terms, or Cal Vet financing.

Buyers may trade their present homes, or may choose to reserve their favorite plan with a $100 deposit while they build up to their down payment.

Offered with three or four bedrooms, family room, and two full baths, the Troy Hills homes are fully prepared for air-conditioning throughout. Buyers may elect to include a refrigerated airconditioning unit.

Among features are built-in Tappan range and oven; gas forced-air heating with thermosatic control; fireplace of Palos Verdes stone, Viking stone, used brick Norman brick, or slumpstone; ash kitchen cabinets with natural, walnut, or white finish; built-in hidden TV antenna.

POPULAR STYLE OF HOME

This model of a Troy Hills home is proving highly popular with home buyers. It has a patio entrance and another private patio in the rear.

No School Problems for Buyer of Garden Park Estates Home

A GARDEN PARK ESTATE

Spacious living room shown is one of the two-story residences at Garden Park Estates, Knott Avenue and Garden Grove Freeway. These homes also feature a handsome fireplace in the second-floor master bedroom. Officials noted that two elementary schools have now been completed in the immediate vicinity, and that seven new elementary schools also opened in the Garden Grove district this fall.

Two elementary schools for children through grade six have now been completed within the immediate vicinity of Garden Park Estates, planned residential community of architect-designed homes at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freeway, both just south of Belgrave and Holder, and a third, officials said, is slated for construction at Topaz and Cerulean within six months.

Thanks to far-sighted city planning which has kept pace with the mushrooming growth of this Orange County area, residents need fear no such overcrowding and "split-sessions" as plague many other sections.

The Garden Grove School District opened seven new elementary schools this fall, five for grades from kindergarten through sixth grade, and two intermediate schools for the seventh and eighth grades.

Garden Park Estates, "walled-city-within-a-city", has recently opened its new unit of all-new one and two-story luxury homes. Exteriors are widely diverse and include Contemporary, Hawaiiand and Conventional designs and the range of plans is keyed to the spatial needs of virtually every family.

* * * *

THERE ARE two-bath plans with two bedrooms and den, three and four bedrooms with family room and dining areas, and the beautiful new two-story models with five big bedrooms.

True two-story residences, they are styled with three bedrooms and a bath on the second floor, and the other two bedrooms comprise a "sleep wing" on the first floor.

These luxurious two-story homes all feature handsome fireplaces; one in the master bedroom on the second floor, and the other in the living room.

Financing is extremely convenient. There are VA terms of nothing down, except impounds and closing costs, as well as Cal-Vet loans, and for non-veterans there are excellent conventional loans and choice of 30 or 35-year FHA terms. Full prices are from $17,800.

* * * *

FINE HOME FEATURES in the one and two-story residences include fireplaces and big sliding glass doors, forced-air heating, attractive baths with colored plumbing fixtures and pullmans, and appliance-equipped kitchens with color-matched "built-ins" and harmonizing superamic tile countertops.

Quality built with genuine lath and plaster walls and ceilings, attention to fine home detailing extends to the clean, long-lasting concrete driveways.

Furnished models, open daily, are reached from Long Beach by driving east on 7th St. past Long Beach State College, straight to Knott Ave. and Garden Park Estates at Knott Ave. and Garden Grove Freewey.

Many Advantages in 'Custom Homes'

An ever increasing number of key personnel transfered by major industries moving to Orange County, are faced with the problem of either commuting long distances or finding new homes in this area, reported Maurice D. Mitchell, developer of "Custom Homes," located in East Anaheim.

"If the decision is to buy a new home," said Mitchell, "the purchaser should think of the transaction as an investment, always keeping the possibility of a future re-sale in mind."

In explaining the advantages of a custom home over a tract home for re-sale purposes, Mitchell pointed out that the tract home has a fixed or stated price. This enables any prospective second time buyer to compare the owner's asking price with that of identical homes nearby.

* * * *

"CUSTOM HOMES" offer this advantage to the buyer plus all of the luxury, comfort and prestige of a custom-built home and at a price that is competitive with development homes. The many choices offered by "Custom Homes" gives the buyer the feeling of literally having built a home from the ground up.

After a selection of design from three, four and five bedroom, multiple-bath home the buyer selects carpeting, tile, wallpaper, hardware, colors, both interior and exterior from a wide selection of custom materials.

The final choices allows the buyer to make any changes, additions or alterations desired.

"Custom Homes" are priced from $28,200 and since only 31 homes are to be built, the builder urges families relocating in Orange County to visit the display homes soon while choice lots are still available.

To visit "Custom Homes," from the Santa Ana Freeway, take Lincoln East 3.4 miles to Sunkist and turn South on Sunkist to display homes between South and Wagner Streets.

The development offers immediate freeway access and the advantage of living close to work in the Los Angeles, Long Beach, or Orange County industrial areas, yet is in an ideal residential location. Excellent schools at every grade level are nearby, and shopping centers, churches, parks and other recreational areas are conveniently close.

'ONE-PRICE RESIDENCE'

There is no "forgotten man" at Imperial Valley View for the attractive "one-price" residences in popular community in the Buena Park area are available on exceptionally favorable veteran and non-veteran financing, officials explained.

With the exceptionally low and favorable financing terms at Imperial Valley View in the Buena Park area, neither veteran nor non-veteran is the "forgotten man", Koblentz & DeLancy, sales agents, pointed out.

These attractively styled residences are also easy to own because of their one full price of just $17,150, Koblentz said. New, low veteran qualification requirements on VA loans, make the homes available for those who meet them, for absolutely no down payments, not even the customary impounds and closing costs — just the regular monthly payments.

* * * *

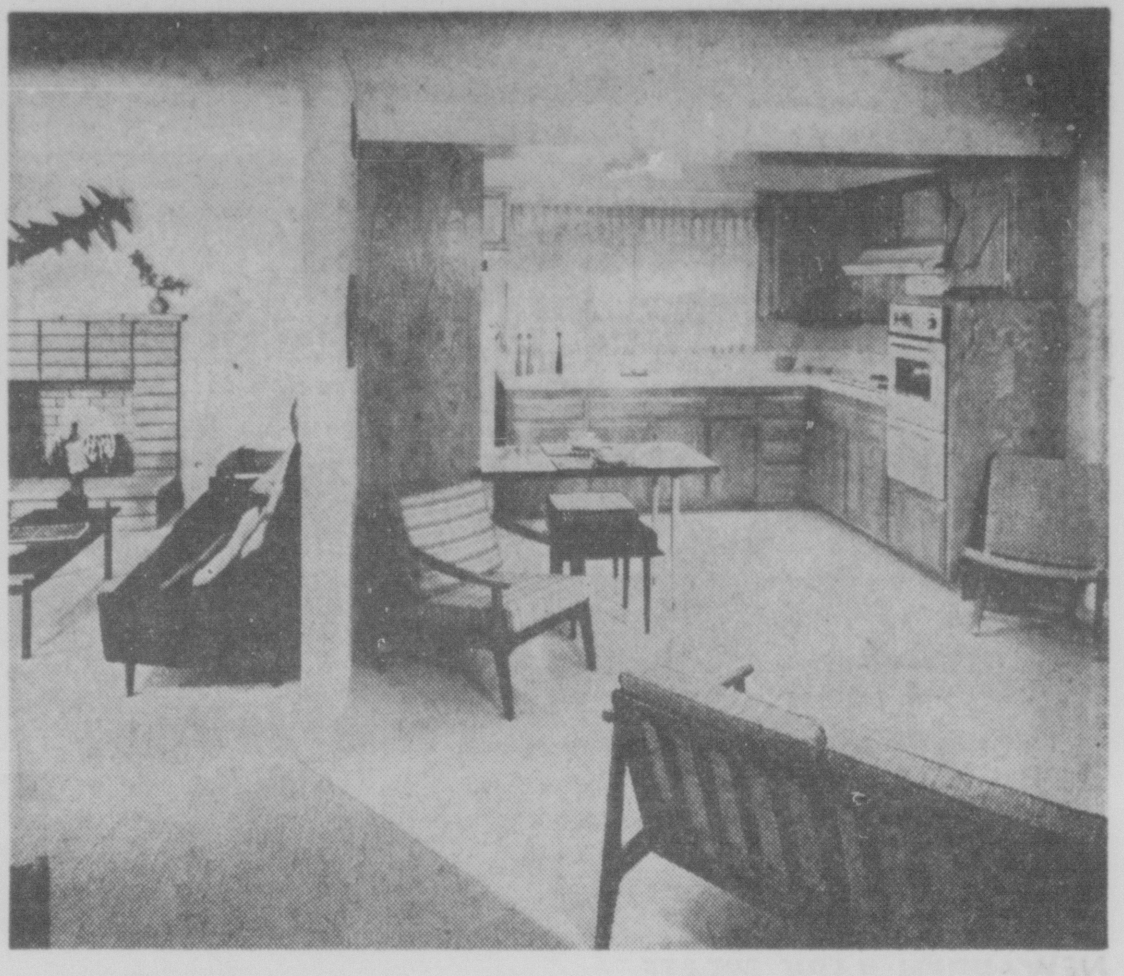
Large Cameron Homes Provide Much Room for $17,775 Price



A CAMERON HOME

Grand opening of the three-bathroom, three and four-bedroom Cameron Homes is continued another week as hundreds of home buyers continue to tour the furnished model homes. Cameron Homes are selling at $295 down, plus costs, with a full price of just $17,775. Here is a view in one of homes.

Cameron Homes in Westminster offer home buyers one of the finest home "packages" in all of Southern California: three bathrooms, an inside service area, a choice of three or four bedrooms, and a host of other features, a spokesman points out.

All of the above is priced to meet the pocketbooks of practically everyone: $295 down, plus closing costs, to move in immediately and full priced at $17,775. Title protection is furnished by Security Title Insurance Company.

IN ADDITION to the three bathrooms and inside service area, the three and four bedroom homes have large kitchens with Tappan built-in range and oven with hood and ventilating fan, natural raised ash cabinets, acres of counterspace, waste disposal and vinyl tile floors (also found in all the bathrooms as well as the family room); a large family room; living room with used brick or slumpstone raised hearth fireplaces; color-coordinated wall-to-wall carpeting in living room, entry, hall and master bedroom; large wardrobe closets; double garage; heavy shake roofs; and many other "wife-preserving" features.

Cameron Homes' decorated models are open for inspection daily from 11 a.m. to dusk.

From Long Beach, drive east on Seventh Street to Beach Blvd. (Hwy 39), turn south to Hazard, then east on Hazard to Cameron Homes.

Bus Tour of Area Provided Visitors

CHESTNUT LANE HOME

Here is a three-room view taken in a Chestnut Lane model home. The living room floor-to-ceiling fireplace is backed by the richly paneled wall in the family room with all-electric Medallion Award kitchen in the background. Model is Helen Willis, Newport Beach decorator, who coordinated the furnishings for the models.

"Newcomers to the area are invited to join our Chestnut Lane Caravan Sunday afternoon. To acquaint them with the fabulous City of Orange and environs, we've chartered a bus which will make hourly tours to points of interest to home buyers," stated T. E. Gildred, builder of Chestnut Lane homes.

Starting at noon light refreshments will be served guests. The guided bus tours will be narrated with news and facts. Highlights of the tour will be Chapman College, Fashion Square, Town & Country Center, the parks, schools, and other places utilized in day-to-day family living.

The idea for the guided tours was generated by visitors from far-flung points such as West Virginia and Ohio who have purchased Chestnut Lane Homes.

"THESE PEOPLE are grateful for assistance in making the transition to their new Orange County addresses," said Richard Hoerger, project superintendent, who has welcomed several families on move-in day.

The large, four-bedroom custom-concept Chestnut Lane homes are architecturally-designed for growing families and include air-conditioning and complete insulation, del piso tile entry flooring, terrazzo pullman-tops, all-electric Medallion Award kitchens and many other attractions. Prices range from $24,950, and interest at 5¾% is available.

The distinctive walled-in community with stone entryway and winding streets is conveniently located two minutes from the freeway on N. Glassell, one block north of Katella Ave.

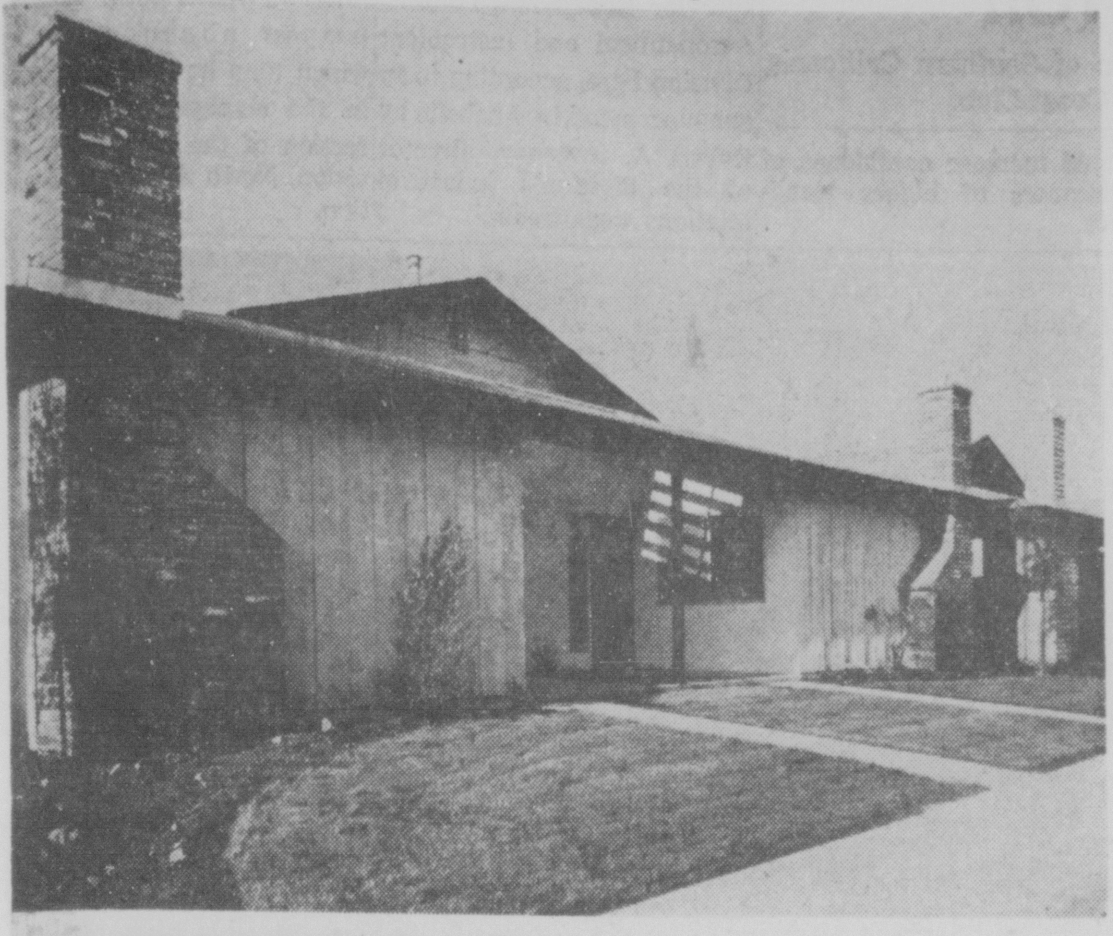
Offer Furniture at Low Cost to Renters of New Apartment



NEW APARTMENT CONCEPT

Villa Desta-Anaheim, Orange County's newest apartment development at Orangewood and Haster in Anaheim, offers single level, completely private, two-bedroom apartments. The first 70 units, just completed, are oriented around a 50-foot heated pool.

Villa Desta Apartment-Homes, Orange County's most extensive and complete apartment complex at Orangewood and Haster in Anaheim, opens its initial 70-unit phase this week-end.

Five furnished model apartments are open for inspection. Desta Development of Beverly Hills, builders and developers of the new apartment complex have gone all out to help prospective renters and leasees have one of the most beautiful apartment-homes in the area. Anyone wishing to purchase furniture for their new apartment may do so at manufacturers cost. Each of the model apartments is furnished in a different style . . . from Chinese Modern to Italian Provincial. Leases simply select from these furnishings and the management will arrange all the financing. No down payment is required. The payments are not added on to the rent, but are handled as seperate payments.

* * * *

EVERYONE MOVING into the new Villa Desta-Anaheim apartment-homes receives a $50 move-in allowance. For those signing a two year lease . . . two months free rent is offered.

The initial 70 units are the first step in a master plan for 250 units, which will be enhanced by extensive recreation facilities and surrounded by fine California landscaping. The initial phase, just completed, has a 50-foot heated swimming pool, a cabana, bath houses and laundry facilities.

The interiors provide approximately 1000 square feet of sound-proofed living area, luxurious carpeting, custom drapes, walk-in closets, fireplaces, forced-air heating and individual refrigerated air-conditioning units. The kitchens are complete with built-in gas oven and range, vented hood and fan, refrigerator, dishwasher and disposal.

Bolsa Park Adding Five-Bedroom Plan

Looking forward to the opening of the third unit of Bolsa Park, in Huntington Beach, sales director Ernie Merrill, says a one-story, five-bedroom floor plan will be a new addition to Bolsa Park Homes.

"This plan really brings the outdoors into the home," Merrill stated, describing the plan. "There is a front patio which is almost enclosed by the house and gives a semi-atrium effect as well as a rear terrace leading through sliding glass doors into the living room. The master bedroom suite has a walk-in closet and a private bath with stall shower. The other four bedrooms cluster around a second, centrally located bath.

* * * *

ALSO OFFERED in this plan is a choice of kitchens, one which entirely separates from the family room, another which opens onto the family room by means of a breakfast bar." Merrill added that buyer demand for a five-bedroom home "has been great and should be more than satisfied when our third unit opens shortly with this plan."

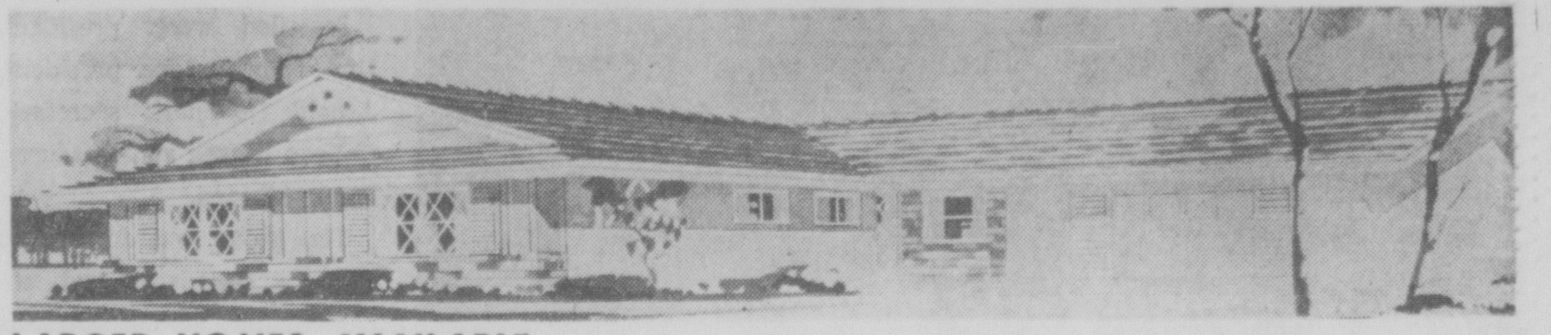
The five-bedroom home is priced from $22,990. Also offered are four-bedroom homes from $19,800 and three-bedroom models from $19,250.

* * * *

BOLSA PARK is a master-planned community, designed to allow homeowners relaxed family living in quiet and safety. The danger of heavy traffic has been eliminated by providing only two entrances to Bolsa Park.

The Bolsa Park homes feature custom entries and loggia areas; custom natural ash kitchen cabinets with raised panels; O'Keefe & Merrit colored gas range and double window oven with rotisserie; Waste King dishwasher; concrete rear terrace; and floor-to-ceiling sliding glass patio doors.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached via Seventh Street east to Bolsa Chica Road, turning right and continuing south two miles to the models.



LARGER HOMES AVAILABLE

Bolsa Park's new unit in Huntington Beach will offer this five-bedroom home which is designed to bring "outdoor living into the home," the developer reports.

First Look Sells Many on Park Series Homes

LOCATED NEAR PARK AND BEACHES

Numerous "first visit purchases" have been noted at the New Mesa Del Mar Park Series in Costa Mesa, according to a spokesman for Macco Realty Company, developers of the residential community and one of the largest residential real estate developers in Southern California.

"Generally," the Macco executive noted, "families shopping for a new home come back several times before making the final decision, which often represents the major investment of their lifetime.

* * * *

"OUR SALES force, however, reports that many take just one look at the scenic, smog-free locale and decide then and there that 'this is it.'"

Mesa Del Mar Park Series three and four bedroom homes are priced from $22,150 with convenient financing and low down payments.

Another factor contributing to the frequent first-time decision at Mesa Del Mar Park Series, the Macco executive added, is the solid reputation of Macco Realty Co. which continues to realize greater volume and to enjoy a solid, secure reputation within the home building industry.

* * * *

A 50-ACRE recreation park is under construction and will be adjacent to the New Park Series, and schools for all grade levels are within walking distance.

The new recreation park will include a Senior Citizen Park, nine hole golf course with night lights, tennis courts, archery course, swimming pool, and three baseball diamonds, oneof which will be for semi-professional baseball.

Orange Coast College, as well as the new University of California at Irvine, are nearby. Mesa Del Mar will have its own shopping center in addition to those already nearby.

Churches of all denominations are close by, as are Southern California's most famous beaches in the Newport Harbor-Balboa area.

OUR COVER

Ben Agajanian has led a double life for most of the past 20 years. On Sundays he has been Bootin' Ben, "The Toeless" wonder of professional football who has seen service with eight clubs. Our cover picture, taken by Roger Coar, shows him as a member of the world champion Green Bay Packers kicking a 28-yard field goal against the Rams at the Coliseum last season (Bart Starr, Packer quarterback, is the holder and Ed Meador of the Rams vainly tries to block the kick). But on weekdays, Agajanian has retreated from the field of football combat to the quiet of his Long Beach office. Turn to Page 7 for the full story about Ben, "He's Behind a Desk, but . . . Football's His Love."

NEXT WEEK

Bright-eyed baby ballerinas are keeping dance teachers on their toes these days, with the result that the Southland's ballet schools have new goals; emphasis on building self-confidence and grace and not in turning out pint-sized Pavlovas. Mary Neth tells the full, absorbing story in next week's Southland.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain the origin of LUCAS.—Mrs. J.L., P.L., Long Beach.

J.L., P.L.: LUCAS was bequeathed to this family from an ancestor called "Luke." The early Biblical given-name Luke meant "Man of Light." Lucas descendants lived in the English counties of Kent, Suffolk and Durham in the Middle Ages. This family's coat-of-arms, granted in 1571, has an ermine covered stripe placed between six red rings on a silver shield. The Lucas armorial crest placed above the shield, is symbolic of the meaning of Luke, for it is a gold lamp with a flame burning brightly, depicting great spiritual enlightenment.

DEAR MISS RULE: We are interested in MARTIN.—A.A., E.G., Long Beach.

A.A., E.G.: MARTIN originated in France. A nobleman called Martin, whose name was from the Latin word "Martinus," meaning "Warlike," was the owner of estates near Bayeaux, Normandy. After the Norman-French conquest of Britain, he became the owner of property in Pembroke, Wales. The ancient Martin shield is silver, crossed by two red bars in the center. The family motto is "Sure and steadfast." Christopher Martin and his wife sailed from England to Massachusetts on the famous ship Mayflower in 1620.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give data on O'DELL, or ODELL. — Mrs. R.C., Long Beach.

R.C.: O'DELL is an Irish name, part of the famous clan O'Dalaigh, descendants of Dalac, a chief whose name meant "Frequenter of assemblies." The O'Dalaighs were natives of Westmeath, Ireland. ODELL has an English background, from a town by that name in Bedfordshire. This origin of Odell is from the old English phrase "Wodehull" meaning "Forested hill." Name evolution resulted in a spelling change to Wodhull, then Odell. The Odell shield is siver, emblazoned with three red crescent moons.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would like the background of BALLARD. — Mrs. L.B., Long Beach.

L.B.: BALLARD started as a personal nickname in old England. This name, spelled now as it was in the 14th Century, meant "Bald-headed one." Remote forebears include Peter Ballard of Somerset, England, as early as 1327. The Ballard shield is black, with an ermine coated griffin wearing a gold crown, engraved in the center. Ballard descendants migrated to Meath, Ireland, in the early Middle Ages, where they became influential citizens. English Ballards settled at Andover, Mass., in the mid-1600s.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish genealogy on BAILEY —Mrs. B.B., Long Beach.

B.B.: BAILEY, with its English origin, is from the occupation of "Bailli," a manager of a nobleman's estate or castle. Henry Le Baillie is listed in the Writs of Parliament for the year 1307. The Bailey shield is covered with ermine, emblazoned with three wavy black bars across the center. In the 14th Century Chaucer wrote, "Artow than a Bayley?" (Art thou then a bailiff?). Salisbury, Mass., records list Rebecca

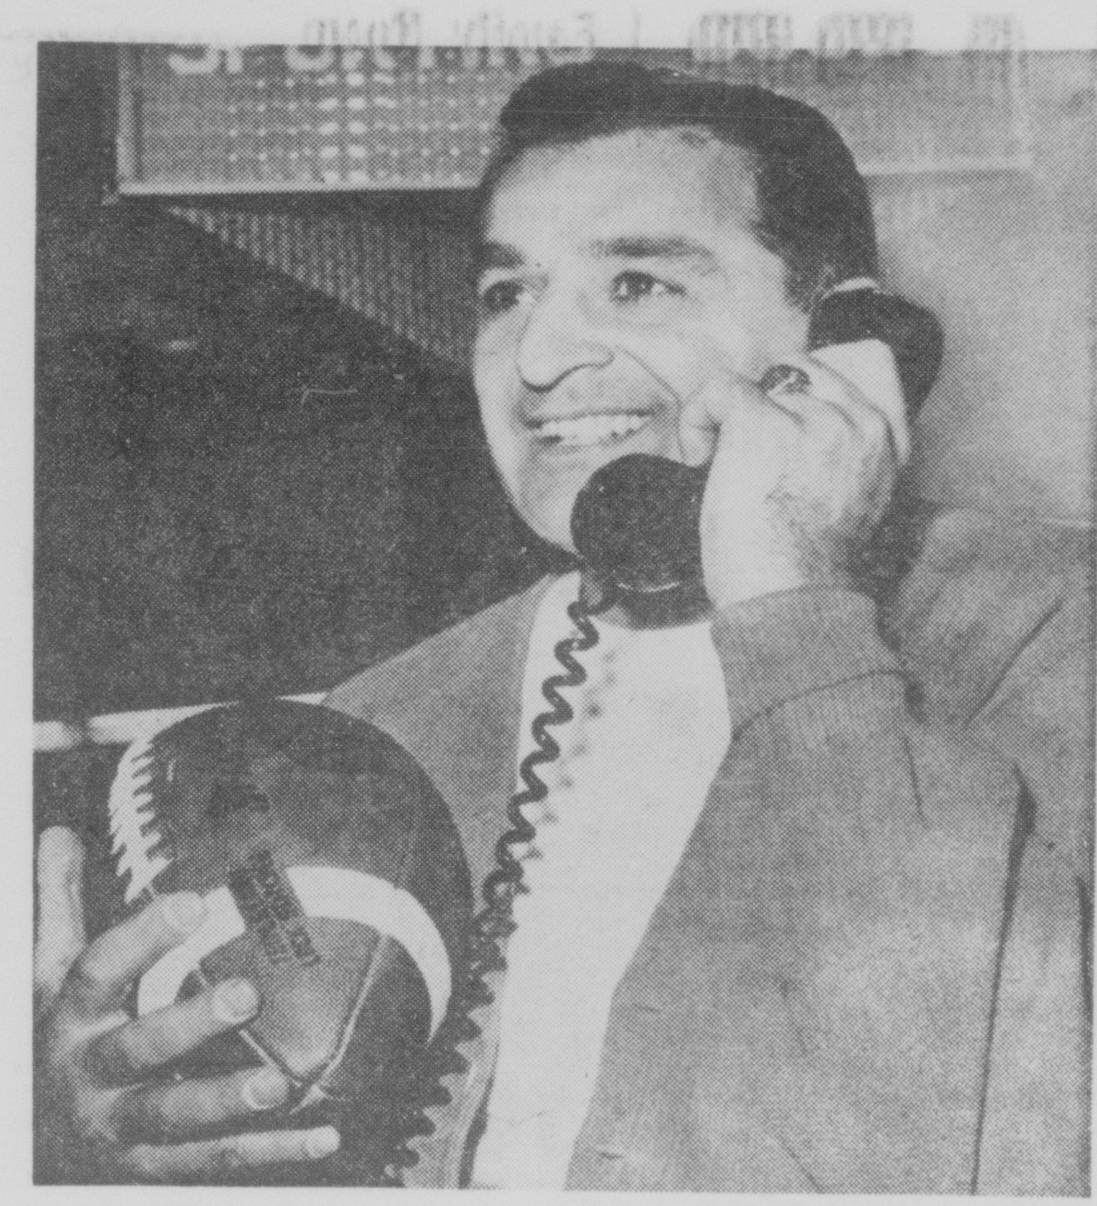
Ben Agajanian, 'The Toeless,' won't consider permanent retirement

He's Behind a Desk, but . . . Football's His Love



Between football and his sporting goods business, Ben Agajanian is a busy man. He loves football so much he'd play for free, but on part-time basis.

By Jerry Wynn

THE SIGN on the door read, Agajanian Distributors Inc., and the husky man with the aquiline nose and dark good looks sitting behind his office desk might have been mistaken for any other Long Beach businessman.

But in the sharp brown eyes of Ben Agajanian was a faraway look that spoke of other than the sporting goods his firm distributes in Southern California.

"I'm 43 now and I am kicking better than I ever have," he said. "I see no reason why I can't play football until I'm 50. In my line, age means nothing. I think I proved that last year."

Agajanian's personal football "line" is place kicking, a specialty at which he has compiled a record of proficiency and longevity rivaled by only one other player—Lou Groza of the Cleveland Browns. But, whereas Groza has gained his reputation as "The Toe," Agajanian is renowned as "The Toeless."

Ben and Mrs. Agajanian: he proposed by wire (see story). Agajanian's most recent assignment was coaching rookie Dallas kicker. His next . . . who knows?

THE ONLY professional football player to be featured in Robert Ripley's "Believe It or Not," Agajanian had four toes on his right (kicking) foot seared off in an elevator accident while he was attending the University of New Mexico in 1941. He wears a size 10 shoe on his left foot and a size 7 with a square toe on his right.

"My big problem now is that I still love football, but I haven't the time for it and my business too," he continued. "I've always considered myself a businessman first, and a part-time football specialist second. And there aren't many teams that want a part-time player."

Both the Dallas Texans of the American League and Green Bay Packers of the National League had need for a part-time (he traveled to the games on weekends and returned home during the week) Agajanian last year, and Bootin' Ben made headlines throughout the nation for recording his umpteenth comeback.

After starting the season at Dallas, where he kicked a 51-yard field goal, he was summoned to Green Bay by coach Vince Lombardi when Packer star Paul Hornung was called into the Army. He played in five games, including the world championship contest, and helped beat the Rams at the Coliseum by kicking a 28-yard field goal.

Bootin' Ben shows the kicking form that put him at the top.

This year, Agajanian returned to Green Bay as a training camp kicking coach, but was released voluntarily last month.

"WITH HORNUNG back, they didn't need me any more as a kicker. Lombardi wanted me to stay on as a full-time kicking coach, but I can't afford to leave my business," reiterated Ben.

Last week, he again joined the Dallas team to help coach a rookie kicker. Where he will be next week is anybody's guess, but Agajanian won't consider permanent retirement.

"As long as I am wanted, I'll play football. The greatest feeling is being wanted. It is more important than money. I would play for nothing."

So it is a good bet "The Toeless" won't stay jobless for long. A career spanning 20 years in pro football substantiates Agajanian's amazing ability to pop up when he has been considered plopped down.

After the elevator accident, doctors told Ben he never would be able to kick again, but he was back bootin' in two months. "I kicked and it hurt,"

How one of the world's largest bovine hotels pampers its guests

Get Along, Little Dogie You're About to Grow Up

By Jack B. Kemmerer

LOCATED on what used to be some of Southern California's most arid wasteland is a finishing school for steers that not only is one of the largest in the world, but also the most modern with the newest of electronic equipment and machinery practically replacing the cowboy and the old "home on the range."

Strung out on California State Highway 111, just south of Indio and between Coachella and Thermal, is an intricate maze of cattle, automation, grain, cattle pens, and both rail and truck transportation — all geared to supply the Southland's tremendous beef demands—the largest in the world.

Forced feeding of young cattle, or, more properly, the "finishing of beef," is more or less new in California. The Coachella Valley Feed Yard is a custom-feeding operation which means that the yard feeds cattle belonging to owners from all over the country. For example, in the pens now are cattle from the Everglades and lake regions of Florida, the boundless ranges of Texas, some from the bayou country of Louisiana, as well as Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, and of course, California.

THE YARD operators also stock and sell their own animals and keep a full-time buyer in the field following auctions and generally scouring the country for competitively priced steers.

Able to handle 30,000 steers at one time, the yard's success has been accomplished entirely by automation. Trucks start arriving early in the morning and their grain can be unloaded at a rate of 100 tons per hour and can be processed through an automatic mill at the rate of one ton of mixed feed per minute. The mill is operated by a labor force of only 15 men. With each of the 28,000 steers eating about 25 pounds of feed per day, fast, automatic handling is a tremendous time and money saver.

The steers' menu is based on a highly concentrated and scientifically compounded diet from the very first day. Utilizing the latest findings in nutrition, the young steers receive troughs full of ground hay and beet pulp roughage, mixed with barley and milo sorghum, along with cottonseed oil, molasses, culled dates and, occasionally, orange pulp.

Each of the varied items on the steers' menu arrives at the yard in its pure form, and the electronic mixing process begins almost as soon as the items are unloaded. One man, in front of an electronic control board that would look more at home at a missile launching range, controls the entire mixing and grinding process. This control center is so accurate that the mixed rations received by the young steers is repeated day after day, never varying more than one-tenth of 1 per cent.

FROM THE mill the mixed feed

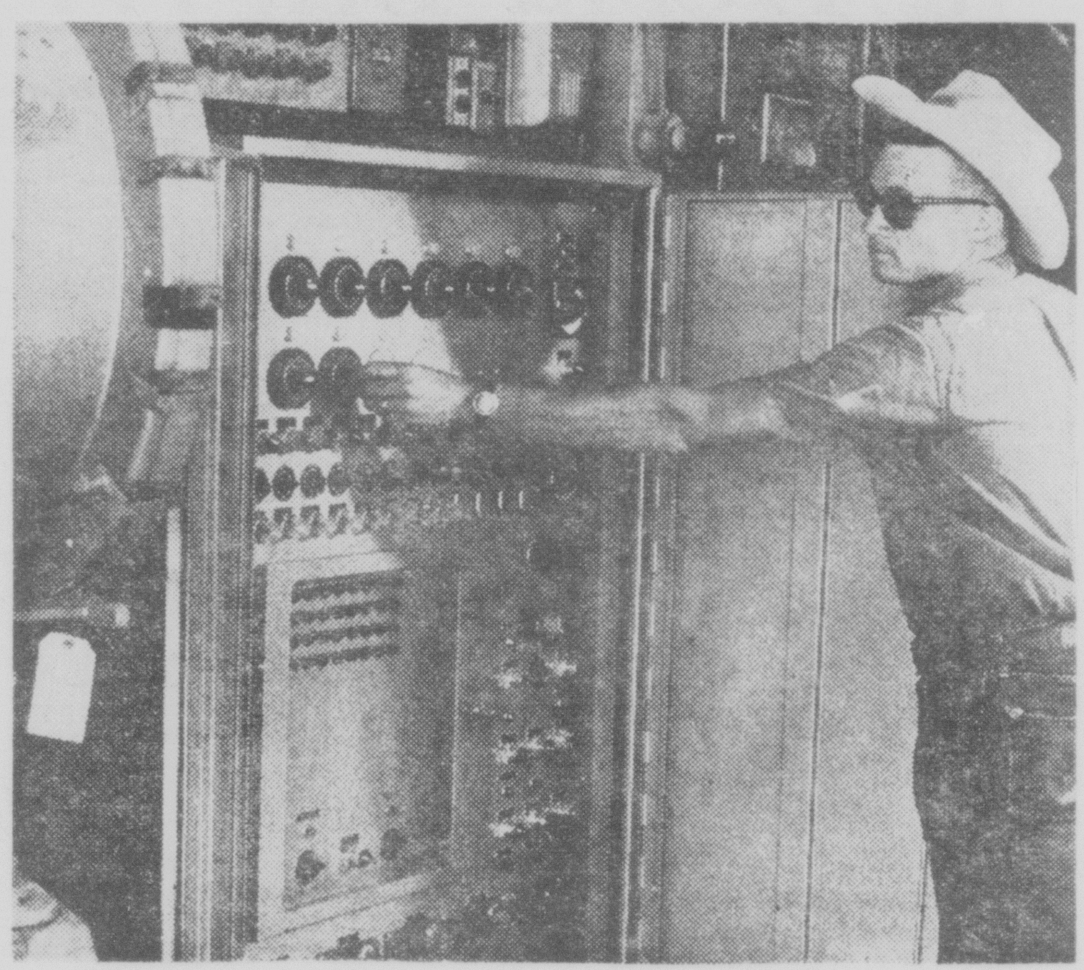
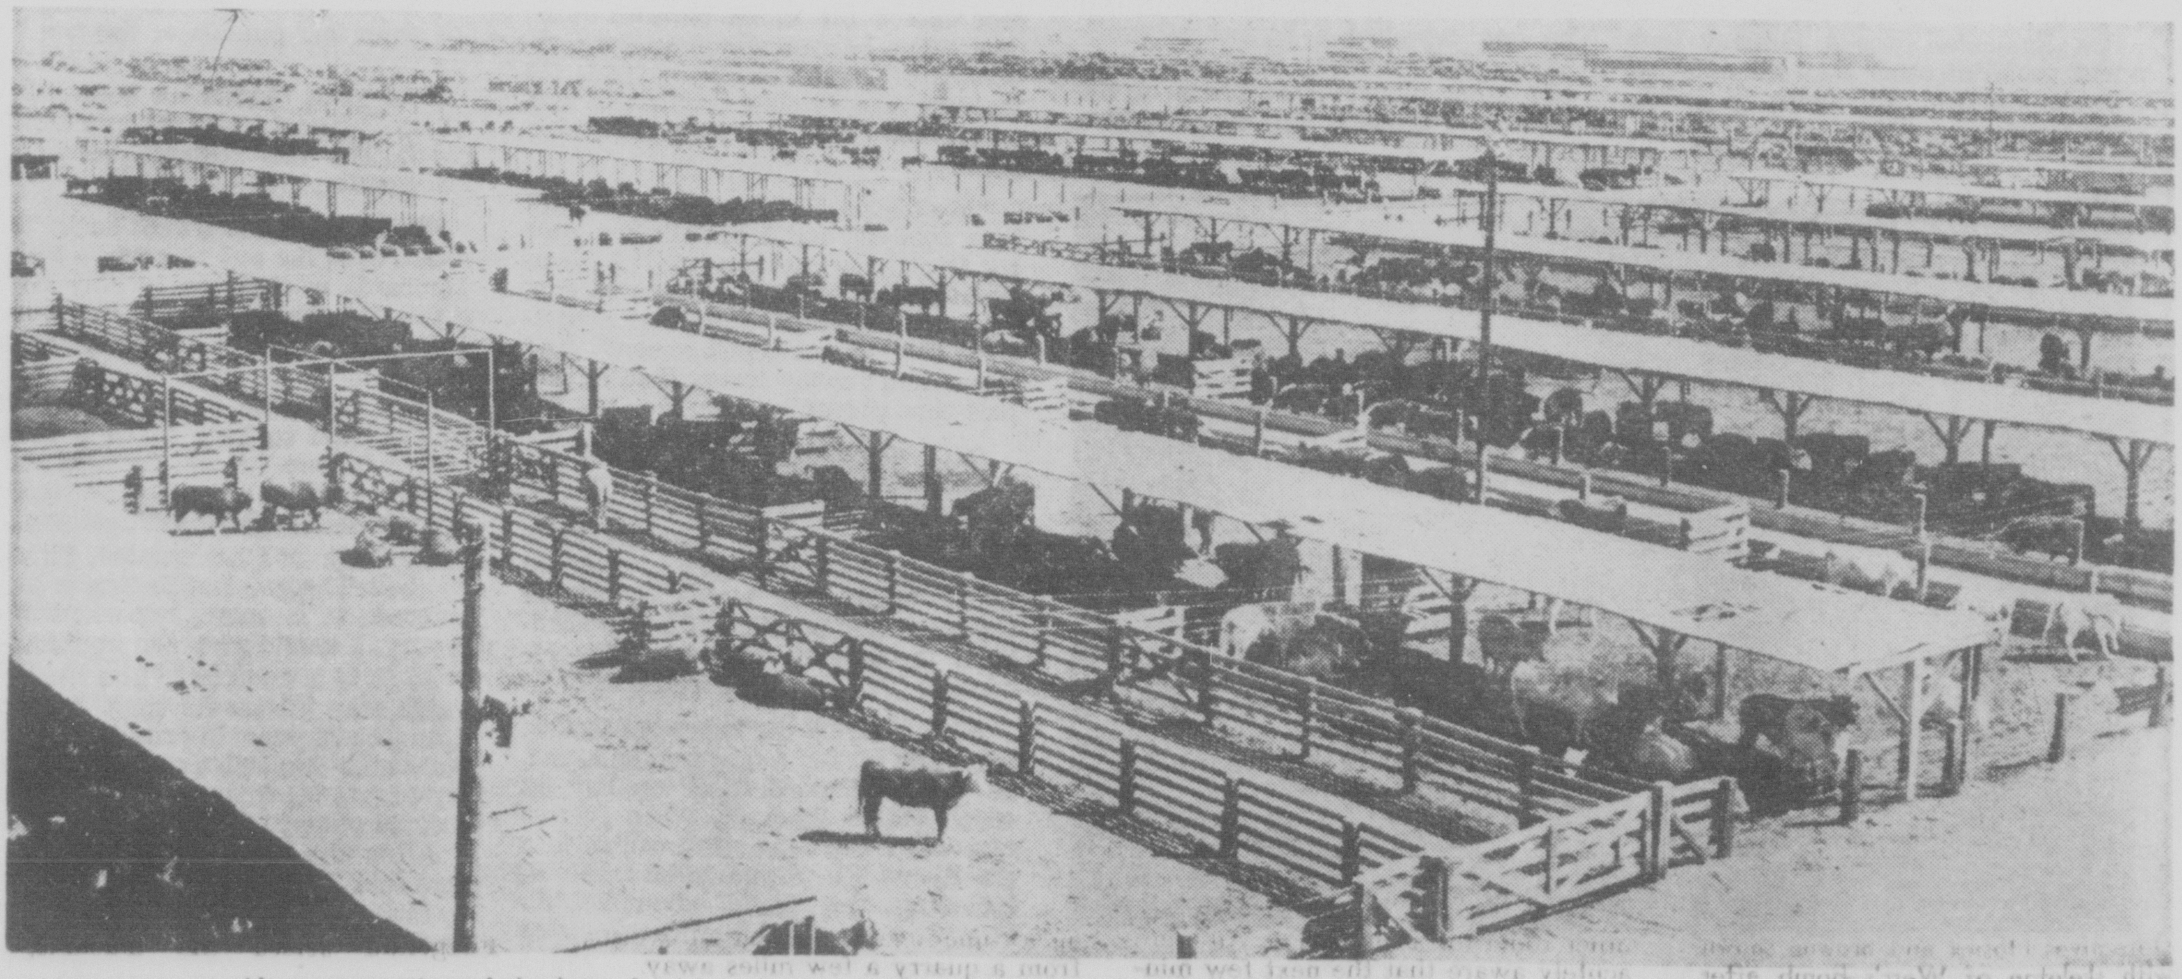
Fat cattle are the product of a vast feeding operation in the arid land near Indio. Scientific diet and plenty to eat put weight on the animals.



Automation figures largely in the cattle-fattening process. This man at the control panel directs amounts of feed in a ration by setting dials.



Above, a portion of the huge feed lot which is situated on 250 acres. Pens hold from 15 to 800 head. Alleys facilitate the operation.

Los Angeles waited two awful hours for the human bomb to carry out his threat . . .

Terror at Central Station

By C. V. Tench

FOR TWO spine-chilling hours the population of Los Angeles waited in terror for an explosion that could wreck part of the city, killing and maiming thousands.

One embittered man was responsible for that awful ordeal. To revenge himself on a society he hated, he had turned himself into a human bomb.

The reign of terror was recorded Nov. 20, 1912, when this man walked into Los Angeles Central Police Station. He sat down in the office of Chief of Police Charles E. Sebastian and threatened to blow up the building and several city blocks if his orders were not obeyed.

At first no one took him seriously. Officers on duty trooped into the chief's sanctum to peer at the weird-looking character, decided he was just another harmless crank, smiled and walked out again.

But before the matter ended no one was smiling. For almost two hours the man terrorized a whole section of Los Angeles.

A MASK completely covered his head and neck. Slits were cut for his eyes and mouth, and there were green goggles over the eyeholes.

He had crossed his legs, and on his knee he held a heavy box-like contraption, supported by thick straps over his shoulders. His left hand was thrust through an opening at one end. Its top was of glass and inside were what looked like sticks of dynamite. At first the police believed they were dummies. Later they discovered that the sticks were 80 per cent nitroglycerine.

The human bomb was identified later as 34-year-old Carl Warr, of Russian descent, with a lengthy record of minor crimes.

He demanded that Chief Sebastian immediately send for Paul Shoup, then president of the Pacific Electric Railway Co., and that Shoup must at once agree to raise the wages of the company's thousands of employes, and to right several "wrongs."

Warr warned all not to touch him. He said that if he withdrew his left hand from the box the fuse would begin to burn. He asked for an explosives expert, passed him a stick of dynamite with his right hand and told him to test it.

AFTER DOING so the expert was set-faced. The human bomb had proved he was not bluffing. A potential mass killer, Warr was a perilous problem, unique in history.

By now the news had spread. Reporters and photographers were crowding into the room, to be immediately ordered out by Warr.

Outside, a huge crowd had gathered. If the bomb had exploded, the carnage would have been appalling.

Realizing the terrible danger, Chief Sebastian ordered that the police station be evacuated, and the crowds outside be held back with ropes. The occupants of adjoining buildings were ordered to get out fast.

Two hundred men and women prisoners from the cells were herded into streetcars and driven to a safe distance.

By now, only seven officers and Warr remained in the police station. All had volunteered to remain in an endeavor to disarm Warr. Leaving the human bomb alone for a few minutes, the seven officers went into another room for a discussion. All were acutely aware that the next few minutes could be their last.

Except for the courage and cunning of a group of Los Angeles policemen, Carl Warr (above), the Human Bomb, might have created horrible carnage.

VARIOUS WAYS of dealing with Warr were considered. Gas was ruled out as not being fast enough. Warr had to be killed or knocked out instantly.

It was noted that the door of a small ante-room was directly behind Carl Warr. It was agreed that Detectives Fitzgerald and Browne would engage Warr in conversation. They would try to talk him out of his crazy plan, but at the same time praise his skill and ingenuity. Their task was to hold Warr's attention while the door behind him was being opened slowly.

Detective Hosick would then try to kill or stun the anarchist with one terrific blow on the head with a heavy night stick.

Fitzgerald and Browne then went back into the other room and began talking to Warr. They were friendly and told him how much they admired his inventive and constructive genius.

CARL WARR responded to the praise. He boasted that he had spent long weeks building the bomb. He had stolen the dynamite, a few sticks at a time over a period of weeks, from a quarry a few miles away.

He added he had hundreds more sticks buried under leaves near Eastlake Park.

Meanwhile, Detective Hosick, shirt-sleeved and scarcely breathing, in his right hand a heavy night stick, was immediately behind Warr.

Crowded, breathless and tense, behind Hosick were Chief Sebastian and three other officers. If Warr turned his head and saw Hosick, he would explode his bomb immediately. And if Hosick's first blow only half-stunned Warr he would not have another chance. And not for a moment did Detectives Browne and Fitzgerald let their eyes stray from Warr's to the door opening behind him. They kept on talking, fast and loud, just in case a door hinge squeaked.

THE ONLY sounds were their own voices and the murmur of the crowds in the streets.

At last Hosick brought the night stick down with all his strength on Warr's head. As Warr fell to the floor his left hand slipped out of his box.

There was a flash of flame. The machine sizzled and spluttered. Springs whirred. The bomb would go off at any moment.

Fitzgerald seized the machine,

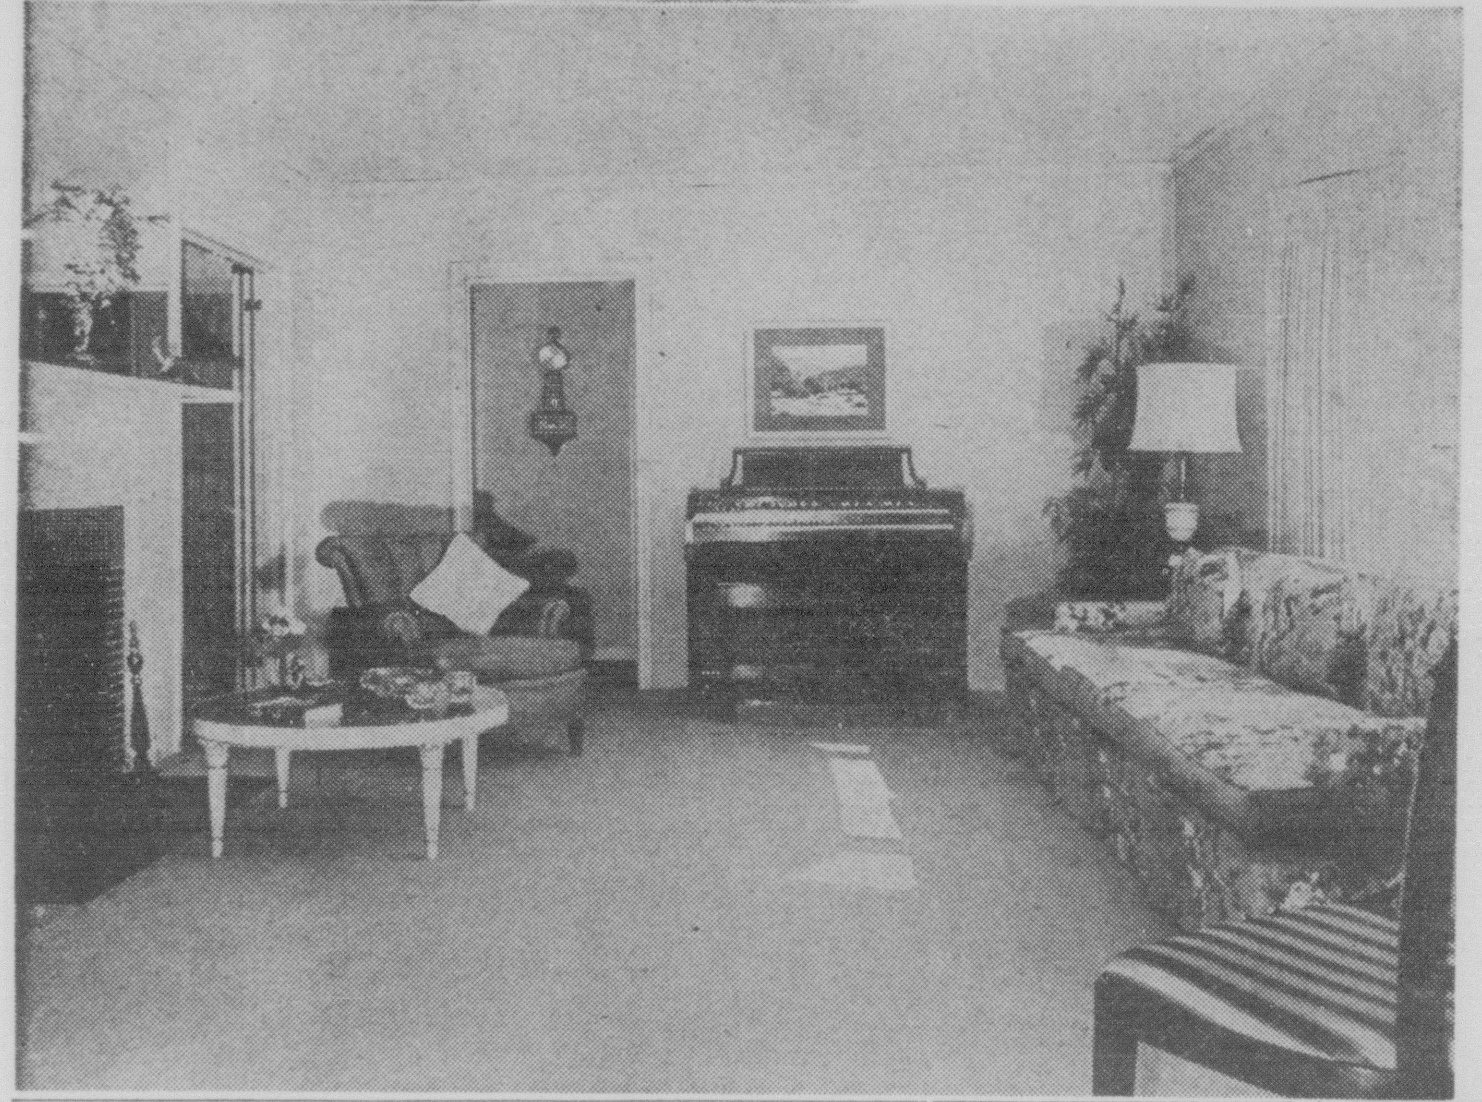
SOUTHLAND HOMES

With a Corner on Good Living

By Stella George



THE HOME of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rockwell, and son, Bob, is located on a large corner lot at 3901 Brayton, a street situated in a quiet, residential area. Both from the front and side there is a pleasant view of the shaded street and houses across the way.

Careful decoration by Mrs. Rockwell provides a constant atmosphere of warmth and comfort for her husband and grown son, and the gay, sunny kitchen substantiates the fact that she enjoys her role as homemaker to the fullest. Certain additions to the house have given it a unique quality: there is a place for each person to enjoy family apartness when the mood strikes.

A small entry hall leads to the living room on the right, the "music" room (or den) directly ahead, and a separate dining room on the left. To the right of the den, in back of the living room, an area which was once on the outside of the house is now another den, or sewing room, or relaxing room.

THE HALL off the living room leads to two bedrooms and a bath. A swing and stay shutter door in the dining room leads to the large kitchen which has a service porch adjoining. In short: this is a home that provides functional and pleasurable living for the occupants.

The living room is simply furnished with fine

Tiny den shown here was once a portion of the rear yard. Brick wall (right) was exterior wall of house.

pieces, chosen for their individual worth. A long quilted couch backs the bay window, and faces the fireplace across the way. A mahogany Hammond organ at the far end of the room is Rockwell's favorite piece of furniture, from the point of view of usability; he can play this organ while his son has fun with the piano in the music room a short distance away. Neither bothers the other, but by opening doors they can play a duet if desired.

The painting atop the piano is the lone decoration on the wall. It was done by Paul Conner, widely known artist and Mrs. Rockwell's father. Other paintings in the home also were done by Conner.

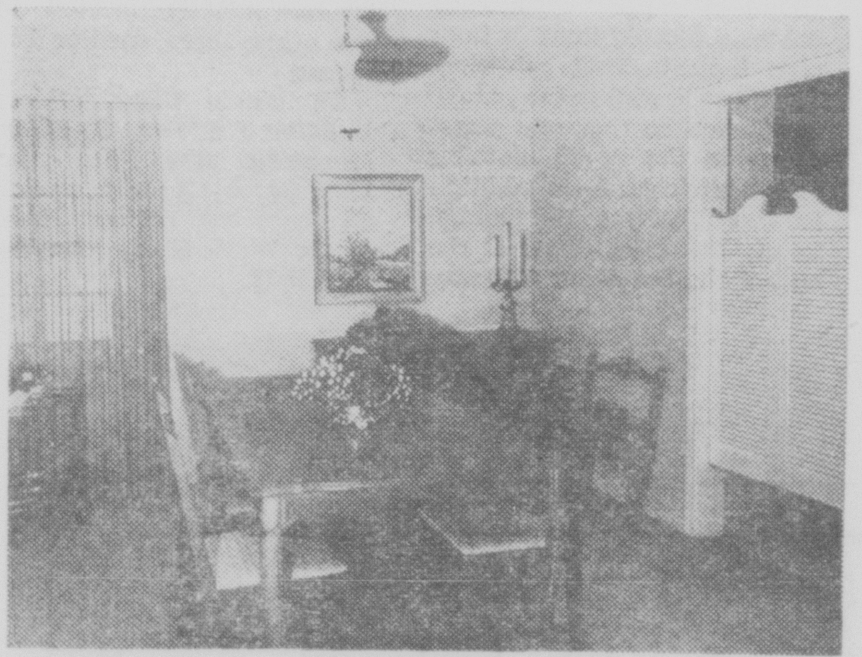
Carpeting in the room and adjoining areas is sand-colored nylon.

THE SMALL music room also has built-in shelves for books and a television set.

The den is small and cozy. A couch faces a coffee table, hand-carved by Conner. A Winthrop desk is in one corner. The brick wall on one side appears to be a decorative touch. Actually, it is there because the room is an addition to what was once the outside of the house.

The dining room is furnished with a blond walnut dining set. The kitchen adjoining is surprisingly large and predominately white. A corner window looks out on the landscaped lawn.

At one side of the rear yard, the Rockwells, father and son, have built a tropic room with a thatched roof that fulfills its purpose as a family rumpus room or entertaining room equally as well. The smooth lawn that leads to the tropic room is landscaped to enhance the tropical motif.



Rockwell dining room reflects good choice in furnishings, assuming a customed appearance in decoration.

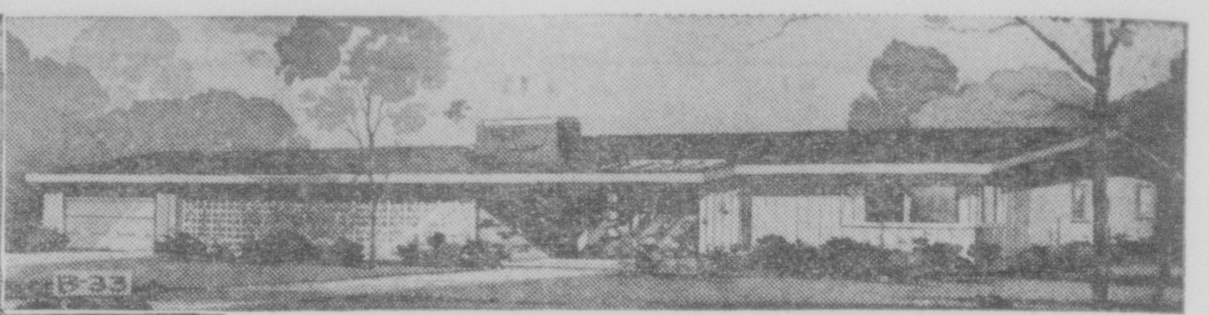
Glamorous adjunct to the living room is this barbecue nook, roofed and screened from the street by the masonry grille, actually a full-fledged outdoor room.



Although modest in size—habitable area 1,193 square feet—this home has unusual and attractive features.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Six Rooms Indoors and One Outside

By David L. Bowen

LIP SERVICE is paid lavishly to outdoor living these days, but in most houses of moderate-to-small size, living in the outdoors usually boils down to a rear terrace. If you're lucky, it may be covered. Seldom is there provision for privacy.

The real enjoyment of outdoor living comes from being able to relax, dine, entertain or read the Sunday newspapers in the fresh air without the annoying sensation that you're appearing in public. And the outdoor area should be in close conjunction with an indoor room, so that it seems like you're almost out even when you're in.

A GOOD example of what modern outdoor living should be is contained in B-33 in the House of the Week series, designed by the architect, Rudolph A. Matern. An L-shaped covered porch bends around the living room. Sliding glass doors in the living room wall make the indoor and outdoor space flow together.

An elaborate, decorative masonry grille — actually the key to this whole end of the house — provides the necessary privacy both to the porch and the living room. A barbecue gives the area a point of interest of its own to emphasize what it actually is—a full fledged room, which enjoys the special freshness and exhiliration of the outdoors.

DESPITE the luxury of this porch and the fact the house has four bedrooms and 1½ baths, B-33 is not big. Excluding the terraces, the living area is only 1,193 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 57 feet in width by 27 feet 1 inch in depth.

The simplicity of the room arrangement permits every square foot of space to be put to maximum use. Both the living room and the open kitchen-dining area are much larger than you might expect. A center hall in the bedroom area creates excellent traffic circulation.

Matern provided generous storage space throughout the home. Closets are large in all bedrooms, and there's an abundant supply of kitchen cabinets (dotted lines in floor plan indicate wall cabinets). The storage wall in the garage is planned so that one closet opens to the porch, another to the back yard—in addition to those serving the garage itself. The guest closet at the end of the basement stairway space helps to divide the living room and dining room.

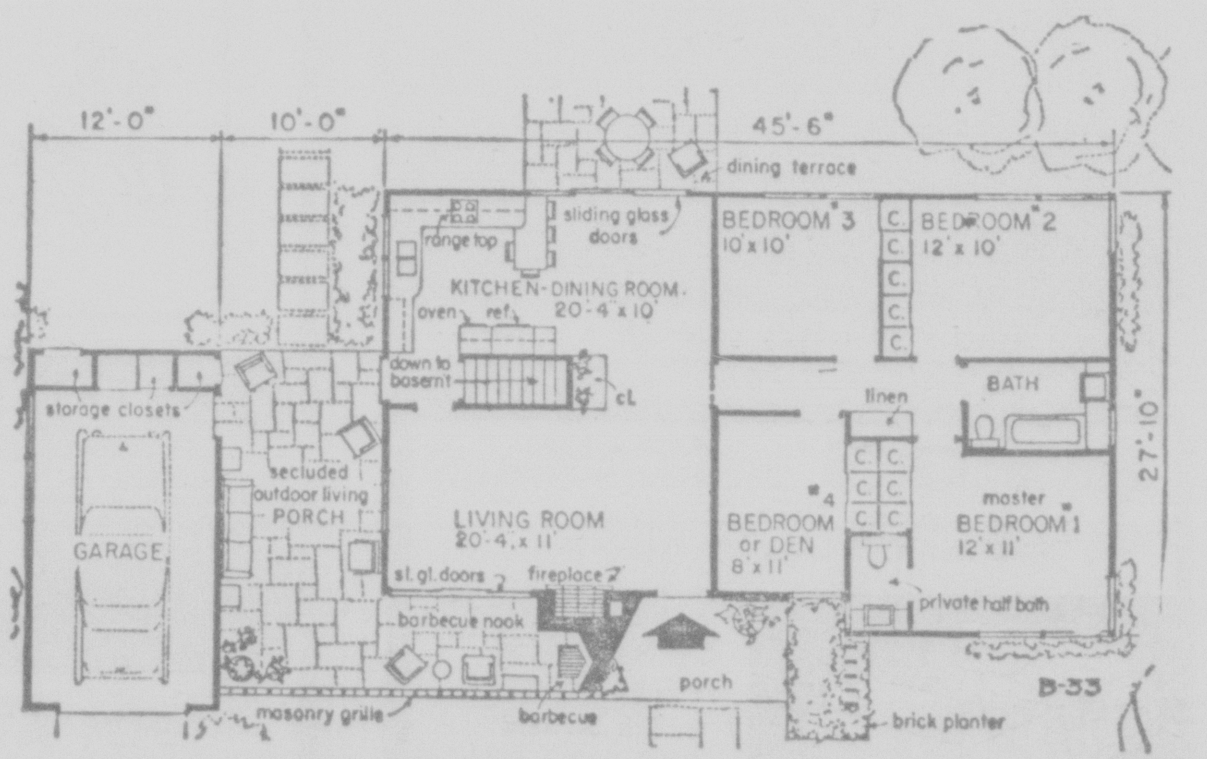
A DRAMATIC accent in exterior decor is created by the unusual shape of the chimney. The angled extension of the chimney to the front forms one "wall" of the porch sheltering the front entry. Combined with the brick planter and graceful wooden uprights at the other end, it creates a warm and attractive welcome for the visitor.

The straight lines and low pitch of the roof add to the picture of prestige. Roof openings over part of the entrance porch yield interesting light and shadow patterns.

There is an air of informality in the dining facilities. In addition to the dining room, kitchen snack space is provided by a built-in counter at regular table height.

One final advantage of B-33 is that bathroom traffic jams have been avoided. A private half-bath serves the master bedroom. The full bathroom is conveniently located for the other three smaller bedrooms.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-33.



Simple lines and rectangular shape of the basic house permit maximum livability in minimum space. Traffic patterns are easy, informal; outdoor living extensive.

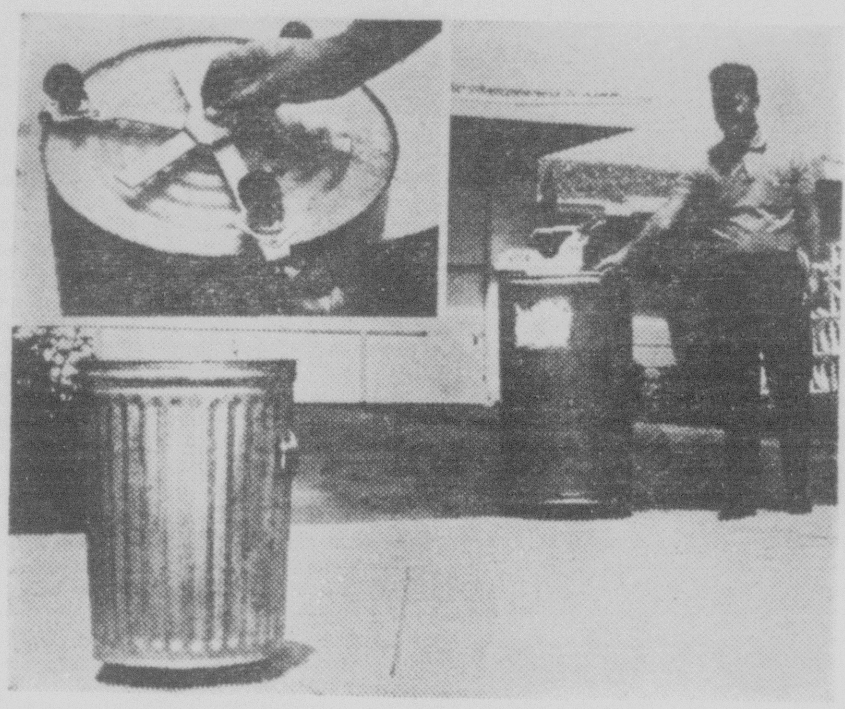
Dolly Eases Chores

IT'S NEW

SIMPLE-TO-ASSEMBLE, a forged steel, tri-wheeled skater dolly adds new convenience and comfort to home maintenance by putting wheels on many hard-to-move items such as planter boxes, tubs, trash disposal barrels and humus bins.

The patented ball bearing, three-wheel assembly of the Pemco skater dolly works silently on plastic wheels that swivel effortlessly in any direction. The cadmium-plated device can be assembled in a minute. Only a pair of pliers is necessary for making the final, secure adjustment.



Clamped to the bottom rim of circular, square or multi-sided barre's and bins, this skater dolly is handy item.

Available in two expandable size ranges up to 16 and 23 inches in diameter, the 16-inch model quickly adapts to boxes by fitting snuggly against the inside of the bottom panels of the box. The larger, 23-inch Pemco skater dolly fits securely to barrels by locking onto the bottom rim.

No bolts, pins or permanent fixture device is necessary in adapting the skater dolly unit to boxes or barrels.

Outstanding among its features is the design which permits this device to adjust to all common shapes, from perfect circles to eight-sided boxes.

Dixie Returns to Disneyland

ON A WARM autumn night in 1960, more than 9,000 Southland music lovers of two generations witnessed the recreation of an American culture.

The event was "Dixieland at Disneyland," a slice of history that raised emotions to a fever pitch and gave viewers a chance to work off that fever, to taper their emotions to a pleasant jazz beat.

No one had any idea they were witnessing the beginning of a renaissance of jazz and big bands—a renaissance that would spread to the ballrooms and auditoriums of the nation, to Europe, the Near East and the Orient, and even into the Soviet Union.

Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong and the Mark Twain Riverboat in Disneyland will again be "Dixieland" attractions.

More than that, the affair has become an annual event.

THIS YEAR "Dixieland at Disneyland" is expanding to two nights for the first time—Sept. 28-29.

Like everything else truely American, jazz had its origin in a distant land. Jungle locked for centuries, the primitive beat found its way across a vast ocean and landed along the Delta of the Mississippi where, for the first time, it began its own distinctive style and development.

"Dixieland at Disneyland" retells that story from the beginning. From across the dark waters the slow beat of drums rises out of the thickets like creation itself calling to be released from the jungle. A chorus of voices swells in an old Negro spiritual. From the lights of a haunted past a choral group gradually comes into view, standing at the water's edge. The voices build and die, and another sound is heard from far down the river — the faint tinsel sound of a Dixie beat.

One by one, rafts move up the river, each bearing a Dixieland band playing classics out of Basin Street, the Kansas City Joints, the Chicago holes, and the New York jazz cellars.

THE SIGHT and sound of the Mark Twain Riverboat puffing up the river, ablaze with lights and sparklers and 50 musicians blasting "The Saints Come Marching In," tears up emotions and lets them fall like confetti over Frontierland.

Appearing with Daniel Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, the Yankee Doodle Dandee of Jazz, for the 1962 production will be two of his original "Hot Five" from the Delta, Johnny St. Cyr, and Kid Ory. Jazz bands will include the Young Men From New Orleans; The Dukes of Dixieland; Teddy Buckner and his muted trumpet; the Firehouse Five Plus Two; and an authentic surprise Dixieland group imported from New Orleans.

Visitors this year will see the show on the river from the park's own Delta, a wide new area specially designed and created for the Dixieland show for more and better viewing.

Following the show which starts at 8 p.m., each band will play out the evening at different locations in Disneyland for dancing and listening till 2 a.m.

You Ask We Answer

By Haskin

Q. Are most American women naturally brunettes? T. O.

A. Yes. A survey made a few years ago found that 48 per cent have naturally brown hair, 14 per cent black, 22 per cent gray or white, 8 per cent blonde, 7 per cent red — and 1 per cent of women have no hair at all. Every survey shows fewer natural blondes, and this seems to hold true in England, Canada, Australia, and other countries.

Q. At the New York World's Fair in 1939, what exhibit featured a trip on a make-believe rocket ship? V. S.

A. "The Theater of Time and Space" presented a "rocket journey to the very borders of space." In a 15-minute "journey" the spectator had the illusion of traveling by rocket ship (at the speed of 480 quintillion mph) to the moon, Venus, Mars, and the Milky Way, with a view of Saturn, and then back to earth.

Q. Why is it considered inadvisable to refreeze meat that has been allowed to thaw? H. M.

A. Because thawing and refreezing causes loss of quality, and may be dangerous. When frozen meat thaws, the tissues break down and become more susceptible to spoilage and to the entry of bacteria within the tissues. When meat that has been frozen and thawed is refrozen, any bacteria which have entered the meat tissues are retained.

Q. What government offices did Robert Lincoln hold? V. N.

A. Abraham Lincoln's oldest son, Robert (1843-1926), was named Secretary of War by President Garfield in 1881, and continued to serve under Garfield's successor, President Arthur. From 1889 to 1893, he was minister to Great Britain. He then became associated with the Pullman Company, and was its president from 1897 to 1911.

Q. In antique automobiles, what is a "classic"? P. C.

A. No complete definition has ever been agreed on. In general, a classic must embody "luxury, utility, and a sporting spirit." It must have been an expensive and highly desirable car in its own period, and it must have superior styling. Most of the cars now accepted as classics date from the period 1924-1941.

GRADE CARD

Prepare Now for Term Papers

By Harry Karns

Education Research Associates

QUESTION: "Looking ahead to the final month of the school year, I wonder why some of the work the teachers will heap on my daughter at that time can't be distributed over a longer period of time. Why can't she start on some of those term papers right now? Comment?"

ANSWER: She can. Most teachers try to ease the burden by giving notice of term papers and other special projects far in advance of the deadline. But they report that students have that familiar habit of putting things off until the last minute.

The pressure of work neglected over the months is one big reason why some students, even very bright ones, find the going rough around exam time and end up with poor grades.

An enormous amount of work can be done without too much laboring if it is spread out over a long period of time. Urge your youngster to organize his project in a way that permits intermittent effort, and to assign it a specific time on his homework schedule.

He should clearly understand the assignment. He should plan what he intends to do and outline that plan on paper. He should keep an orderly file of materials.

In most cases, the materials will be written ideas and information, and he will simply need a good system for keeping notes. Offer him these suggestions:

1. Write the notes on index cards or slips of paper of the same size and file them in a drawer or a shoe box.

2. Each time you develop an idea or obtain a piece of information, write it the way you think it should appear in the final paper and put it in its most logical position in the file of notes.

3. On each note record the source of information so you can go back to that source, if necessary, and give proper credit.

4. Constantly re-examine your notes, selecting, organizing, and discarding.

After a few weeks of this, the student will discover that his paper is largely written, that he has done a substantial piece of work without overworking at any single time.

(If you wish assistance in helping your child to do good work in school, mail questions and requests to Harry Karns, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12. Letters cannot be answered individually, but some will be answered in this "Grade Card" column.)

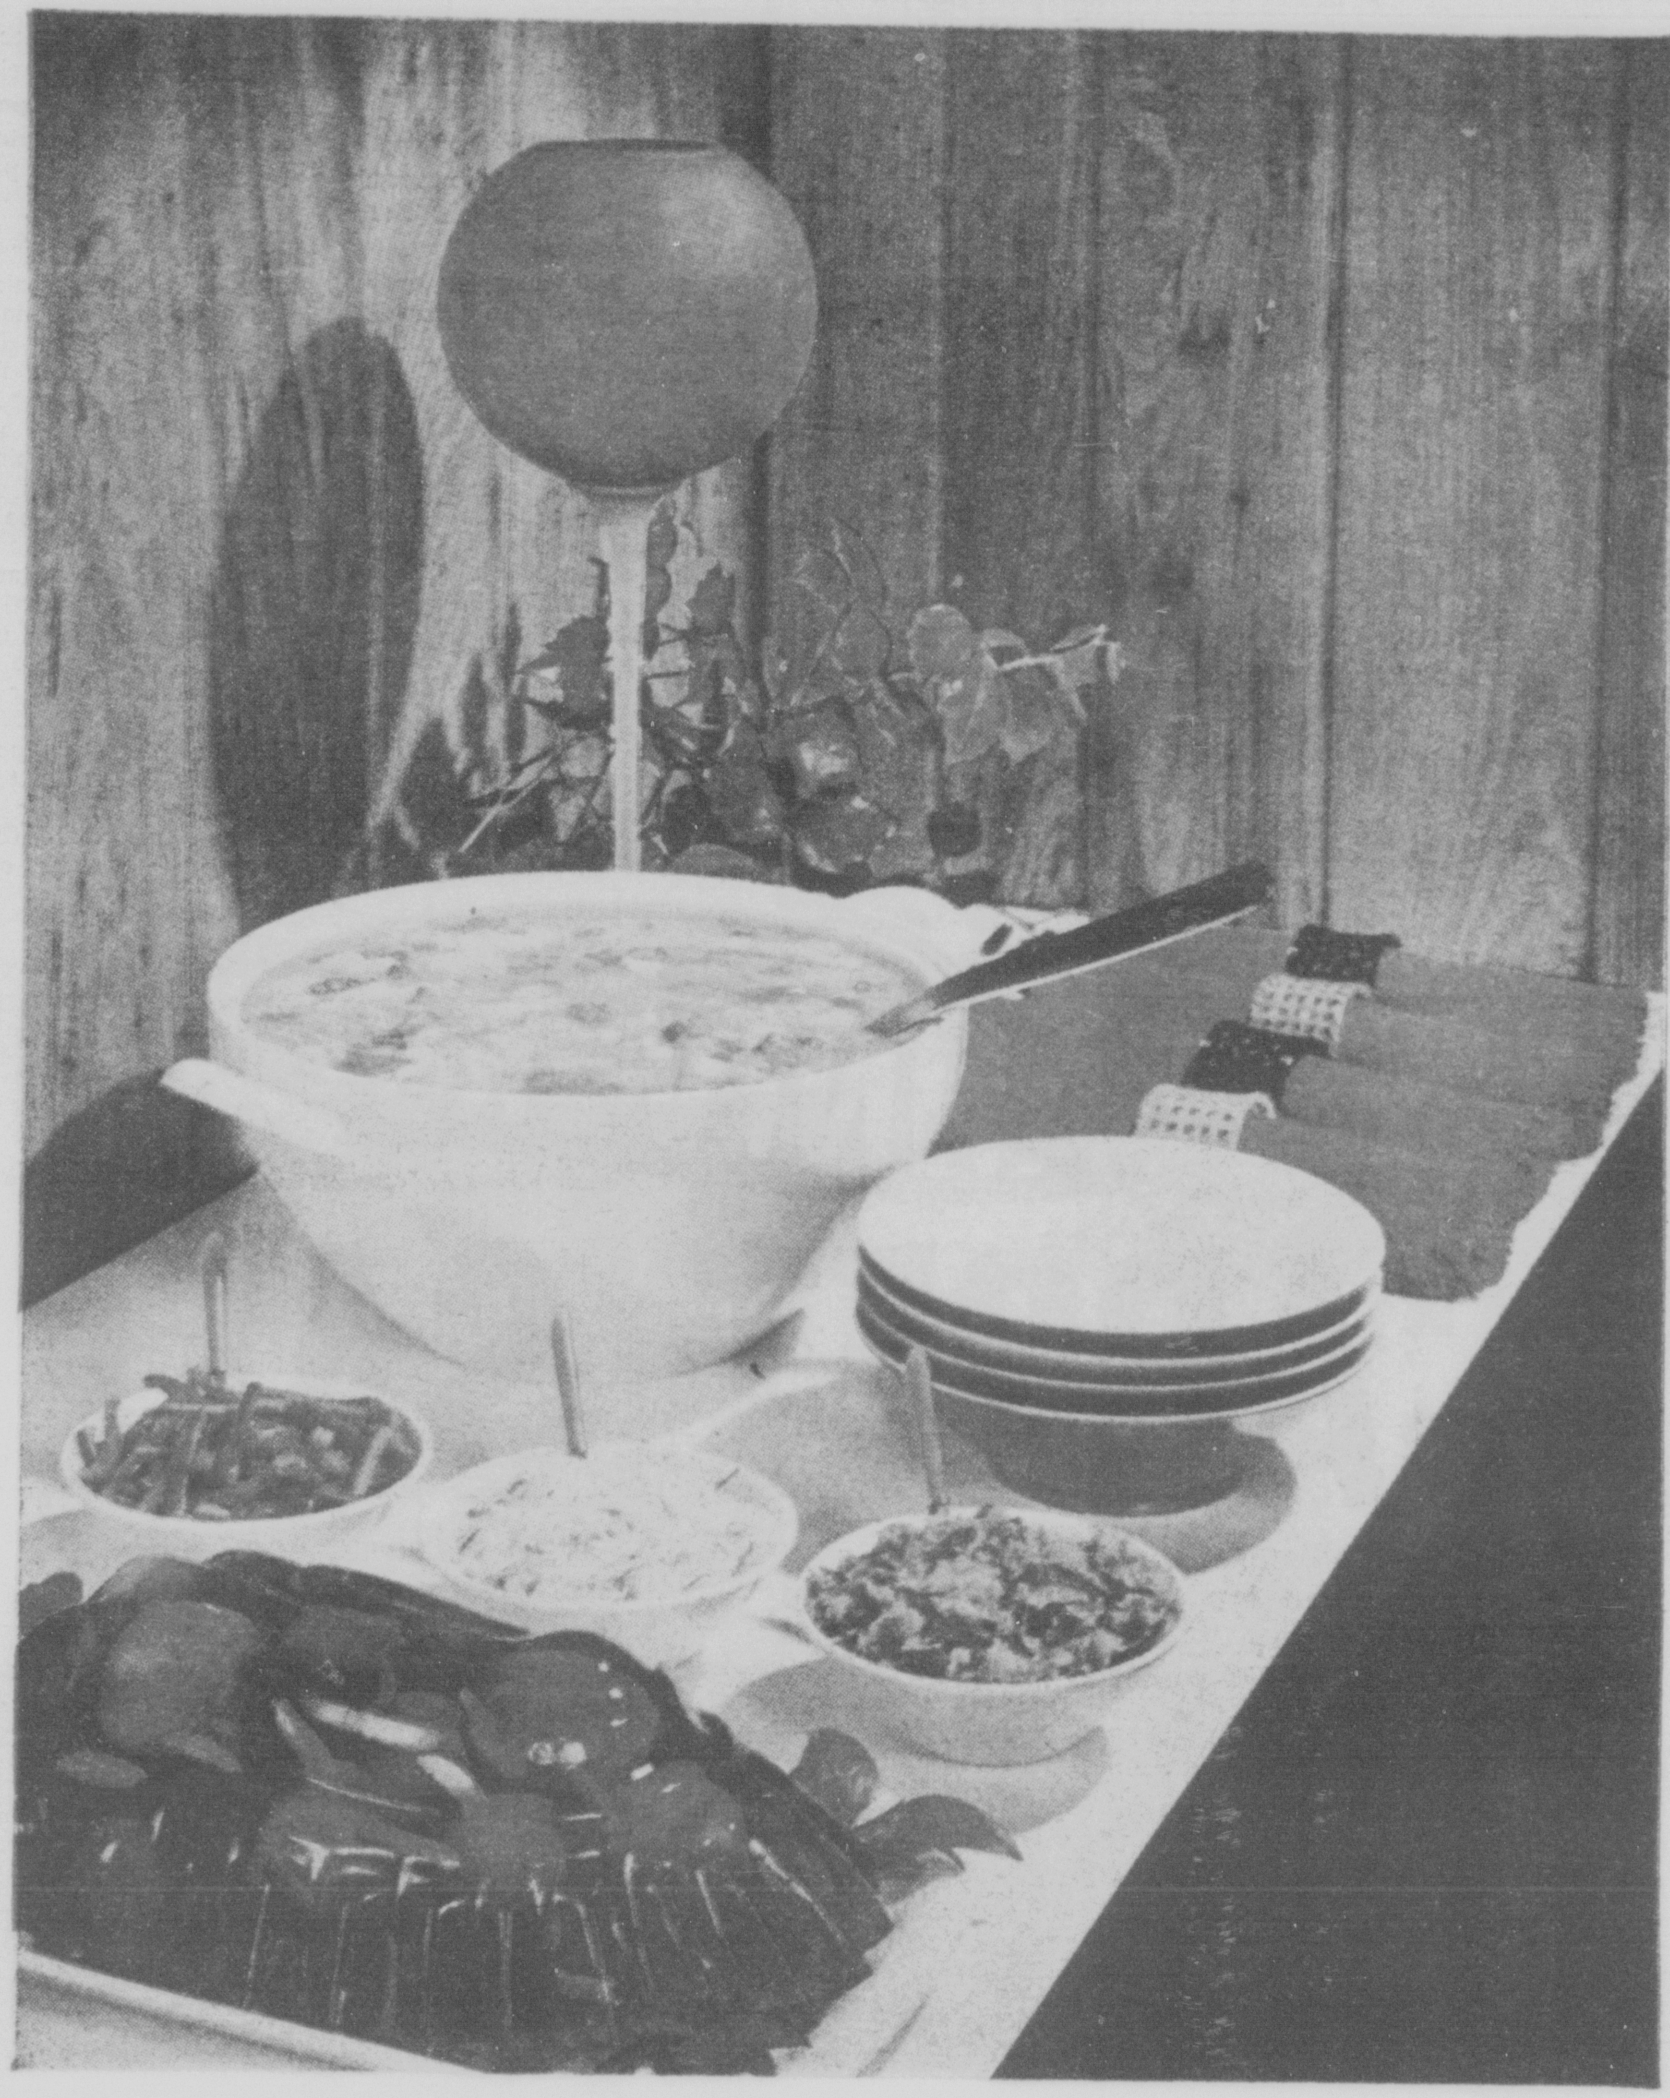
Soups Pace A Meal



In the American family, soup has long been a standby; and now, with a little imagination and little or no effort, soup can be served as a festive dish. Above, curried turkey vegetable with molded salad, condiments.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Home Economics Editor

CANDLES glowed; silver gleamed in the red and white table decor in The Terrace of The Plaza in New York. The occasion was a dinner party given by Campbell Soup Co. for newspaper food editors.

Proud originators and purveyors of the canned condensed version of one of the oldest and most esteemed dishes in existence, Campbell announced four new soups to the assembled editors. The lengthy line of canned soups has been swelled by one more —turkey vegetable. Red Kettle soup mixes now number eight with cream of potato, old-fashioned beef, and vegetable soup mixes joining the five introduced last spring.

Soup, in any form, has been the right arm of hostesses. It flatters the palates of the most finicky guests. With a dash of imagination and little or no effort, the canned condensed soups can be turned into party fare. Such is this curried turkey vegetable soup which becomes the star of a company meal. A crisp and tart molded salad accompanied the curry dish beautifully. So easy to serve buffet style with its wonderful accompaniments, this recipe makes a colorful contribution to a supper party in honor of someone special, whether it be a wedding shower, or simply an introduction.

It was a truly gourmet occasion, and the turkey vegetable soup, delightfully seasoned with curry powder, created a very festive dish when served with condiments — chopped green pepper, toasted coconut and crumbled cooked bacon. A tart molded cherry salad complemented the main dish.

Curried Turkey Vegetable Soup

1 can (10¾-oz.) condensed turkey vegetable soup
1 soup can water
¼ to ½ teaspoon curry powder

In saucepan, combine all ingredients. Heat, stirring now and then. Makes 2 to 3 servings.

Another colorful luncheon or supper dish is this Spinach Potato Bowl.

Spinach Potato Bowl

2 cups cold water
1 can (2⅜-oz.) cream of potato soup mix
1 cup milk
½ cup cooked chopped spinach
Dash nutmeg

In saucepan, gradually blend water into soup mix until smooth. Bring to boil, stirring. Partially cover; simmer 10 minutes, stirring now and then. Add remaining ingredients; heat, stirring. Makes 3 to 4 servings.

Campbell's home economists, in introducing their new soups as separate courses, also stressed that there are many ways to cook with soups. Here are a few of their suggestions:

Tomato Horseradish Sauce

1 can (10½ oz.) condensed tomato soup
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
Dash ground cloves
Dash black pepper

In saucepan, blend all ingredients. Heat, stirring often. Serve with beef, pork, ham, frankfurters or meat loaf. Makes about 1½ cups sauce.

"Souper" Scalloped Potatoes

1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of celery, chicken, or mushroom soup
½ cup milk
Dash black pepper
4 cups sliced potatoes
1 small onion, sliced
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Dash paprika

Blend soup, milk and pepper. Arrange alternate layers of potatoes, onion, and sauce in a buttered 1½-quart casserole. Dot top with butter; sprinkle with paprika. Cover. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 1 hour. Uncover. Bake an additional 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Cream Soup-Sauces

Blend 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed cream of celery or mushroom soup with ⅓ to ½ cup milk; cream of asparagus or chicken soup requires only ⅓ cup milk. Simmer about 2 minutes. Makes enough pour-on sauce for: 1 pound meat as meat loaf; baked fish; 6 croquettes or chops; 2 cups cooked vegetables.

Tomato Soup-Sauce

Heat 1 can (10½ oz.) condensed tomato soup just as it comes from the can. Season to suit individual taste. Use as a pour-on sauce for pork chops, beef patties, corned beef hash, frankfurters, or fish sticks. Makes about 1¼ cups sauce.

"Souper" Gravy

For fried chicken, and several roast meats the condensed cream soups make a wonderful gravy that is guaranteed smooth and so flavorful.

Remove meat from pan; pour off and measure drippings. Pour 1 can (10½ oz.) cream of celery, chicken, or mushroom soup into pan. Stir well to loosen browned bits. Blend in ¼ cup water and 2 to 4 tablespoons drippings. Heat, stirring often. If gravy seems too thick, add water for desired consistency. Makes about 1½ cups gravy.

This Bovine Hotel Really Pampers Its Guests

goes into storage bins, waiting there for the large feeding trucks and trailers to pick it up for distribution to the cattle pens. The yard's hungry guests consume about 350 tons of feed each day and it takes about 12 hours to deliver to their pens.

One of the major problems at the yard from the very start was that of aroma. The yard's management knew that the best way to keep their neighbors from complaining was to stop the aroma before it started. So they bisected the entire yard with a long row of 30-foot pipes which daily shoot a scented Aerosol spray over the area to mask not only the steers' native odors, but that of the feed as well.

The steers check in to the feed yard weighing from 450 to 700 pounds and are sent on to the market weighing from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds. The extra weight is gained at the rate of about 2¾ pounds per day.

It is easy to tell range beef from "finished" beef with the finished steak having fine veins of fat marbling within the meat and doesn't depend on a fat rind for its flavor. Usually, finished beef is more juicy and of a finer texture as well as being far more tender than beef directly off the range. The main reason is age. Finished beef comes from young animals that have been scientifically fed to produce top quality while range cattle are usually considerably older when they reach a marketable age. This accounts for the fact that their meat is tougher and because of their uncertain and haphazard diet, of the lower quality of the steak.

Agajanian

he recalls, "but I kept on kicking and kicking until the foot was numb."

WHILE SERVING in the Army from 1942-44, he played Sundays for the semipro Hollywood Bears and San Diego Bombers and never missed an extra point. He signed with the Philadelphia Eagles in 1945, and finished the season with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

At Philadelphia, Agajanian first gained national publicity by an off-the-field occurrence. Newspapers reported his proposal of marriage which he dispatched by Western Union telegram. It read:

"TO MISS ARLEEN PHELPS TUSTIN CALIF.

"IF YOU WILL MARRY ME WIRE YES AND I WILL SEND YOU THE MONEY TO COME ON."

The answer arrived in a few hours.

"YES SEND ME MONEY LOVE ARLEEN."

Happily married, Agajanian returned to Southern California to play with the Hollywood Bears in 1946, and joined the Los Angeles Dons of the new All-America Conference in 1947.

It was Aggie's greatest year. He kicked 15 field goals and 38 of 39 extra points to set a conference scoring record. He had another big year in 1948, and it was his two field goals that ended a two-year winning streak of the Cleveland Browns.

AGAJANIAN played for the New York Giants in 1949, and then retired until 1953 when he was signed by the Los Angeles Rams as a place - kicking replacement for present Ram coach Bob Waterfield. With Elroy Hirsch holding for him, he tied Waterfield's club record with a 47-yard field goal.

Aggie returned to the Giants in 1954, and enjoyed great success in New York through 1957. After another two-year layoff, he was beckoned by the new Los Angeles Chargers and helped them gain the first American League championship playoff in 1960.

In 15 years of competition, the San Pedro High School and Compton Junior College alumnus has missed only six extra points and has more field goals from past 50 yards than any other player.

Asked once by a high school player's father if cutting off his son's toes would aid his place-kicking, Aggie replied, "Don't do it unless you are sure he wants to stay in football."

And Ben Agajanian, "The Toeless" wonder, still is sure: He wants to stay in football.

Baked Chicken Drumsticks

BAKED CHICKEN DRUMSTICKS wins $5 as best recipe of the week for Don Harding, 2827 Mariquita St., Long Beach 3. The recipe:

2 chicken drumsticks (about 1 lb.)
1 tblsp. corn starch
¾ cup of water
1 chicken bouillon cube
¼ cup of water

Preheat oven to 500 degrees. Rub chicken sparingly with butter or oleo to which a small amount of garlic powder has been added. Chicken also dusted with flour. Place in roasting pan and bake half hour, uncovered.

Meanwhile, add one tablespoonful of corn starch to blend into the ¾ cup water that has been used to dissolve a chicken bouillon cube. When the chicken is taken out of the oven, nicely browned and removed to a platter to sit a few minutes, the ¼ cup of water is added to the roasting pan and heated, the pan scraped to get the browned bits into the water. Then the corn starch, bouillon, water mixture is added to the pan and cooked for a minute or so. Wonderful gravy.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address, to: Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

Thirteenth Century English records have Simon, Son of Philip, of the county of Kent. The Phillips family owned Picton Castle in Herefordshire. Their coat-of-arms has a black rampant lion on a golden shield. Nicholas Phillips came from England to Weymouth, Mass., in 1632 and was the ancestor of many modern American Phillips families.

ANTIQUES

Time's Treasures

By Helen L. Gillum

—Staff Photos by Roger Coar

Included in the collection are four German Royal Bonn clocks, of which this is one.

ACCUMULATING old-time china clocks is an interesting phase of antique clock collecting enjoyed by Mrs. T. H. Limerick of 348 Carroll Park West. Starting with just one clock about 10 years ago, she now owns 12 of them.

"When a small child, I admired a beautiful porcelain clock owned by a relative," she says. "All through the years, I cherished a secret desire for a china clock of my own. One day, I fell in love with a blue, gold-trimmed Royal Bonn clock from Germany, sitting on a shop shelf. I subsequently acquired it, and that started my hobby."

Mrs. Limerick's clocks all "run." However, the attraction for her lies more in the colors and styles than in the "works" or movements.

"They remind me of a flower garden in full bloom," she says. And that is exactly what they resemble, arranged on a display table in her home, forming a medley of blue, green, gold, maroon, wine, lavender and multicolors.

ALTHOUGH many of the clocks contain American-made works, the porcelain bodies were all made in European countries. Perhaps the prettiest and most valuable one is a white French clock with blue shadings, 14 inches high and 9 inches wide. Cupids decorate the face, and a young couple dances across the base. It is lavishly trimmed in gold scrollwork and pastel flowers.

Most valuable timepiece in a collection of china clocks is this white French specimen.

A little blue French clock, gay with wild roses and dated 1775, is intriguing because it has neither crystal or "bezel" —the grooved ring or flange that retains the crystal on today's clocks and watches. The date, 1775, may explain this, because the dial on many early timepieces lacked such protection.

There are four German Royal Bonn clocks, dated 1785. A clock from Holland in the popular "flow blue" finish, with a tulip in the base, is strikingly pretty, as is a green, English, hourglass-shaped clock with white swans swimming in the lake at its base.

THE ATTRACTIVE shapes and colors and varying sounds that the clocks emit seem to give them personalities of their own. Some whisper politely as they mark time, while others tick loudly and persistently, as though trying to convey the impression of great business. Those that strike the hours vary from meek little "pings" to robust bangs and bongs. One, according to Mrs. Limerick, "clangs like a trolley!" The graceful white French clock, on the other hand, has a subdued, genteel tick and chimes the hours in mellow, low-voiced tones — a winsome "lady clock," so to speak.

Except for thorough cleansing to remove the dust of time, the clocks remain essentially as they were the day they left their factories long ago. For their owner agrees with the majority of clock collectors that, beyond simple repairs, to electrify or otherwise renovate an old timepiece is to make it "nearly new," and thereby ruins it as a treasure. Since the making of porcelain clock cases is practically a lost art, it is desirable to preserve those that remain.

Berry Bearer

Native plant that fits well into Southland landscaping is the California Christmas berry, or toyon, as some prefer to call it. It is accepted as a large shrub or small tree of merit through nine months of the year, but come late fall, and it puts on a show that few domestic shrubs can match.

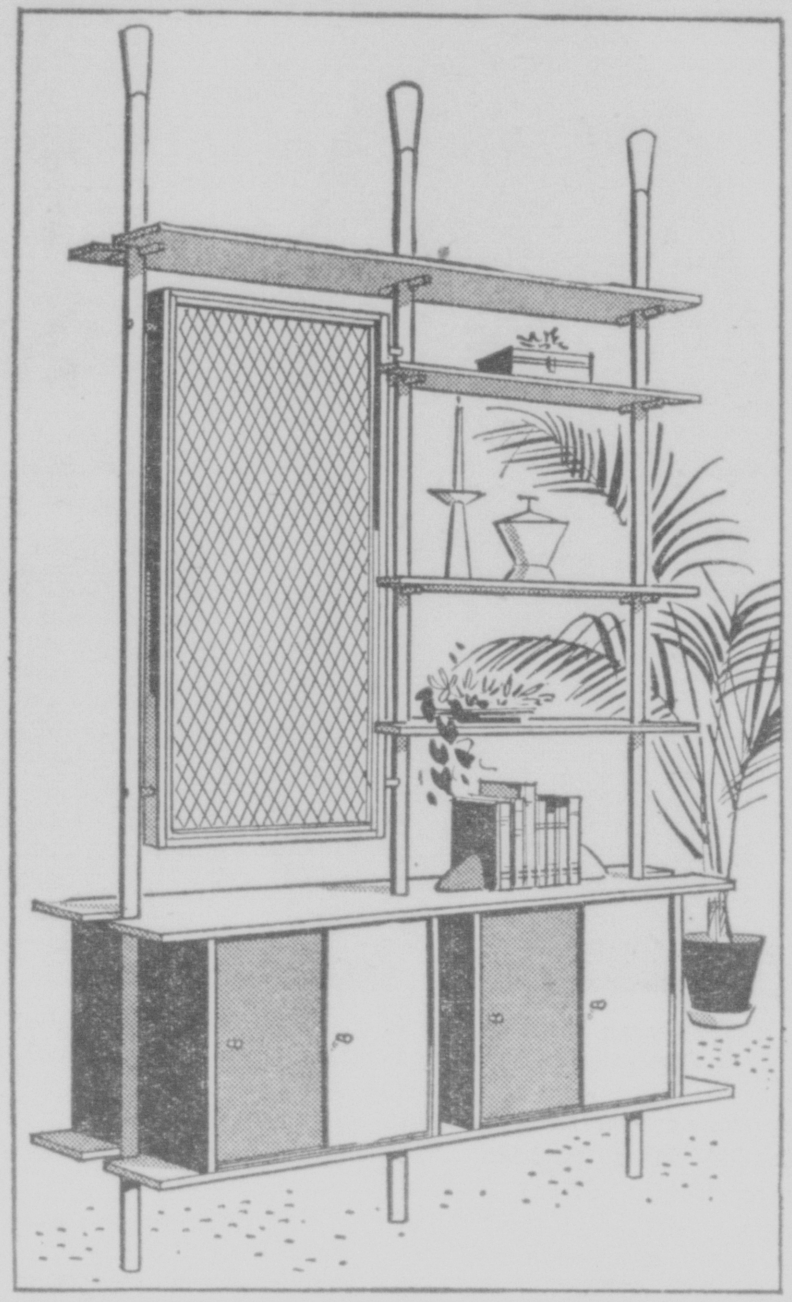
ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook



For homes or apartments, here's a divider that's easy to build, easy to move. Spring-loaded uprights hold it.

By Bill Meyerriecks

DIVIDERS are one of the most valuable tools of an interior decorater, adding beauty to a room while making a practical division between areas. But most have two big disadvantages: cost and permanence.

It usually costs a lot to build an attractive divider. And they usually are a permanent addition to a room. If you outgrow the need for it, or tire of it, you're stuck. You can't get rid of it without tearing up the ceiling, and sometimes a wall.

This Sketchbook design gets around both these disadvantages. It requires only a modest amount of lumber. And by making use of a new pole attachment called a "Timber-Topper," it snaps into place without putting a scratch on either floor or ceiling.

If you later want to move the divider 6 inches, or 6 feet, or take it down for a party, or move it into another room, you can demount the whole thing in a few minutes.

THE DESIGN shown—offering storage cabinets and "show" shelves—is only one of many variations which can be created. The Sketchbook plan shows three different designs, using two, three or four poles.

In the one illustrated here, there's also plenty of room for individual decorating taste. The tall framed panel is nothing more than a piece of hardboard wallpapered in a small diamond pattern. You could just as easily mount a mirror, or inexpensive prints of colorful paintings against a white background.

Shelves and the sliding door cabinets are supported by dowels running through the wooden poles. Pull the dowels, and the entire assembly comes apart in a jiffy. Cabinet backs and doors are plywood or hardboard, the rest standard shelving.

The Sketchbook plan tells you want to buy, how to get the "Timber-Toppers," and provides easily followed step-by-step instructions on assembly.

TO ORDER, specify Demountable Divider Plan S-72 and send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

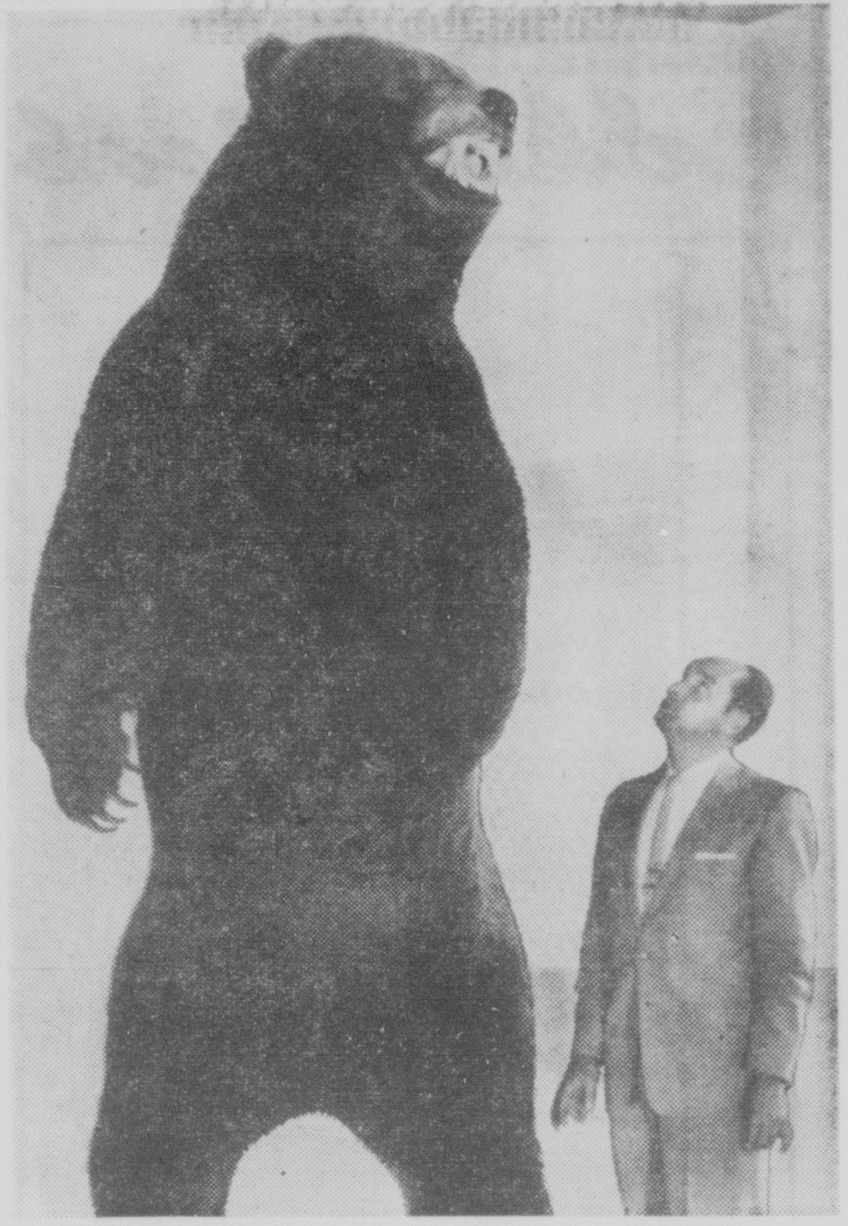
Giant Trophy from Alaska

By R. Winston Tucker



Trophy on the king size is this huge Alaska bear shot in Aleutian Mountains by Ken McConnell of Long Beach.

ALASKA is the place to go in search of the world's largest carniverous animal—the Alaska brown bear — in the opinion of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. McConnell of Long Beach.

McConnell and his wife, Louise, joined pilot-guides on the Kanai Peninsula last May and were flown in separate Super-Cub planes southwestward along the Alaska Peninsula to Port Moeller, a distance of 700 miles. Camp was established in a vacant United States Coast Guard Geodetic Survey building.

From there regular air scouting trips began. Because these small two-seated aircraft can cruise low (100 feet) at a speed of 90 miles per hour, they are ideal for locating game.

ON THE FIFTH day, while flying over a section of the snow covered Aleutian Mountains, McConnell's pilot-guide, Donald Johnson pointed toward a dark, moving object directly below. A huge Alaska brown bear was searching for food to satisfy the appetite sharpened by months of hibernation. Tracks leading in and out of a near-by cave indicated his reluctance to accept the fact that spring had arrived.

The bear was located in the midst of a heavy growth of alders and protected to a degree by hundreds of intertwining tough limbs that could easily divert a bullet. One shot in a vital spot from either man's gun, powerful 300 Weatherby Magnums with Noslers and 180 grain bullets, would be sufficient.

As McConnell's finger slowly tightened on the trigger, the bear suddenly stood upright causing the shot to enter slightly wide of its mark. Breaking limbs and wildly waving branches parting in the direction of the hunters proved that bruin was very much alive and coming out fast.

"WE QUICKLY moved back to more open ground," said McConnell, "and nervously waited. A wounded bear is dangerous and will charge anything or anyone."

The animal broke into the clear near the edge of a five-foot drop-off and foolishly tried to turn rather than stop. Overbalanced, he slid sprawling over the edge and landed in a position that momentarily offered a good target. McConnell fired twice in rapid succession and the hunt was over.

The guide estimated the bear's weight to be between 1,100 and 1,400 pounds; the approximate height, 10 feet, four inches.

Mrs. McConnell also got a bear, a smaller one.

McConnell's bear is on display at 3918 Long Beach Blvd. in Long Beach.

MEDICINE AND YOU

New Drug Lauded

By Ben Zinser
Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

NEWEST OF THE synthetic penicillins—propicillin—is highly effective in combating middle-ear infections, reports Dr. J. H. Edgar of London in The Practitioner.

Propicillin, he says, appears to have fewer side effects than other oral penicillins. It can be used against a wide variety of infections. Tested on 73 patients, it was effective in 88 per cent. It was 100 per cent effective in eight patients with middle-ear infections, providing rapid relief.

THOSE MINIATURE rubber tires used to encircle ash trays have found a surgical use.

At Children's Hospital in Los Angeles, doctors call the 6-inch-diameter tires "doughnuts." They place them beneath the head or shoulders of patients in the operating room.

Placed beneath the shoulders, the little tire helps maintain a good air passage by positioning the respiratory passages at a slight stretch.

Surgeons say the little tires are ideal for any operation where the head must be extended. Examples: tonsillectomies, thyroid operations, eye and nose surgery, operations involving tumors of the neck.

The report is in the Journal of the International College of Surgeons.

USE OF A chemical called OBPC while laundering diapers can prevent skin rash caused by ammonia formation in the diaper.

This is reported in California Medicine by Dr. William K. Friend, Santa Ana, president of the Orange County Medical Association.

The chemical, commercially available as Diaper Safe, interferes with bacterial activity to prevent ammonia formation in wet diapers.

When diapers were laundered with OBPC, most uncomplicated cases of ammonia diaper rash cleared in four days, a group of Orange County pediatricians found.

A RELATIVELY new preparation for the treatment of iron deficiency anemia has proved satisfactory in a trial in New York.

Called Jefron, the iron preparation caused virtually no side reactions and hiked hemoglobin in every instance, two Brooklyn doctors report in the New York State Journal of Medicine.

Jefron is palatable and there is no characteristic iron taste, they say.

FACTS about blushing:

Babies don't blush. You don't see blushing until 2 or 3 years of age.

Blushing is most common between puberty and 30, diminishing with age. (Blushing has been seen in persons over 80, however.)

Blushing is common in all races, including albinos, Negroes, mulattoes, the yellow races. (When colored people blush, their skin darkens.)

Authority: Dr. Sandor S. Feldman, clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Rochester, N. Y. In a report in the Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association he says that blushing is always connected with shame.

The desire to be the focus of attention is the key drive in blushers, he says. In male blushers the key complex is a repressed desire to assume a feminine role. In female blushers the underlying cause is—well, if we told you, you'd blush.

BOOK REVIEWS

This Is the Country of the Nile

By VERA WILLIAMS
Southland Magazine Book Editor

FANTASTIC scenes and adventures in the exploration of upper Africa between 1798 and the latter part of the 19th Century are provided in Alan Moorehead's "THE BLUE NILE" (Harper & Row, $5.95), a carefully researched companion to his "The White Nile."

The armchair adventurer may grow slightly weary of the detailed accounts of military campaigns but the exotic passages lift you out of your chair. Besides the descriptions of desert and mountain battles, there are accounts of weird and brutal native customs, and fascinating stories about explorers.

The volume is divided into four parts: "The Reconnaissance," about a lone explorer, James Bruce, a red-haired, 6-foot, 4-inch Scot who penetrated into primitive Ethiopia late in the 18th Century and brought back the earliest account of the natives he found; "The French in Egypt," a study of Napoleon's temporary conquest, and especially the campaign of the French commander Desaix against the Turk, Murad, which carried the French to the upper reaches of the river; "The Turks in the Sudan," mainly about Muhammed Ali, with a fascinating chapter on Shendy Market, at the crossroads of the trade routes; "The British in Ethiopia," an account of how a British expeditionary force rescued a handful of prisoners from the apparently mentally deranged black emperor Theodore.

If you liked "The White Nile," don't miss "The Blue Nile."

DAVID K. E. BRUCE

U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, David K. E. Bruce, analyzes Presidents from George Washington to Abraham Lincoln in "SIXTEEN AMERICAN PRESIDENTS" (Bobbs-Merrill, $4.50).

"THE RIVER AND THE WILDERNESS" (Doubleday, $7.95), is Don Robertson's book about the Civil War—but even more, it is about the men and women who get caught up in any war. Its characters are unforgettable.

Chiefly they are on the Union side, Maj. George Peters, who flunked out of West Point and became a ham actor, mainly because his infatuation for Henrietta Blackstone, a Shakespearean actress; and Henry Ferris, an Indiana farmer, a corporal in George's regiment who is married to Nancy, the other woman in the major's life. On the Confederate side, Col. Hard Andy DeLong, a sadist from one of the First Families of Virginia; DeLong's wine-drinking, frustrated wife Phyllis; a giant of a fighting man named Marlin Slocum.

It is a big book, 764 pages and it runs the range of human emotions.

YAEL LOTAN is a young woman who was born in Palestine, has lived in Europe and Argentina, married an Englishman and now dwells in Jamaica. How would one classify her?

Her novel, "THE OTHER I" (Bobbs-Merrill $3.95) is equally hard to classify. It is, quite frankly, the tragic story of love between a brother and sister in a wealthy South American family. Their heavy moral burden almost shatters them—forces them apart, reunites them. And again, as in a Greek tragedy, leads them down the path to inevitable destruction. It is a well written first novel.

THROUGH the words of a convivial monk, companion of St. Francis, the late Niko Kazantzakis, in "ST. FRANCIS" (Simon and Schuster, $5.95) shows that most appealing of saints not as the legendary calm saint, but actually as a MAN, subject to all the temptations of a man in an evil and constantly war-torn era. Kazantzakis' St. Francis is in search of spiritual peace amidst the splendors and miseries of medieval Italy. In this novel a restlessness drives St. Francis to rise above his surroundings, to preach an unshaken belief in goodness.

Like every other novel of this fine Greek writer, an exciting story is combined with a probing of man's soul.

PET PARADE

This Week Goes to the Dogs

Springer spaniel shown here with Bobby and Marilyn Gatlin of Lakewood is Talgin's Capt'N Mid-Knight.

By Eleanor Avery Price

NATIONAL Dog Week starts today with the theme "Deserve to be your dog's best friend." You can get the week rolling by attending Santa Ana Valley Kennel Club's show and obedience trial today at Orange County Fairgrounds in Costa Mesa, or going to the Southern California Obedience Council demonstration at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Since this is also the first day of autumn, pay special attention to gun dogs such as the popular and beautiful springer spaniels.

Most important of all, if you have a dog, make special efforts to see that your own dog is in good health and is comfortable. Hot weather of summer always brings on troubles that may continue, not the least of which is laxation (diarrhea).

One big cause is excessive drinking of water. Moisture, when added to commercial dry food, further increases water consumption. The pet needs fresh water but not always at mealtime. A dog permitted to self-feed itself with dry foods seldom has this problem.

IF A DOG bolts down only one large meal daily, he may have laxation.

FEED smaller amounts in two or three meals. Any overfeeding brings on trouble since digesting food decomposes. If the dog is inactive, the trouble is even more manifest.

Some ordinary foods cause upset. Many dogs cannot assimilate milk in liquid form. Others get upset over fat. Raw egg whites may offend. Sometimes the whole raw egg is guilty, especially if the dog is fed too many. Uncooked or poorly cooked starches such as corn meal and wheat meal will cause laxation. Well cooked starches are usually easily digested.

Diseases also cause laxation. Hook worms, excessive round worm infestation, whip worms, coccidiosis, distemper, Leptosperosis, anal gland inflammation, salmon poisoning, and other poisons call for help from your veterinarian.

ORANGE EMPIRE Dog Club sanction match is set for September 30 at Upland Park. For entry blanks to Western Cat Club show Oct. 13-14 in Long Beach, contact club president Dorothy Bond, 1502 Cartagena St., or telephone GArfield 4-7580.

Human Bomb

Browne battered the thing to pieces.

ALL EYES were on Browne. Dynamite and nitroglycerine are extremely temperamental compounds. Under such rough treatment they should have exploded.

But they didn't. Explosives experts could offer no explanation. It was a miracle, they said.

By their cool-headed pluck, seven police officers had possibly saved the lives of hundreds, and several city blocks from destruction.

Carl Warr almost died from the effects of Hosick's terrific blow. But he recovered sufficiently to stand trial.

Convicted, he was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Later, all seven officers were cited for their bravery and presented with gold medals.

CAMERA ANGLES

Stay Home for Treasure Shots

By Irving Desfor

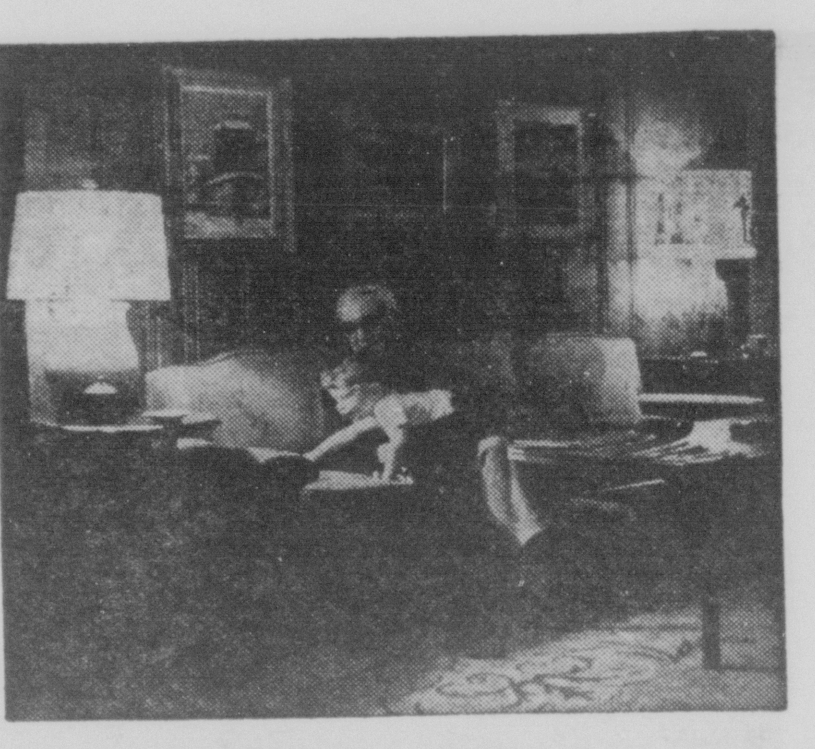
MOST CAMERA fans would readily agree that the photographic grass is greener in someone else's back yard and the best pictures are to be found on a trip or vacation in a scenic spot in the great outdoors.

"Whoa there!" says Herbert Keppler, executive editor of Modern Photography. "Photographically speaking, and in the words of an old classic, 'There's No Place Like Home.' Your most treasured and rewarding pictures are likely to be shot within the four walls of your own domain — of your family, your children, your friends, pets and possessions."

And why? Because you are most familiar with everyone and every thing in it. You've seen it in daylight and at night, during its day-to-day routine and decked out in holiday garb on festive occasions.

FURTHERMORE, photography at home no longer means setting up numerous light stands and reflectors and a maze of wires while everybody becomes actors, donning special costumes and assuming unnatural poses. Today we strive for naturalism and authenticity and obtain it with the least fuss by using fast lenses, fast films and tiny flashbulbs when we have to resort to extra light.

The when, where and how-to-do-it are explained in detail in a new book by Herbert Keppler appropriately entitled: "How to Make Better Pictures in Your Home" (Amphoto, N. Y., $2.50). He discusses the various types of cameras amateurs are likely to use and the advantages and deficiencies of each type. He examines the different means of lighting: daylight, existing artificial light, flash and flood for both color and black and white. His suggestions can help to turn a home into a photo studio without creating domestic chaos or alienating a spouse.



Living room shot by light from two 100-watt table lamps at 1/15 second at f2.8 with Tri-X is satisfying photo.

Furniture You Build

Economy and the mood of do-it-yourself are two good reasons why interest is more than casual in "Furniture You Can Build" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95), 128 pages of photos, diagrams and descriptive material for home production of 125 different types of furniture.

Indoor and outdoor furniture, with variations on standard ideas to permit originality and creativity, are presented with special clarity and there are 10 pages of furniture building tips to help the home workman. Projects range from those for the beginner to those for the man with considerable experience. The man with power tools will have an advantage in following these designs, but all are such that most of them can be built with the usual home-shop hand tools. End papers of nail, screw, bolt and other metal fastener sizes and tables on lumber sizes are helpful.

APL Readies Christmas Shopping Tours

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

HOW would you like to do your Christmas shopping in the Orient this year, making selections from a maze of brocade and Tai silk dresses, Chinese house coats, jade, tailored suits, lacquered furniture, Japanese cultured pearls straight from the oyster, and all manner of exotic trinkets?

Well, you can do it, and without the least bit of physical stress or strain.

You can visit such exotic ports as Yokohama, Hong Kong, Manila, Kobe and Honolulu and, in a manner of speaking, be taken by the hand and led straight to the choice bargains.

That is, you would be armed at each port of call with a shopping kit suggesting what and where to buy, and then be given a guide to take you there.

FOR THIS CHANCE in a lifetime you can thank American President, which provides these extracurricular bonanzas on two special Christmas Shopping Cruises among its six Orient Holiday Cruises scheduled during the 1962 fall and winter sailing season.

But as good as this sounds, there are still more breaks for you, the traveler. You may go on either the President Roosevelt or the APL flagship President Cleveland, both of which provide the very ultimate in luxury and comfort.

American President Lines passengers on Shopping Cruise to the Orient examine their purchases.

And here's the shocker: For these cruises, round-trip fares are being reduced 25 per cent!

The President Cleveland sails from San Francisco on Oct. 28 and returns Dec. 8; the President Roosevelt departs Los Angeles Harbor on Nov. 12 and returns Dec. 23.

EVERYONE who goes to the Orient looks forward with great gusto to shopping in Hong Kong, the world's largest and most famous duty-free port.

Shops are everywhere, from modern department stores to the bazaars and shops that choke every alley and thoroughfare.

With your guide, you mingle among the throngs from half a hundred countries of the world, intoxicated by strangeness of the place and bewildered by the array of merchandise.

Except in the department stores, there are no price tags. Half of the fun of shopping in Hong Kong comes from bargaining for each purchase. The natives expect you to bargain, and respect you for it.

FIRST-TIME visitors are amazed at what they can buy: jade in all varieties, forms and figures; wicker goods, lacquered furniture, T'ang, brocade and Tai silk dresses, cashmeres, Chinese house coats, silver, Cheingsam dresses and knickknacks by the thousands seldom seen anywhere else.

Sure, this is also the fabled Hong Kong where expert tailors turn out suits or dresses in 24 hours; but for best results, say the experts, it is advisable to allow several fittings.

All aboard!

MEMBERS of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen and their families will take over the entire Matson liner Lurline in late August, 1965, for the first sea-going convention to be held on Pacific waters.

Daily convention sessions and events , including women's activities, will be held on the luxury liner during the cruise, ending with a banquet in Honolulu with the Honolulu Club of Printing House Craftsmen as hosts. More than 750 are expected for the 4½-day cruise, which begins at San Francisco.

IN THE TRADE: Francisco Gonzalez de la Vega, Governor of the State of Durango, has been appointed head of the Tourism Department of the Mexican Government by President Mateos. A vast tourism development program is planned under the guidance of Gonzalez de la Vega . . . Peter Tornqvist, western regional manager for Scandinavian Airlines System, announces the appointment of Jay Haymond as district sales manager for the airline in Los Angeles.

GOING TO LAS VEGAS? If so, the best in entertainment awaits you: the new Folies Bergere at the Tropicana, the McGuire Sisters at the Desert Inn, "Flower Drum Song" at the Thunderbird, Brenda Lee and Dick Shawn beginning Sept. 28 at the Flamingo, 1962 "Le Lido De Paris Revue" at the Stardust, and Nat King Cole at the Sands.

Signs of Times

The streets of Tokyo without names or numbers since feudal times will no longer be a nightmare of confusion for Western visitors.

The Ministry of Construction is not only giving out names and numbers but adding traffic signs and direction indicators. The aim is to straighten out the mix-up before the 1964 Olympics, reports Pan American Airways which serves Tokyo daily via Jet Clipper from the West Coast. The new easy-to-read signs will eventually be extended to main highways and major cities throughout the land.

WE WERE too busy traveling and writing to pay it much note at the time, but a few months back we celebrated our tenth anniversary as travel writers and proprietors of this weekly segment of newsprint.

It seemed a good time to clean house of our collection of memorabilia which, by latest inventory, now fills both bottom dresser drawers, two buffet compartments, all closet shelves, some of the liquor cabinet, most of the cellar, and one living room wall.

Among our souvenirs . . .

A picture of General Fulgencio Batista. (File under "Dictators We Have Known.")

A program autographed by Fidel Castro. (Ditto.)

A tract called "Why Dominicans Call Him El Benefactor." (Same file.)

A glass ash tray imprinted with "Hong Kong and Shanghai Hotels Co., Ltd." Lifted whole from the Peninsula Hotel in Hong Kong, it weighs several kilos and cost us a Ming dynasty in overweight baggage, but who else in town has one?

A MAHOGANY wood carving of a jungle woman, haggled over and purchased at a princely sum from a relative of a cab driver in a back street of Port-au-Prince. He was, we were assured, a distinguished artist. By the time we found out you could buy duplicates in every stall, bazaar and grocery in Haiti, where they were likely to be lined up like wooden soldiers, our money had been reinvested by the capitalist artist.

A picture book named "Portuguese India." (Dictator file, sub-file "Colonies We Have Known." Or, "That's How It Goes.")

A genuine antique oriental water pipe with a crystal bowl, brass fittings and carpet-covered grip. It doesn't work.

A certification that we are honorary citizens of Tucson.

A DECLARATION by Jupiter Rex that we crossed the Equator on a Panagra jet.

A proclamation that we crossed the North Pole on a Japan Air Lines jet.

An annunciation by the Seven Dieties of Good Fortune that we crossed the International Date Line.

Our picture in a Chinese newspaper from Hong Kong.

A battered cowboy hat, a Portuguese fisherman's stocking cap, a bowler, a beret, and a crinkly-furred "Macmillan hat" from Iceland. (File: "Hats We Have Known.")

A receipt from a motel where we slept in the same room occupied one night by Rita Hayworth.

The pair of dice with which we made 13 straight passes in Las Vegas once. Only once.

And so the miscellany goes. We can hardly wait to see what the next decade holds in store. Whatever it is, we're just going to have to make room for it.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH

DELAPLANE

"We want to fly to Ireland to visit relatives, after some time in England. Is there some way we can do some shopping at Shannon Airport duty-free shops?"

YOU CAN FLY into Dublin or Shannon on Aer Lingus—they run a regular shuttle to Ireland. Viscount prop-jets and a good on-time service. The thing is, to shop at Shannon, you have to fly out of Shannon.

If you are returning to England, there's a morning Aer Lingus flight. You could fly in through Dublin and exit through Shannon.

If you are on your way back to the States, a number of lines have a stop-over service at Shannon. The most regular is Irish International Airlines (which is Aer Lingus) which flies jets to New York.

Shannon is now offering a free day and night in Ireland. Just to attract tourists to shop. Sight-seeing in the afternoon. Dinner at Bunratty Castle, a very unusual and very interesting affair. Sight-seeing the next morning and PLENTY of time to shop before you go on.

". . . any suggestions on hotels and places to shop in Dublin?"

THE GRESHAM, the Russell, the Royal Hibernian and the Shelbourne seem to be favorite top hotels. Seemed to me that Dublin hotels have pushed prices up a bit lately.

Dublin is not the tourist bargain it was a few years ago.

Grafton street is the shopping street. Sybil Connolly, the Irish designer, is in Merrion Square. You'll get Connolly-designed clothes there for about half what you'll pay in the States.

". . . restaurants and anything to do at night?"

JAMMET'S is still the fine restaurant in Dublin. The hotels have good restaurants. I'm partial to the Red Bank. The Bailey in Duke street is still a good pub. But the restaurant side is not what it was.

There were several restaurants new to me in Duke street and that area. But I didn't have a chance to try them. They looked good from the outside.

Some good shows are at the theaters. If you're lucky, you catch an Irish-written play being broken in. There's no night club so far as I know. But one restaurant has an orchestra and dancing.

". . . anything we should know about tipping?"

THE MONEY is just like England's—pounds, shillings, pence. (Irish coins are very attractive, by the way. You can buy a set in mint condition for very little.)

Tip 10 per cent on restaurant bills. No need to tip at a bar. But tip for table service. Many hotels are now adding 10 per cent to the bill for service. In which case, you don't have to tip any more. A shilling can be used about like you'd use a quarter in the States.

Good for advance information. Write Shannon Free Airport, Ireland, for the catalog of shop goods. And ask for the Free Day in Ireland folder.

"Matson is the Vacation Way to Hawaii," says Arthur Fiedler

"My schedule is tight, tough and fast-paced. My work demanding. My holidays few and far between. So when they happen, I try to make the most of them. That's why I enjoy taking Matson between California and Hawaii.

"The reason is obvious. On a Matson ship there is no pressure. There are no deadlines to meet. Nothing one must do. You find yourself being master of your own time – from the moment you go aboard until you dock 4½ days later.

"If you're in a dolce far niente mood (the sweetness of doing nothing), this is the recipe. Yet if you crave more activity, you've got that too. You see, a Matson liner is just like a fine resort, replete with every comfort, pleasure and facility for diversion imaginable. And to all of these amenities is added the matchless pleasure of being at sea.

"The reward of this trip is a new me. Tanned, happy and once again 'rarin' to go.' Certainly, one couldn't spend any part of a vacation in a better manner. Try Matson, I know you'll agree."

There's more for all in Hawaii this fall! This is the season. The Islands are never lovelier. All the attractions of summer remain, but the surge of crowds is gone. The surf, sun and climate couldn't be more inviting. Hunting and fishing are at their best. There's pageantry and celebrations – famed Aloha Week and the new Festival of the Pacific. Plan now to enjoy Hawaii's most inviting season and a Lurline cruise for the best fall vacation of all.

Tell me more about the best fall vacation of all. Please send folders and information on SS Lurline Sailings:

Feature Ferns in Shady Corners

By Walter Finch

FERNS HAVE a wild and woodsy quality. They are the picture of refinement and delicacy, yet for all this, they smack of the ruggedness of a granite lined stream or the backwoods beauty of a shaded glen. Grow them in your garden and they impart something of this feeling.

Ferns are as beautiful in the city garden as they are in nature's wild. They fit formal or informal settings and are perfectly at home with other plants. Meet their relatively simple cultural requirements and they will thrive in your garden for years to come.

The California Association of Nurserymen recommends that ferns be featured in shady places where they can hold their own with azaleas, camellias, fuchsias and other shade-loving beauties. They are also beautiful when planted beside a garden pool or in a rockery, provided it is not part of a sun-baked hillside. And even then, if you live in a coastal climate, you will get away with giving ferns a fair amount of sun.

FERNS are not bog plants, yet they like moisture aplenty at their feet. They like the drainage they might get at the margin of a stream, where moisture is readily available yet ever on the move. If you give them the same water care that you give azaleas, you can hardly go wrong.

This holds true for the soil, also. An acid soil is necessary and care should be taken to insure it. Use plenty of peat moss and leaf mold at planting time, mixing it thoroughly with the soil in your garden. If you would feature ferns in containers, use a mix containing one third peat moss, one third leaf mold and one third garden loam.

Ferns in many forms range upward from such delicate little pot plants as the maidenhair fern to the towering height of an Australian tree fern. They are for garden, greenhouse or sun room, for featuring by themselves or with other plants in the foundation or border. Some of the most commonly seen ferns are mentioned below.

THE LADY FERN is a good one for the gardener to start with since it is among the easiest to grow and one of the showiest to be found. A deciduous fern, it is bare of fronds for a few short weeks in winter, but it comes back with renewed vigor after a brief rest. Its broad, lacelike fronds are nearly four feet high on mature plants, providing a fine background for azaleas, Japanese iris or daphne. They also form an interesting pattern when grown against a fence.

The tree ferns are favorites with gardeners and justifiably so, for few plants have such graceful habits. True show-offs, these giant ferns are best used as single specimens in the entrance garden, or in a large tub on the terrace. Two are generally available. Australian tree fern is the largest. Mature plants of this species are to be found 14 or 15 feet high, but they didn't attain that height overnight. Be patient. The other tree fern is the New Zealand tree fern, and if either is to go into a tub, make it this one.

Woodwardia fern possesses a graceful, evergreen beauty that lends a distinctive touch to gardens, landscapes.

THERE ARE several asparagus ferns which the gardener would do well to check in his nursery. One of the most popular is the hanging basket fern which tumbles down in a fine mass of delicate foliage. These are not true ferns, but who's to argue? Indoorsmen will want to try maidenhair, Birds Nest and Holly ferns, the latter a glossy little number that goes perfectly in the house. Maidenhair fern scarcely needs description for it is a standard item in corsages. The Birds Nest fern is small, graceful, stiff-stemmed, with wavy margins on its broad-bladed fronds. The Holly fern is an oddity among ferns, glossy of leaf and spiny enough in looks to remind one of holly itself.

To pot these indoor ferns, add equal parts of peat moss, leaf mold and garden loam, then toss in a handful of sand for good measure. Water them frequently but don't overdo it. The soil on the surface should be on the dry side before you water the plant again.

Color for Midwinter

By Murtha Hurley

IF YOU LIKE exotic flowers, try lachenalia bulbs, known as Cape Cowslips in their native South Africa, where they grow wild on the sandy flats. Some there call them hyacinths. The plants obtain moisture from their winter rains, just as California wild flowers do.

The colorful lachenalias make unusually interesting plants for mid-winter and early spring bloom, starting to flower as early as December if planted in September. They continue in bloom for six to eight weeks.

Many South African plants and flowers prosper in Long Beach area gardens. Though lachenalias are used as decorative indoor plants in other climates, here we can use them in our garden beds. When grown in the garden, they are exceptionally hardy, thrive with no care whatever, providing exciting bright patches of color for beds in the garden when most flowering plants are dormant. Planted closely together, they present a succulent mass of strap-shaped leaves from which the naked flower stalks rise, strung with the slender hanging or erect flower tubes.

THE PLANTS like a sandy soil and must be allowed to dry out after they have finished blooming. So plant them in some spot you water sparingly, a spot that will stay reasonably dry through the summer. You need not lift the bulbs.

The bulb gets its odd name from Werner de Lachenal, 18th Century Swiss botanist.

garden

By Dorothy Jonson

This is the end of the planting season for sweet peas, but you still have all of October for planting your fall vegetables.

Since so many of the "root crops," such as carrots, turnips, radishes, etc., are especially susceptible to underground insect molestation, it is always wise to disinfect the soil in which you plant them. A product combining copper and ether will eliminate destructive insect life and also soil fungus, safely and effectively. It is well to use this just prior to planting but it can be done safely after the vegetables are planted so long as you take pains to water thoroughly before using the product. Thorough irrigation permits the plants to take up all the moisture they can take and thus they will not absorb any of the ether content. I would not use such treatment within ten days of harvest but you have ample time to give your vegetables one or even two treatments, if it seems necessary, before they are ready to be picked.

Grow an Air Plant

By Joe Littlefield

BILLBERGIAS differ from the general run of plants. They are epiphytic (air plants), yet may be grown in the ground, in pots, or in hanging baskets. One rare plant hobbyist recommends growing billbergias indoors as house plants provided they get at least two hours of sun daily to encourage them to blossom.

The plants are related to the pineapple, but naturally grow on trees as do orchids.

They need good drainage, and if grown outdoors, like filtered sunlight or light shade, overhead watering and not too wet roots. Grow them on limbs of trees, or imbed the plant roots into mass of moist sphagnum moss tied to a piece of rustic wood, and hang it on a wall or tree trunk.

Most of the billbergias hold water in rosettes of leaves that are like tubes, and absorb the water. Foliage of some varieties is attractive and showy. The bracted flower clusters in several colors are attractive and most unusual. Several general varieties may be obtained at local nurseries, the rest may be found at specialty nurseries that deal in unusual tropical plants.

Begonia Society

North Long Beach branch of the American Begonia Society meets at 7:30 p. m. Sept. 28 in the banquet room of Community Savings & Loan, 3901 Atlantic Ave. Color slides of the Begonia Gardens at Capitola, Calif., will be shown and Mrs. Alice Martin will speak on propagation and culture of ferns. Refreshments will be served and anyone interested is invited.

How to Grow Beautiful Camellias

California's thousands of camellia lovers as well as those just "joining up" in this gardening fraternity will find new pleasure in the revised edition of "How to Grow and Use Camellias" (Lane Book Co., Menlo Park, Calif., $1.95).

Among features of the book is an enlarged encyclopedia that lists more than 700 varieties and an eight-page color section.

In compiling the book, the editors consulted experts across the country where camellias are grown, worked this information into material from the earlier edition of the volume and more recent magazine articles. The aim: a team production of interest and value to dedicated camellia fans as well as the gardener who knows little of the subject.

It's a versatile volume and covers its field carefully.

Almost 1 out of every 2 women suffer pre-menstrual tension

. . . but don't know what's wrong

WEIGHT GAIN, BLUE MOODS, "NERVES," IRRITABILITY HEADACHES, TEMPER FLARE-UPS, MAY ALL BE SYMPTOMS

How new scientific tablet can now control these physical and emotional upsets without taking hormones, narcotics, or harmful sedatives.

Many women fail to realize that for a week prior to their periods, an excessive amount of water accumulates in body tissues—putting pressure on nerves and organs. As tension builds up, breasts become sore . . . you feel bloated, irritable, nervous, headachy . . . even gain weight.

Now medical science has at last found an effective, yet simple, inexpensive relief for this pre-menstrual tension. It's Pamprin—and it contains no hormones, no narcotics, no harmful sedatives. Pamprin will positively not interfere with the normal cycle, duration or flow of your period.

Pamprin safely rids the body of excess water and thus relieves tension as no aspirin or simple pain-reliever can. At the same time, doctors find, Pamprin has a wonderfully calming, soothing effect on the irritability, "nerves" and emotional upsets common to pre-menstrual time. What's more, many women who ordinarily suffered cramps and backache once periods began, found surprising relief, too. Pamprin with its exclusive medically approved formula is now available in tablet form, without prescription, at your druggist. Get Pamprin today. Try it before your next period. Or for a generous free trial supply of Pamprin Tablets, send your name and address today to Chattem Laboratories, Dept. 5, Chattanooga 9, Tennessee.

JACK BASS

Cooked in Wine

AFTER DINING the other evening on one of the new continental items at Jack's Corsican Room, 5430 E. Second St., a delighted guest made this enthusiastic statement to owner-chef Jack Bass:

"Really terrific! My wife and I enjoyed our dinner so much we're coming back here and try every item on the list!"

That patron and his spouse may return to Jack's at least 11 more times, since there are 12 items on the new continental list. The items are magnificent originals, created from recipes Jack obtained on a trip through Europe in the mid-1930s. Among them are cou au vin from France, which is chicken cooked in wine and served with wild rice pilaf; chicken paprikash from Hungary, with egg barley; chicken cacciatore from Florence, Italy, with Florette noodles; stuffed cabbage rolls from Rumania, with a sweet and sour raisin sauce; Hungarian beef goulash with egg barley; veal scaloppine Marsala from Florence, cooked in wine with Florentine spinach; beef burgundy from France, with buttered parsley noodles; shrimp in cheddar sauce with buttered rice, and chicken aloha, an oriental treat including breast of chicken prepared in an exotic sauce with fresh cocoanut, almonds and pineapple.

THE CONTINENTAL items, priced from $2.75, are served on a bountiful complete dinner, with soup, salad, beverage and dessert. Jack, who does most of his own cooking, also prepares marvelous prime rib au jus and charcoal-broiled steaks which have been producing customer raves for years. Served on a complete dinner are a large cut of prime rib, $4, and tender, large top sirloins, New York cuts and filets, from $4.50. Closed Mondays, Jack's serves dinners from 4 p.m. on, daily and Sunday.

ASTRO-AGE SERIES DEBUTS TONIGHT

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

George Jetson fed the micro-tablet newspaper into the reading machine and pressed buttons until he got to the sports page.

There was a picture of the coach of the local football team. George pressed another button.

"We'll moider 'em," said the voice of the local coach.

George grinned and absent-mindedly flicked a few cigarette ashes on the rug.

An electric-seeing-eye vacuum cleaner came buzzing out of its wall cabinet, sucked up the ashees and discreetly returned to its niche.

George glanced out of the window and noticed the smog. He pressed a button and his Sky Pad Apartment immediately rose 1,000 feet above the smog.

AN IMMEDIATE RISE to popular acclaim is hoped for George and the rest of "The Jetsons" by his creators, Hanna-Barbera Productions.

"The Jetsons," a futuristic cartoon-situation comedy a la "The Flintstones," makes its debut in Color at 7:30 p.m. today on channel 7.

The Sunday series is about a family living in the year 2062. An average family, it has the ordinary astro-age conveniences available to middle-class families.

There is for example, their nuclear-pellet-powered space car which gets 40,000 miles to the pellet. (Economy cars get 60,000 miles per pellet.)

There is the dog-walk, a treadmill which periodically serves up fire hydrants.

A pneumatic tube is used for transporting the children to

ANDY WILLIAMS PROBLEM

'Too Good in the Past'

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Practically everybody hopes that Andy Williams' new show will be as good as the great series he did as a summer replacement two years ago. The only person who doesn't share that hope is Andy Williams.

"It has to be better," he says.

(The new show starts 10 p. m. Thursday in COLOR on Channel 4. Andy's opening guests include George Goebel and Peggy Lee.)

ANDY WILLIAMS

His point is simply that the summer show is remembered so fondly, and held up as such a criterion of all that is excellent in television, that the memory has outgrown the fact.

"People remember it as better than it really was," says Andy. "To equal the memory, we'll have to be much better than the original."

* * * *

HE THINKS, as a result, that it is fortunate he was not able to reassemble the staff which produced the summer show. As a matter of fact, only one man who helped create that program will be associated with the new Andy Williams Show.

That one is Bobby Scheerer, who was a writer back in '61, but is now the director. Andy says he tried to get his original director — Norman Jewison—but Jewison had movie commitments.

With a new staff, except for Scheerer, Williams feels he has a chance to be different and better than the summer show.

"WE'LL FREQUENTLY feature a group called The Christie Singers," Andy says. "There are ten of them—eight boys and two girls—and they all sing and play guitars. I feel the next basic trend in pop music is country music that verges on pop music—things like Ray Charles' big album, 'Modern Sounds in Country Music.' So I want to do some things in that vein."

The Andy Williams Show will also feature, from time to time, Andy's three brothers, Bob, Don and Dick, who used to be the Williams Brothers. Andy says they will be on "as often as I can lure Dick to California."

Claudine, a dancer and actress, met Andy when both were working in Las Vegas. At the time, she could barely speak English and his French was (and is) poor. But somehow they understood each other and, in fact, he translated her English into English for others.

'The Magnificent One' — Gleason — Returns

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)— THE MAGNIFICENT ONE, Jackie Gleason, recently returned to Hollywood after a 12-year exile to star in a new movie.

He also has a new television series, "Jackie Gleason's American Screen Magazine," which debuts 7:30 p.m. Saturday on channel 2.

"The Great One," which he calls himself in modest moments, left these parts in 1950 under a cloud. He couldn't get arrested for jaywalking on the freeways.

Returning as one of the brightest stars extant, Gleason bore no grudge for the town that turned him down.

"Twelve years ago I was of no consequence," he said, jowls quivering above a white terrycloth robe. "I had no box-office value so I don't blame the studios. I wouldn't have hired myself."

JACKIE GLEASON

Since leaving Lotus Land, Gleason has become a television giant, a hot movie property and an authentic genius in the eyes of show biz.

* * * *

IN THE PAST year he has starred in three pictures, "The Hustler," "Requiem for a Heavyweight" and "Gigot," which many predict will become a screen classic. His latest assignment was "Papa's Delicate Condition."

Despite his movie activities, Jackie was determined to return to a weekly television series this fall.

"Movies are easier than television," the Fat One sighed, "and an hour show every week is going to be murder. But I look at TV and see all that stuff going on and I'm too big a ham to sit around and let it go by."

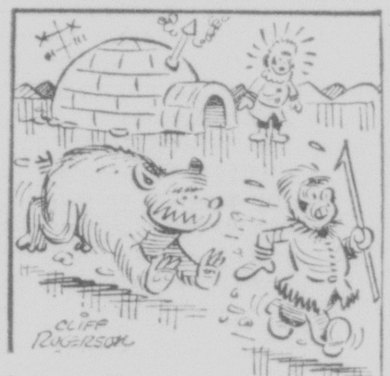
The series will be a comedy-variety offering emphasizing humorous sidelights on current events.

* * * *

"WE'VE GOT A whole opera written about the stock market mess," the Grand One said. "And topical things like the astronauts and the steel hassel are right down our alley."

Gleason fanatics will be delirious to learn Big Daddy is reviving his cast of beloved characters—Ralph Kramden, the poor soul, Joe the Bartender and Reggie Van Gleason.

"They will appear only when the topical scan fits the situation," Jackie said.



"DON'T LET HIM GET AWAY, NANOOK! HE'LL MAKE A GOOD SNACK TO HAVE WITH TH' LATE MOVIE!"

'Jetsons' Debut

and from school. Occasionally the wrong child is returned, but there's no major problem. Just simply press a reject button until the right child shows up.

AN UPCOMING episode will feature an anti-gravity dance floor that permits the dancers to gyrate on the ceiling.

An astro-age rock-and-roller, Jet Screamer, will bellow:

"I know a swinging place out on the edge of space."

He'll introduce a new dance, the solo swivel, which may be the successor to the twist.

Hanna-Barbera Productions feel "The Jetsons" are bringing a new twist to television with its comic astro-age outlook.

Those who have been associated with the series—the same professionals involved in the production of "The Flintstones"—think "The Jetsons" should move ahead faster in the ratings than the caveman cartooner.

This would be quite an accomplishment for "The Flintstones" were practically an overnight success.

Bill Hanna shares the enthused optimism about "The Jetsons" but isn't personally going out on any prediction limb.

"You just can't say until the guy in front of the tube watches it," he said.

For the guy in front of the TV tube—even though it isn't pneumatic—also has a reject button.

GIRL SCOUT ROUNDUP ON TV

Producer Promises 'Impact'

NEW YORK (NEA) — The trouble with television documentaries is that they talk too much.

That's the opinion of Stanley Flink, field producer for Drew Associates, an organization which believes it has a formula for non-talky documentaries. Their first hour program is CBS' The Road to Button Bay, the story of the 1962 Girl Scout Senior Roundup (Monday, 9 p.m. on channel 2 in COLOR).

"Most documentaries," Flink says, "just talk too much. They have too much narration, not enough action. Actually, newspapers and magazines are much better at explaining why something has happened or will happen than television. What television can do best is something with emotional impact, something which gets at the psychology of a subject."

* * * *

WHAT FLINK does is to move in on a subject with a vast crew of two — himself and a cameraman. Flink carries the portable tape recorder. And then, for weeks if necessary, they photograph and record their subject in action.

To illustrate, there is the upcoming Girl Scout show. Flink says when he got the assignment, he thought it was "deadly." He didn't think he could find a story in girls going to a Girl Scout Roundup. But he kept his recorder turned on. He got what he feels is "a miracle."

A story developed — a tie vote for girls competing for the post of patrol leader,

PARADE'S SPECIAL INTELLIGENCE REPORT

MERCY KILLING. Several weeks ago Sherri Finkbine of Phoenix, Ariz., had to fly to Sweden for a legal abortion. Her story was emblazoned on the front pages of the nation's press. Scarce mention, however, was made of another thalidomide mother who took a more drastic measure. In Belgium, baby Carine Vandeput was born without arms but with eight tiny fingers growing out of her shoulders. Filled with despair, Carine's mother (who had taken thalidomide during her pregnancy) consulted several plastic surgeons. They said they could do nothing. One night, racked with heartache and hopelessness, Mrs. Vandeput put her infant to sleep with poison provided by the family doctor. Accused of infanticide, Mrs. Vandeput has now become a cause célèbre throughout Belgium. The people say she should be acquitted, the police say she should not. Mrs. Vandeput claims she would do the same thing over again rather than let a child of hers crawl through life, a hopeless, helpless freak.

STAR BIOGRAPHIES. For years MGM owned the greatest stable of stars in Hollywood history. These celebrities were filmed and recorded year after year. The studio is now offering to the TV networks a series of one-hour specials to be called "The Clark Gable Story," "The Wallace Beery Story," "The Ava Gardner Story," etc. First one being readied is on Gable.

COUNTRY CLUB PRISON. Next March the new federal maximum security prison will be completed at Marion, Ill. Convicts from Alcatraz, which is being abandoned, refer to the new institution as "the country club prison they're sending us to." The new prison will be surrounded by picturesque, wooded countryside. Instead of a wall, inmates will be fenced in by two wire fences, 25 feet apart, so that they will be able to see the outside. These fences will be so electronically sensitive that a sparrow alighting on one of them will set off an alarm. It's all part of a more humanitarian approach by the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

WOMEN'S PROFESSIONS. What professions do college women enter the most? Approximately 80 per cent of today's professional women are concentrated in the following six fields: teaching, social work, nursing, music, library work and accounting. Where they are needed the most -- in science and mathematics and space-age jobs -- the women fear to tread...also, the men in charge frequently won't give them a break.

NEW DRUG APPROACH. The U.S. Supreme Court has decided that drug addiction is not a crime but an illness, thus bringing into focus the long controversy over the medical versus punitive approach to the problem. Harry Anslinger, former Commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, followed a punitive policy. But with the recent Supreme Court ruling, the new commissioner Henry Giordano will probably pursue a more medical approach calling for more rehabilitation centers.

To an unknown youth somewhere in America

JOHN F. KENNEDY

Parade's Fred Blumenthal asked President Kennedy this question:

"Somewhere in our land today there is a high school or college student who will one day be sitting in your chair. If you could now speak to this future President, what advice and guidance would you give him or her?"

Following is the President's answer. This is the first time that an incumbent Chief Executive has given such frank counsel to a young American destined to succeed him.

by JOHN F. KENNEDY

THE FIRST LESSON of the Presidency is that it is impossible to foretell the precise nature of the problems that will confront you or the specific skills and capacities which those problems will demand. It is an office which called upon a man of peace, Lincoln, to become a great leader in a bloody war; which required a profound believer in limiting the scope of federal government, Jefferson, to expand dramatically the powers and range of that government; which challenged a man dedicated to domestic social reform, Franklin Roosevelt, to lead this nation into a deep and irrevocable involvement in world affairs. And when you assume the Presidency you too will face problems, difficulties, crises and challenges which no one can now foresee.

IN 1645, JOHN WINTHROP, Deputy Governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony, after a long and stormy trial acquitting him of impeachment for exceeding his authority, reminded his fellow citizens that "when you call one to be a magistrate, he doth not profess nor undertake to have sufficient skill for that office, nor can you furnish him with gifts . . . therefore you must run the hazard of his skill and ability."

This insight into the nature of governing affirms the lesson of our history that there is no program of vocational training for the Presidency; no specific area of knowledge that is peculiarly relevant. Nor are qualities of great leadership drawn from any particular section of the country or section of society. Nine of our Presidents, among them some of the most brilliant in office, did not attend college; whereas Thomas Jefferson was one of the great scholars of the age and Woodrow Wilson the president of Princeton University. We have had Presidents who were lawyers and soldiers and teachers. One was an engineer and another a journalist. They have been drawn from the wealthiest and most distinguished families of the nation, and have come from poor and anonymous beginnings. Some, seemingly well endowed with great abilities and fine qualities, were unable to cope with the demands of the office, while others rose to a greatness far beyond any expectation.

JFK meets with students on White House lawn.

Thus I cannot counsel you about what subjects to study or what vocation to follow. But whatever you do you would be well advised to practice stern discipline and vigorous, unremitting effort. For high qualities and great achievements are not merely matters of chance or birth. They are the product of long and disciplined toil.

Yet, in a more general way, there are experiences which you can pursue, experiences which will support you in the conduct of your great office.

It will help you to know the country you seek to lead. It was one of the great strengths of a President such as Theodore Roosevelt that he knew and loved the diverse magnificence of our fields and mountain ranges, deserts and great rivers, our abundant farmlands and the thousand voices of our cities. No revolution in communication or transportation can destroy the fact that this continent is, as Whitman said, "a nation of nations," which you must see and know before you can govern.

NOR IS IT ACCIDENTAL that many of our outstanding Presidents, men such as Jefferson or Wilson or Truman, have had a deep sense of history. For of all the disciplines, the study of the folly and achievements of man is best calculated to help develop the critical sense of what is permanent and meaningful amid the mass of superficial and transient events and decisions which engulf the Presidency. And it is on this sense, more than any other, that great leadership depends.

Most important of all, and most difficult to consciously pursue, is an understanding of the people you will lead. You, and at times you alone, will be the spokesman for the great and often silent majority. And the final measure of your Administration will, in large measure, rest on how well you respond to their inward hopes while leading them toward new horizons of ambition and achievement. Perhaps you will derive this quality from your origins, as did Lincoln; or from the application of understanding and compassion to the problems of government, as did Franklin Roosevelt. Yet, although the possible sources of this understanding are many, if you find the opportunity to know and work with Americans of diverse backgrounds, occupations and beliefs, then I would urge you to take eagerly that opportunity to enrich yourself.

TO PREPARE FOR

As a great world leader you will have problems and responsibilities which were not faced by Presidents throughout much of our history. As President of the United States you are a focus of the attention, ambitions and desires of people and nations throughout the world. It will help you to travel and to learn about these other lands. For the welfare and security of the United States, the future of your own country, is bound to your capacity to exercise leadership and judgment on a global scale.

The most important human qualities of leadership are best embodied in that most towering of American Presidents, Lincoln: a combination of humility and self-confidence, inner resolution and energy, which gives a President the capacity to listen to others, to be aware of his own limitations, but also to follow the command of John Adams that "In all great and essential measures the President is bound by honor and his conscience . . . to act his own mature and unbiased judgment." I can advise you to be aware of the importance of these qualities, but no one can tell you how to develop them. I only hope, for the welfare of our country, that you will possess them when you come to office.

NO ONE CAN GUARANTEE that if you follow this or any other advice you will become a great President. For the Presidency is peculiarly an office which is shaped by the individual who holds it. And greatness depends on the times as well as the man. But if you work toward your goal, practice discipline and unremitting effort, wish Godspeed to those who will hold and protect the great office of the Republic so that it may pass unimpaired to you and those who will follow you, then, if some chance keeps you from the Presidency, you will still know that you are prepared to serve well your nation as a citizen. ■

President's office (above) will some day belong to the future Chief Executive addressed in this article.

How do the members of our newest profession—the astronauts—rate in the world's oldest sweepstakes—love?

Do they leave the girls breathless or merely awed? A British lady journalist, dizzy from watching all the astronauts go by, hailed the space heroes as the "living end" when it comes to sex appeal. The lady in question, Marjorie Proops of London's Daily Mirror, declared that astronauts are fearless, brave, with physical splendor and good teeth—and what's more, they could lick film stars, royal dukes, athletes and singers in pure heartbeat appeal.

How do American women feel about this question? PARADE interviewed a random cross-section of ladies of various ages and backgrounds. PARADE's conclusion: that the lady reporter from Britain knows her tea biscuits, not her sex appeal.

Astronauts are great for history, but not for current affairs, say U.S. women. They rate space heroes a poor third in the sex-appeal stakes.

Who took first place? Your doctor, madam, can tack SA right after his MD. The physician copped 25 per cent of the votes as the man with the greatest sex appeal. If the doctor's image has declined in recent years, as many lay authorities have suggested, you can't prove it by the ladies.

Second place goes to writers. After the third-place astronauts come — in descending order — scientists, athletes, actors, engineers and architects.

Then come: airline pilots, executives, detectives, newspapermen, teachers, lawyers, politicians, lifeguards, diplomats, sailors, truck drivers, mechanics and forest rangers. One girl expressed a preference for "anyone who's not married and has lots of money."

Why haven't astronauts stirred the imagination of American women? Are space suits too clumsy-looking? Is it because the space capsule is a one-seater? The answer may be that between briefing and debriefing sessions, circling and landing and physical fitness programs, there's little time left for dallying. What's more, astronauts may be too dedicated to their job.

History shows explorers never have had much luck with girls. Eric the Red, back in the Viking days, was so busy finding new lands his wife left him to become a nun. The daring Russian cosmonaut Major Andrian Nikolayev also fared poorly in the love department. His girl friend dumped him because he spent too much time away from her.

The problem is "no contact," says bachelor girl Barbara Lang of New York. "Even if I were wrecked on another planet with an astronaut, he'd probably be out taking geological specimens. I think what they have done is just wonderful, thrilling and highly spectacular, but in the clinches, I'll take a writer any old time," says 25-year-old Miss Lang.

Mrs. Yolanda Staib of Tenafly, N.J., likes to have her man around the house, not in orbit. "An astronaut's life causes much anxiety to his family. I couldn't stand the tension of not knowing if he would come back from one of those trips or what condition he'd be in. I'd prefer a well-dressed executive any time."

Back in the old days when little girls played a game of choosing a mate via the "button system," doctors came out first—ahead of lawyers, Indian chiefs, rich men, poor men, beggarmen. They're still out in front. Women of all ages tell us doctors are kind, have finesse, know what makes a woman tick, are like a father, have strength, masculinity and understanding.

In Madison, Wisc., 18-year-old university student Ellen Pechman tells why she picks the doctor:

"Apart from their education, doctors are kind, know a great deal about life and are well read, but best of all they are human beings who can guide you with good sense. Astronauts appeal to me as astronauts but not as men."

In Clarksburg, W. Va., Mrs. Wilma Adams, 47, antique dealer, is another medical buff. "There's no question about it, I think the doctor is all man. Astronauts? I don't see them. Movie actors? That's false glamor, but a doctor's maleness and his humanity towards people give him sex appeal. When I first got married my husband wanted to be a doctor, but I talked him out of it because doctors are never home, always on call. So what do you think I married? An insurance adjustor, always traveling."

Actresses, thrown together with handsome, well-built leading men, often choose creative types for their non-professional hours. NANETTE FABRAY, who opens next month as the leading lady in the Broadway play, Mr. President, has a preference for writers.

"I don't think there's anything sexier than a clever witty mind, and writers have it. I'm not saying it just because I'm married to a writer, it's because I think they're so inventive and stimulating."

VIVECA LINDFORS, now appearing in the off-Broadway hit Brecht on Brecht, also likes creative men. "While I don't think sex appeal applies to a specific profession, artists have special appeal for me. They are constantly searching for new possibilities of expression, and often, I think, it takes more courage to be an artist than to be a man in orbit."

Actress TAMMY GRIMES thinks astronauts are "terribly sexy" but not for her. "They wouldn't fit into my life, it's something I'm completely ignorant of. I also find sports-car racers very sexy and I could really go for a bullfighter like the late Manolete, but it's the artist who really attracts me—a symphony conductor, writer, painter or anyone like that."

Do women actually seek out a man for what he does for a living, or do they put the man's personality and character traits ahead of his job?

Ninety per cent of the women who have gone to the Scientific Introduction Center of Human Relations in New York looking for mates are seeking the man first and the profession second, according to Dr. Eric Riss, co-director. "Women look for men who will give them love and security, someone who will stimulate their imagination. A doctor or a lawyer is just a symbol of that security," says Dr. Riss.

If the current generation of women doesn't swoon over astronauts, wait a few decades. According to Dr. Rebecca Liswood, director of the Marriage Counselling Service of Greater New York, parents usually guide their daughters early in life as to the kinds of men they should choose as mates. Perhaps when astronauts are no longer rare birds and women know more about them, future mothers will steer their girls towards space men as marriage material. ■

DON'T DRIVE ANOTHER MILE WITHOUT THIS GUARANTEED PROTECTION FOR YOUR CAR!

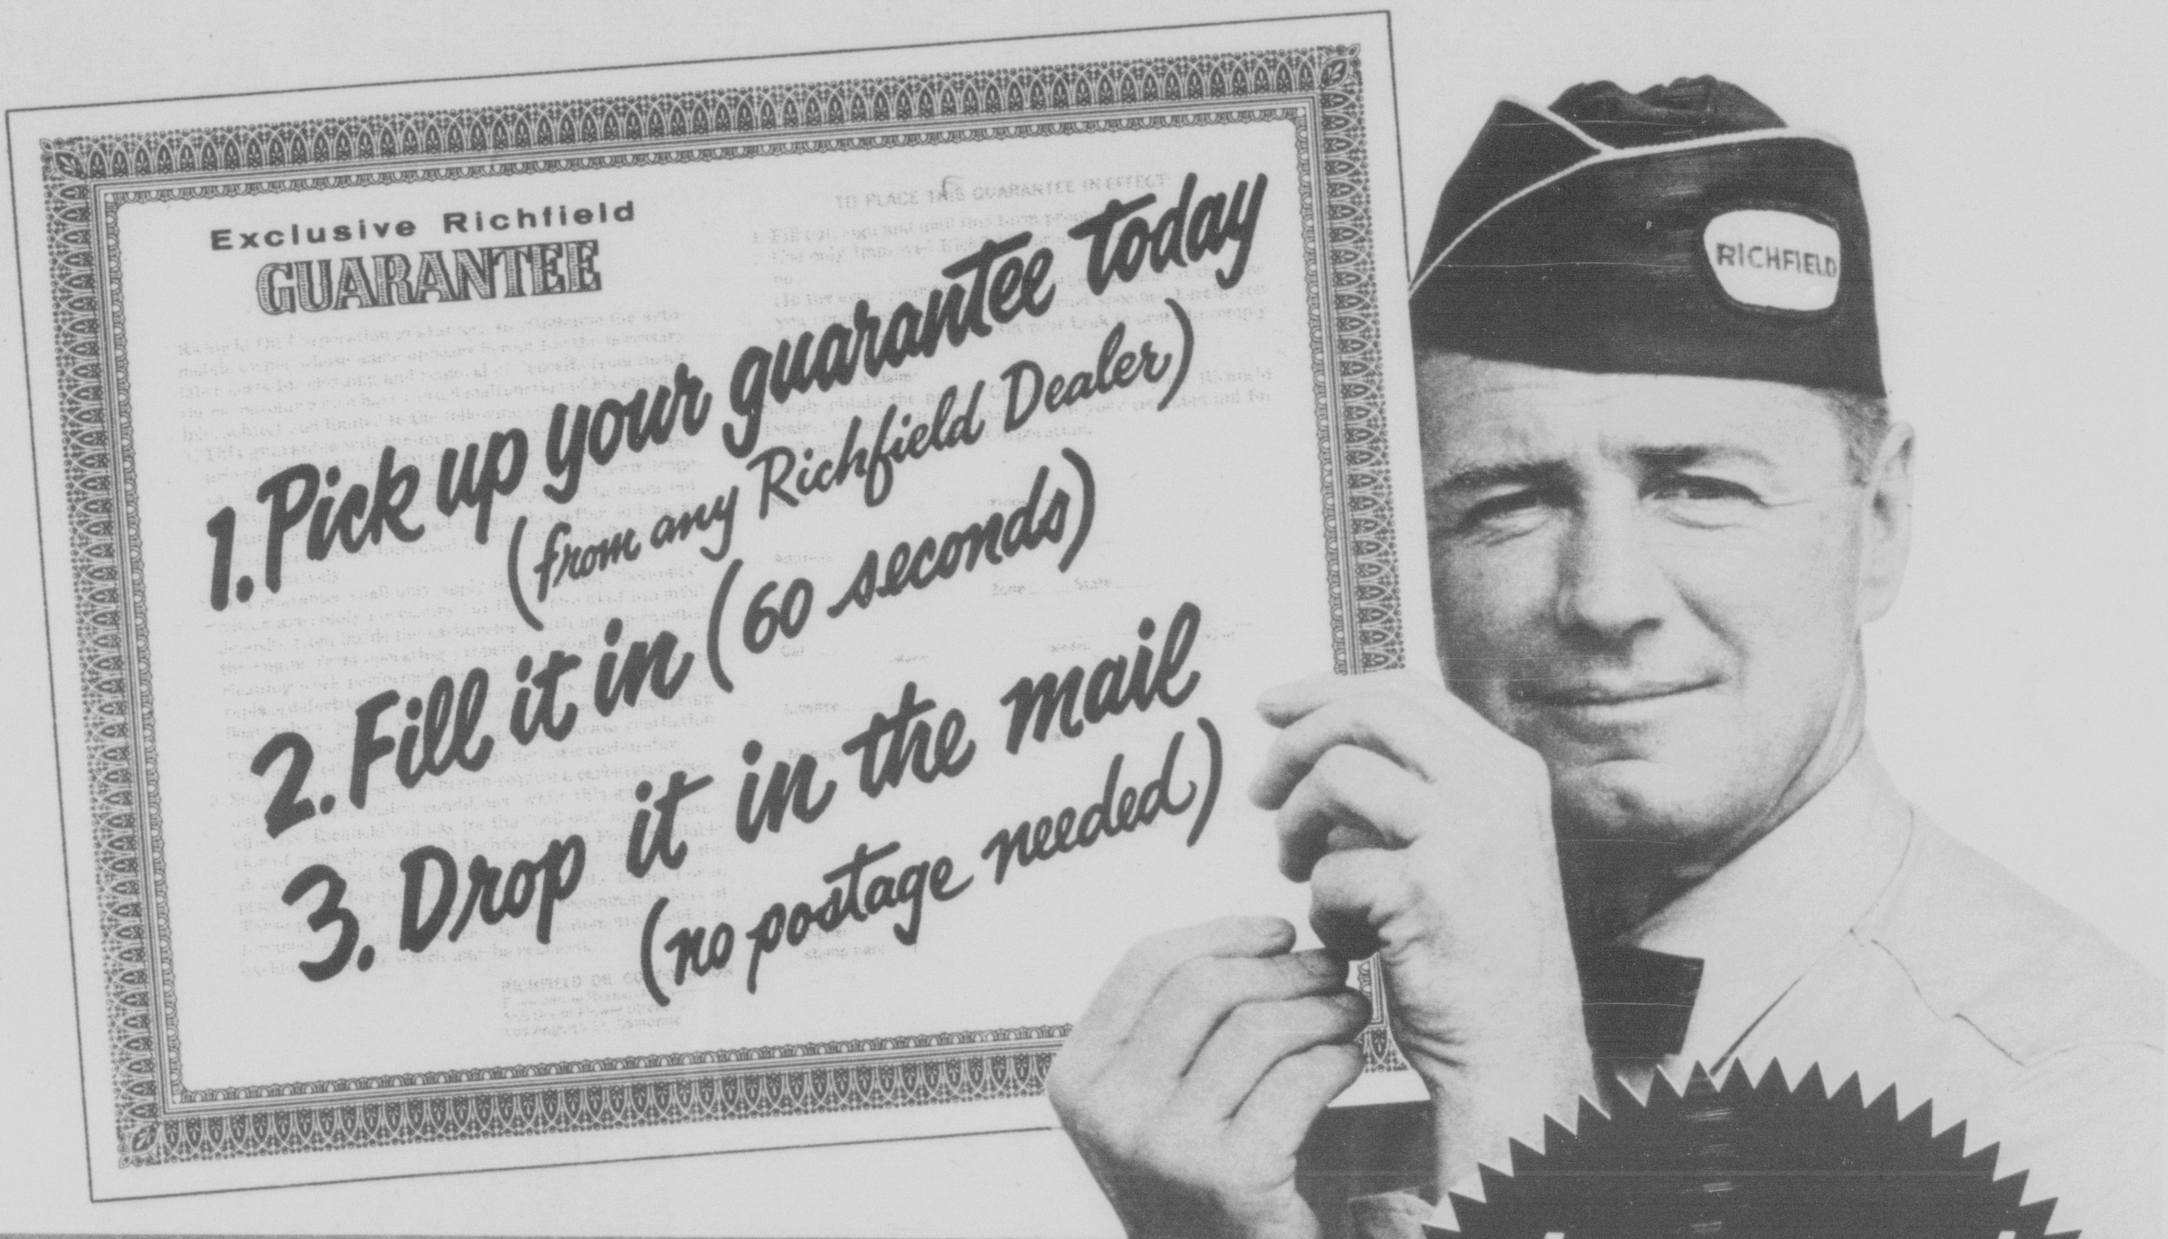
Improved Richfield Boron® is guaranteed to clean your carburetor as you drive...and keep it clean—or Richfield will pay established labor costs of a "boil-out" to remove carburetor deposits.

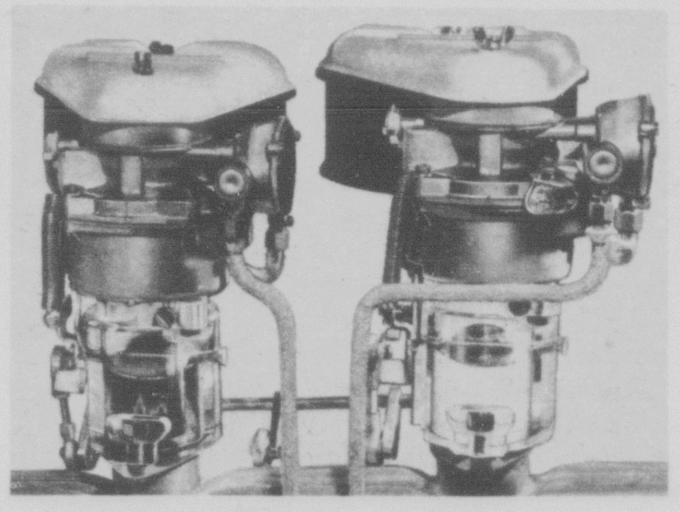


1. Pick up your guarantee today (from any Richfield Dealer)

2. Fill it in (60 seconds)

3. Drop it in the mail (no postage needed)

Why is a clean carburetor so important to you? Microscopic dirt particles pass through your car's air filter, build up on the carburetor walls. These deposits restrict air flow at idling speeds, causing rough idling, stalling, and gasoline waste. Eventually, the carburetor needs to be "boiled out." This is an expensive, time-consuming operation. And totally unnecessary now—if you will put your car on a steady diet of Improved Richfield Boron. It is guaranteed to clean your carburetor as you drive—and keep it clean.



Here's proof Improved Richfield Boron cleans your carburetor. Twin glass carburetors mounted on the same test car engine are supplied by separate fuel systems. The carburetor on the left uses a premium gasoline without Boron or MPA/2, Richfield's carburetor cleaner. You can see the deposits. Now note the carburetor using Improved Richfield Boron. It's clean and clear.

boots are in step again

by VIRGINIA POPE Parade fashion editor

IN GRANDMA'S DAY a lady wasn't a lady unless she wore her skirts down to her ankles and her boots high and buttoned. It was modest and ladylike to keep those shapely ankles concealed.

Today, after a long spell of ankle showing, we're back to boots again—but not for prudish reasons. Boots are back again because they are pretty, dashing, and practical.

Those heavy galoshes which kept the wind from nipping at your ankles a couple of seasons ago have been transformed by fashion's magic wand to bright and shiny boots. They come in many colors and leathers from make-believe snakeskin to glistening patent leather to smooth suede, and the styles feature a variety of high, medium, low and no heels.

Boots that match coats and dresses are gaining in popularity. The ultra-fashionable set is having its boots made to match such lavish costumes as brocaded evening dresses. When worn with a rajah-like coat, the boots come up to mid-calf height. The more formal booties just barely cover the ankle, and if you want to get real fancy, try a dressed-up pair with twinkling jeweled embroidery.

The present style in footwear goes back to your great-great-grandmother's day. In the 1860s, ladies' shoes rose well above the ankles. England set the style with half boots and high shoes that were buttoned or tied with bows. At the beginning of this century, carriage boots made of velvet and trimmed with fur were a lovely luxury for pretty feet. As skirt hems rose higher and women became more daring, shoes as we know them now became popular.

A long time has passed since the boot era, but the style is coming back in vogue rather quickly. Last year, boots were styled for street wear in the U.S., but in Europe fashionable ladies ordered custom booties to match their extravagant evening gowns. Some, too, were seen at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York.

This year there'll be high boots for street wear and evening boots in luxury fabrics for extravagant fun.

For further information about these fashions, write to Virginia Pope, Fashion Editor, Parade, 733 Third Avenue, New York 17, N.Y. Name this newspaper; enclose self-addressed envelope.

Flags decorate site where Liberty Bell was hidden during Revolution.

the LIBERTY BELL SLEPT HERE

ALLENTOWN, PA.

MANY AMERICAN TOWNS pride themselves on being able to say "George Washington slept here." But this city, 50 miles north of Philadelphia, claims a rarer distinction. It boasts: "The Liberty Bell slept here!"

It was just 185 years ago this week, at the height of the Revolutionary War, that the Liberty Bell was hidden away in the basement of Zion United Church of Christ here. Only 15 months earlier, the bell had pealed at the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence. Now it was leaving Philadelphia in the civilian evacuation of that city.

Today the old church basement has been turned into a shrine (see photo) that all Americans can visit. The ancient, rough-hewn walls, only recently discovered, have been reconstructed and lined with the flags of the 13 original states. And nestling among the flags stands an exact replica—a gift from Pennsylvania—of the Liberty Bell itself.

The hiding of the bell in 1777 was actually a device to save metal. The British were advancing on Philadelphia, where the Liberty Bell resided at the State House (today's Independence Hall). Fearful patriots believed the redcoats would capture it and melt it for bullets to use against Washington's army—soon to begin its long, starving winter's vigil at nearby Valley Forge.

On September 14, 1777, the Continental Congress ordered all the bells in Philadelphia removed to a place of safety. Soon a long twisting line of 700 farm wagons snaked its way slowly northward, the train including the whole baggage of Washington's retreating army, most of his wounded—and the bells of Philadelphia.

No one knows exactly who hauled the Liberty Bell. Two local farmers, Frederick Leaser and John Jacob Mickley, claimed the honor. Their descendants today are still disputing it.

The Liberty Bell was one of eleven bells that made their way to Allentown, then known as Northampton Town. Somehow, citizens wrestled the huge, 2080-pound bell off its cart and into the cellar of Zion Church. There it remained hidden until June 27, 1778, when it was returned to Philadelphia after the British evacuated the city.

Foundations Rediscovered

Years later, the old stone church was replaced by a new one on the same site. The stone-and-lime walls that had housed the bell were buried and forgotten. It was not until 1958, in connection with preparations for Allentown's bicentennial celebration this year, that the original stone foundations were excavated beneath the present church structure. Jubilant citizens immediately decided to create a shrine.

Since then, the old basement's fame has spread and already more than 200 visitors a day are filing through "The Liberty Bell Church." They come to see and to honor the place where, in one of our nation's darkest hours, a unique symbol of freedom was courageously preserved for posterity.

WHY WE HAVEN'T ENOUGH DOCTORS

Would-be doctors hear lecture at New York University. Medical schools have fewer applicants than ever.

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN

THE UNITED STATES is in the grip of a doctor shortage that is deadly serious and growing worse.

The nation needs 11,000 new doctors a year to provide a rapidly-growing population with adequate and modern medical care. It is getting only 8,000.

The medical schools are graduating fewer students than at any time since the war. Those who are being graduated have lower academic records than their counterparts a decade ago. Applications for admission are at their lowest point in 20 years.

One Midwestern medical school recently announced with great fanfare a plan to expand its freshman class as an attack on the shortage. A few months later, the plan was quietly shelved. The school couldn't locate enough qualified students to fill the seats.

The shortage is so acute that a quarter of the interns and resident physicians in American hospitals—8,400 out of 35,000 doctors—are foreign-trained. Some are from Asian and Middle Eastern countries with lower medical standards than our own. The desperate hospitals hire them anyway because there aren't enough Americans to go around.

One highly-placed official of the U.S. Public Health Service bluntly calls medical education "a mess." "The schools have their backs to the wall," this doctor says. "They have neither the students nor the faculty to do the job properly."

A few figures sum up the scope of the medical-school crisis. Last school term, the schools had only 14,000 applications for admission. This was the lowest number since 1942, a war year in which many eligibles were in the service. And of these applicants, only one in five had an "A" average. Ten years ago, the number of "A" students was twice as large.

Worried medical educators frankly fear the consequences to your family's medical care. They say the doctor shortage, the de-emphasis on "family doctoring," the swing toward professional specialties and the rapid expansion of knowledge which makes it difficult for a doctor to keep abreast of the times, all add up to less time and attention for patients. They predict you will get less medical care for more money.

Moreover, unless reforms are made quickly, they fear the situation will get worse before it gets better.

A Mother's Dream

How did the medical profession get into this plight? Only a few years ago, it was the queen of professions. Every mother wanted her son to grow up either to be President or an M.D. The medical schools picked and chose their candidates, skimming off the cream of American youth.

What happened to change this picture? Medical authorities cite four reasons:

1 The doctor's image declined. "Once people thought of a doctor as a selfless, devoted healer," recalls one medical educator. "Not everyone does today. Too many people consider him a money-mad entrepreneur with a big cigar and a limousine. Who wants to be associated with a profession like that?" Adds Dr. Samuel Proger of New England Center Hospital, Boston: "We're losing the idealists to other fields."

2 The "glamor sciences" of the space age—physics, chemistry, rocketry—began to compete with medicine for top students. These fields were just as lucrative and just as satisfying as medicine—and called for a smaller investment in time and money. Moreover, students in these fields, unlike those in medicine, have a wide choice of scholarships and federal grants to help finance their training.

3 Medical training is too long, too rigid, too expensive. The average medical student spends four years in college, four in medical school, two in the armed forces, and two to four more in additional hospital training. He can't begin practice until he is past 30. By then he is also likely to be deep in debt, for his training costs him $2,000 to $3,500 a year. Many students can't—or won't—wait that long.

4 The old legends about medical school still hurt. Students don't apply because they fear they won't get in. Or they think they will be washed out arbitrarily.

What are the medical schools doing to solve the crisis in medical education?

Perhaps the most promising step is a campaign by 40 of the nation's 84 medical schools to seek out promising potential doctors and coax them to study medicine. In some cases this ivory-hunting has all the trappings of an athletic recruitment campaign; in others it consists of simply laying today's facts about medical education before the students. "We tell them," says Dr. Robert A. Moore of Downstate Medical Center, State University of New York, Brooklyn, "that the old 'ten applications for every admission' is a fiction in this day and age. We say that any qualified student can get into medical school somewhere in the U.S." The word is also being quietly passed that the old racial and religious barriers have—generally—been dropped.

Compressed Curricula

A second promising step is reform of medical school curricula. Northwestern, Johns Hopkins and Boston University have compressed eight years' training into six, by eliminating duplicate courses, taking some of the "air" out of the curriculum, and operating the year round. This not only speeds up education but reduces the students' expenses.

And, surprisingly, medical educators think the opening of four new medical schools–at Rutgers, New Mexico, Arizona and Michigan State—may help to alleviate the doctor shortage. Dr. Ward Darley of the Association of American Medical Colleges thinks this may quash once and for all the notion that there is no room for qualified students.

But one very difficult hurdle remains to be cleared. That hurdle is money. "The greatest single deterrent to obtaining a medical education is financing it," says Dr. William S. Stone of the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

Some doctors and medical-school deans are abandoning their traditional hands-off policy toward federal aid and are giving in to the idea of government scholarships and government grants for buildings and equipment. Dr. Gordon Scott of Wayne State University, Detroit, notes that only when federal money became available did large numbers of students turn to physics and chemistry. "I think the same thing would happen in medicine if the government supported it," Dr. Scott says.

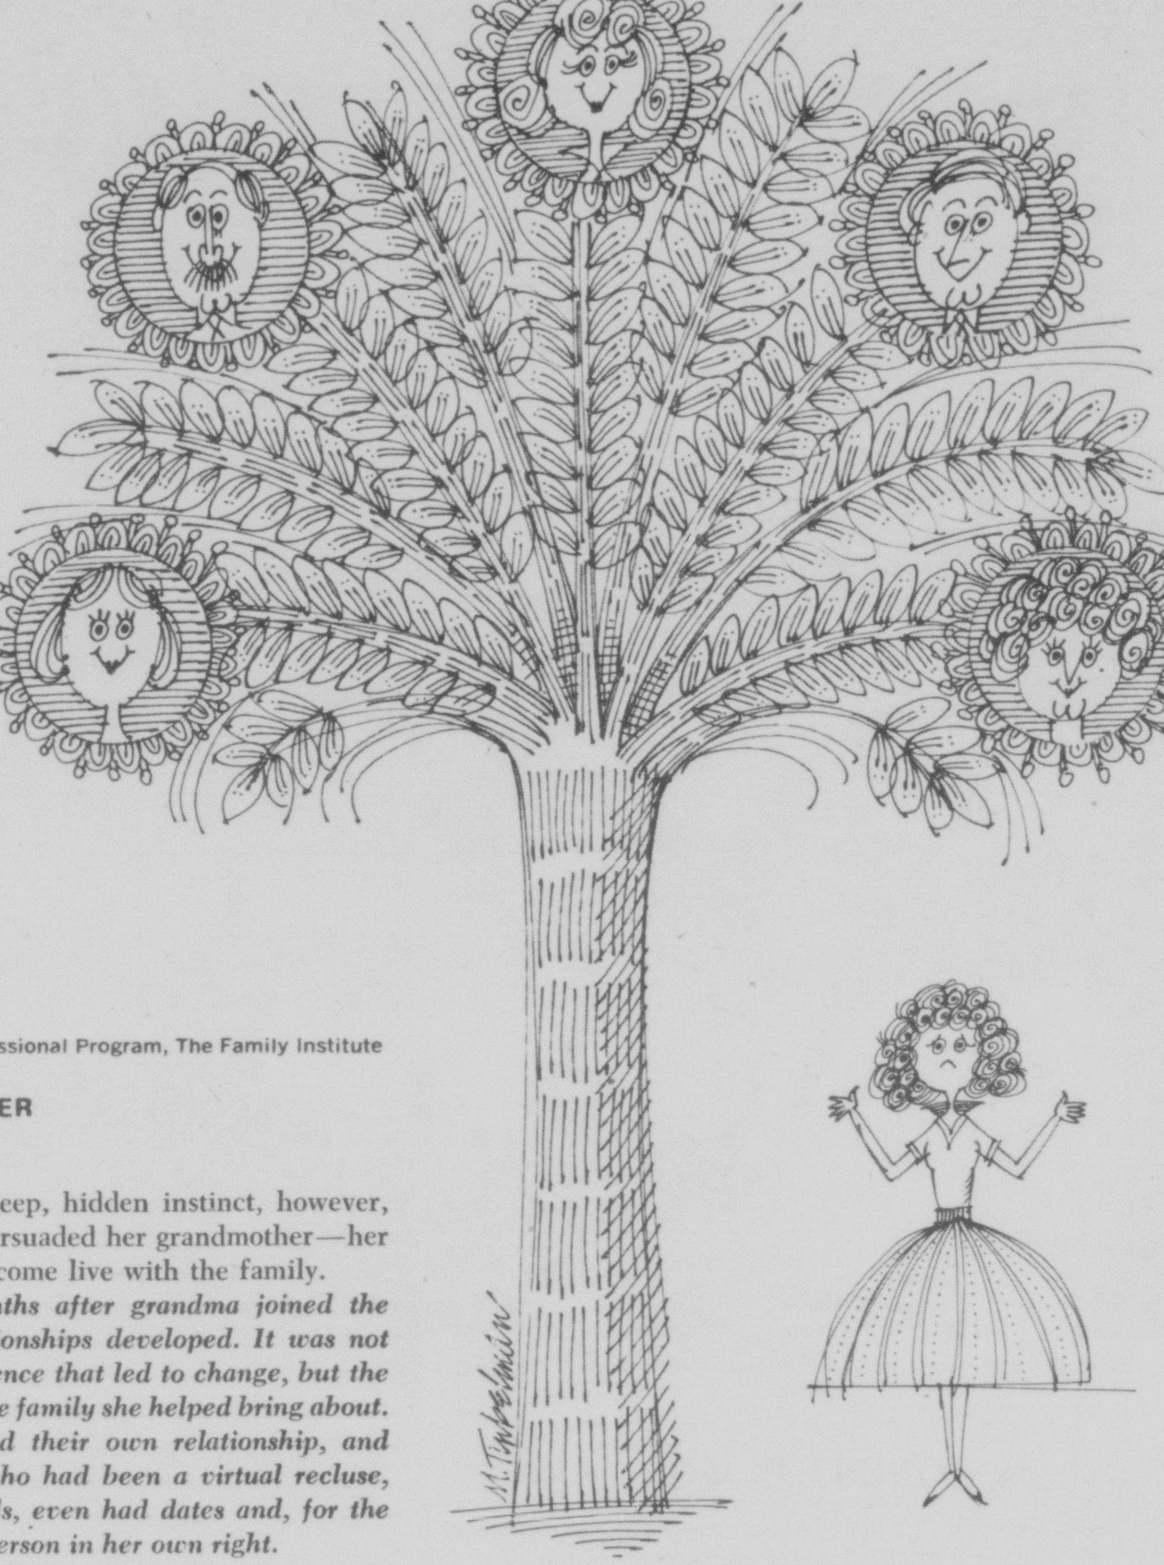
From whatever source, medical authorities agree, medical education obviously needs help. For the medical manpower shortage has come at a time when Americans turn to their doctors two and a half times as often as they did 30 years ago. And, ironically, the doctor shortage has come during the greatest era of scientific discovery in medical history.

"There is no dissatisfaction with the technical aspects of medical care," says Dr. Cecil Sheps of the University of Pittsburgh, "nor with the miracles that are expected and so often performed.

"But there is a great deal of discontent about the human relations aspects of medical care and the unavailability of adequate care for certain sections of the population."

The future task of medical education is to find ways to decrease that public discontent. ■

How your relatives can improve your life



by DR. NATHAN W. ACKERMAN Director of Professional Program, The Family Institute

as told to FLORA RHETA SCHREIBER

AMERICANS probably see less of their relatives than any other people in the world.

It's rare these days for anyone to spend his lifetime in the house where he was born, or even in the same county. Constantly on the move, people gradually lost contact with the aunts and uncles, cousins and grandparents who once surrounded them.

As a psychiatrist who works with families in crisis, I believe we've lost something precious in this process. Again and again in my practice, I've seen how the right relative can step into a tangled family situation and straighten it out, especially in cases of troubled young people when the parents, for one reason or another, are unable to help.

I knew a talented daughter of uncreative parents who was in despair because they could not understand her aspirations as a painter. She turned to an aunt, a singer, for the understanding she needed. The bond with the aunt made it possible for her not only to realize her ambitions, but also to maintain her closeness to her parents. Once the aunt did understand, it mattered less that the parents didn't.

Guiding Uncle

I have seen the floundering son of an alcoholic become a success when his uncle (his father's brother) took an interest in the boy. The uncle, whose strength counteracted the father's weakness, rescued the son and spurred him to achievement. Under his uncle's guidance, the boy, who had been flunking at school, studied hard, became a lawyer, married well and lived an exemplary life.

I have seen, too, a sympathetic grandmother help salvage a deeply disturbed family. The parents, while going through the outward motions of a happy marriage, were separated from each other in spirit. Because of this "emotional divorce" they invested their love needs in their only daughter instead of each other. The result was an unnatural parent-child relationship that stifled the daughter's emotional growth. Acting out of some deep, hidden instinct, however, the 15-year-old girl persuaded her grandmother—her mother's mother—to come live with the family.

Within a few months after grandma joined the household, new relationships developed. It was not just her physical presence that led to change, but the new balance within the family she helped bring about. The parents improved their own relationship, and soon the daughter, who had been a virtual recluse, began to make friends, even had dates and, for the first time, became a person in her own right.

Crucial Questions

How can you know whether a relative is the right one to turn to? He may only be trying to relieve his own frustrations by living your life for you. Or he may want to help you just to be able to boast of his big-heartedness, or to have someone to boss.

Ask yourself these questions about any relative you think might help you:

1. Do I feel comfortable in his presence?
2. Does he listen when I speak—really listen with his whole heart and mind?
3. Do I feel I can accept his advice, without feeling resentful?
4. Does he nurture my ideals, my aspirations, interests, creative growth and individuality?
5. Does he avoid being bossy, bombarding me with "you ought, you should, you must"—without asking me what I think, feel or want?
6. Above all, do I have an instinctive affection for him?

The more "Yes" answers you have given, the more likely it is you've found the right person to turn to. This relative will share your common struggle not only as any other sympathetic person might, but also with an extra bond because he is your kin.

Remember, though, even the right relative can't be much help if you're not honest with him. If you tell him business is good when you're on the verge of bankruptcy, you're practically turning him into a stranger. I know a woman, for instance, who needed an operation. Instead of telling her family about it, she went to the hospital alone, pretending she was going on a trip. She did this because she was a person who deliberately cut herself off from close relationships while at the same time she urgently wanted them. Because she wanted these relationships so much, she was desperately lonely in the hospital. How simple it would have been for her to confide in her relatives, to accept the flowers, the cards, the sentiment and to be at peace with those who gave. Even a devoted relative may not give you the warmth you need because you don't let him.

Make a devoted relative your sounding-board. But take an interest in his problems, too. Your relationship must be a two-way street of giving and receiving.

Don't make the mistake of saving him just for crises, either. Share your everyday interests, your minor joys and worries too. Let him come into your life and enrich it as a warm, comfortable, reliable friend.

When you have achieved this kind of relationship with the right relative, you'll find you have strengthened your life with understanding—and love. ■

MARTA KRISTEN

Disney's newest discovery

by LLOYD SHEARER

HOLLYWOOD.

SOPHISTICATES here frequently refer to Walt Disney as "Old Mr. Cornball" or "The Boy Who Never Grew Up" or "An Outstanding Example of Arrested Intellectual Development."

The reason for this is that at 60, Disney has never cultivated a taste for Tennessee Williams, gangsterism, narcotics addiction or any of the provocative perversions which constitute so much of today's film fare.

Walt believes in Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm, Robinson Crusoe, Mark Twain, dogs, children, apple pie, American history, and family entertainment. No such brooding stars as Marlon Brando, Frank Sinatra, Warren Beatty and Elizabeth Taylor for him. Walt goes for the healthy, wholesome, corn-fed type — genial, well-mannered, clean-cut youngsters like Hayley Mills, Tommy Kirk, and Kevin Corcoran.

Take his latest "discovery," for example, Marta Kristen. Marta is a 17-year-old blue-eyed blonde with a cute nose-tilt, an outgoing personality, a trim little figure, 5 feet 4, 107 pounds and still growing—and an almost perennial smile.

Disney is starring her in Savage Sam, a sequel to Old Yeller. It's the story of a dog, a boy and a girl taken captive by the Apaches in Southwest Texas in the 1870s. Marta's the only female in the film, for which she is earning $450 a week, a combination of money and opportunity which is transforming her into a contemporary Cinderella.

Unwanted Waif

Admittedly, "Cinderella" is an overworked title in Hollywood, but in Marta's case it definitely applies. For the first five years of her life, this delightful girl was an unwanted Norwegian war-waif.

The daughter of a Finnish mother and a German soldier-father, both still unknown to her, Marta was left in an Oslo orphanage when she was two months old.

No one wanted her. Then in 1949, a Marta Bentzen, a social worker in the Oslo orphanage, sent a photo of the child to Dr. and Mrs. Harold Soderquist of Detroit. A professor of philosophy at Wayne State University, Soderquist was then 53—too old to adopt an infant from an American agency but wanting one very much.

The Soderquists wrote back immediately and said they would adopt the little girl. After a mountain of international red tape, Marta flew from Oslo to New York. She was 5 and couldn't speak a word of English but the Soderquists took her home to Farmington, a suburb of Detroit, and in no time at all the child adjusted to the language and the customs.

By 10 she was starring in an original comedy she had written. Later at Farmington Junior High she was a straight A student. At 14 she was playing in Taming of the Shrew and Little Women at the Will-O-Way Theatre in Birmingham, Michigan, no one ever guessing that she was not American-born.

"To tell you the truth," Marta confesses, "I never knew very much about myself until I was 12. I knew I had been adopted, but I always thought I was Norwegian by birth. Then one evening I began to rummage around in the desk drawers, and I found a letter which the social worker from the orphanage had written my foster parents. It explained that my real father was a German soldier, one of the Nazis who had occupied Norway during the war, and that my mother was a Finnish lady who had now gone back to Sweden.

"I had always regarded the Nazis as such terrible and despicable people—to find out that my own father had been one—I cried and cried. Then I ran up to the bedroom where my parents were and I shouted, "Thanks a lot for telling me about myself!" My father took me in his arms and said consolingly, "We were going to tell you as much as we knew, but gradu-

IS THERE SUCH A THING AS A SPECIAL LAXATIVE FOR WOMEN?

So many women are asking this important question.

The answer is—yes. A remarkable new medical discovery called Dioctyl Sodium Sulfosuccinate has now made possible a special new laxative for a woman's sensitive system. We call it Correctol®.

Correctol works two ways. First, its miracle ingredient takes advantage of the natural moisture in your system. Second, its mild laxative acts gently but most effectively. Working together, Correctol's two active ingredients give a woman more natural relief than any ordinary laxative can.

Correctol is recommended any time in a woman's life, even during and after pregnancy.

Try gentle, hospital-tested Correctol . . . bearing the Good Housekeeping Seal. Ask your druggist for Correctol.

ally, and at what we considered the proper time."

Again Marta adjusted to the facts of life and when her foster father took a sabbatical and came to California, she came with him. One afternoon, while eating a hamburger in Santa Monica, she was approached by producer James Harris who asked if she would like to try out for Lolita.

"At first," Marta says, "I thought he was kidding, but I found out that he wasn't. My mother thought the role wasn't for me or vice versa, so I bowed out. But Mr. Harris did introduce me to an agent, and so I got started in show business.

Multiple Goals

"My first part was on a TV show, The Loretta Young Show, and then I did several Hitchcocks and a few segments of My Three Sons. A few weeks ago my agent took me out to Disney's—I just idolize Walt Disney—and they signed me for the role in Savage Sam. It's my first motion picture job, and I don't want to gush but I'm so excited I can hardly stand it. I know I can act and all I want is to be a really good actress. I shouldn't say, "All I want." I also want to get a college degree. My father's taught philosophy for the past 37 years and when a girl's had that sort of educational environment, a lot of it wears off."

Marta also wants to get married. Not now, of course. She has a boy friend, Richard Thornton, "and we've talked it all out, and he's willing to wait seven or eight years for me. When I'm 25, that's when I'll be ready to settle down. But right now I'm flying. I'm way up on Cloud Nine." ■

OLD-FASHIONED soft sugar cookies

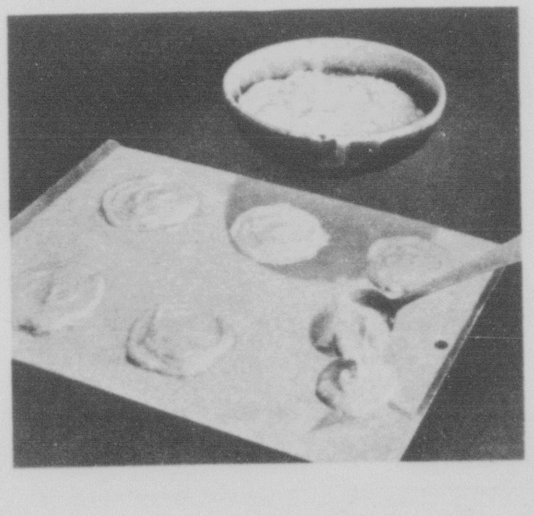
by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

Here's a recipe for big plump, soft cookies—crisp only around the edges—a favorite of yours and just as you remember them from childhood. They're sure to hit the spot for after-school munching, mid-morning coffee, afternoon tea or evening snacks.

SOFT SUGAR COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar • 2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup dairy sour cream • Cinnamon-sugar

Cream butter to consistency of mayonnaise; add sugar gradually, while continuing to cream. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla. Beat until light and fluffy. Mix and sift flour, salt, baking powder and baking soda. Add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. For 3-inch cookies drop by heaping teaspoons on well-greased cookie sheets, well apart. With spatula flatten into circles about 2 inches in diameter. For super-size, 5-inch cookies use ¼ cup measure of batter for each cookie; flatten into circles about 4-inches in diameter. Sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar. Bake in hot oven, 400°, 10 to 12 minutes. Makes about thirty 3-inch cookies or eighteen 5-inch cookies.



Chocolate sugar cookies: Add 2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled, to creamed mixture. Continue as above.

Raisin sugar cookies: Add 1 cup seedless raisins to creamed mixture. Continue as above. FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dick Chase and Morty Reed, both from Brooklyn, formed a comedy team two years ago. In that short time they've developed into a bigtime night club act playing such spots as the Copacabana in New York, the Eden Roc in Miami Beach, the Holiday House in Pittsburgh. Reed is a former child prodigy who gave piano concerts at age 12, later obtained a law degree from N.Y.U. Dick Chase originally studied voice and hoped to become a cantor. Both men are married, bright, witty, creative and intelligent. Here are some of their favorite funnies:

OUR FAVORITE JOKES

by DICK CHASE and MORTY REED

A woman driving down a one-way street in the wrong direction was stopped by a traffic cop. After he explained the error of her ways, she snapped back: "Hasn't it ever occurred to you, Officer, that the arrow may be pointing the wrong way?"

A man worked for a company for 40 years. One day he went to his boss and told him he was leaving for a better job. The boss became infuriated and said: "You know what's wrong with you fellows today? You just use each job as a stepping stone."

A father was absorbed in his favorite TV program when his young son ventured forth and asked him about a homework problem.

"Dad," asked the lad, "where are the Alps?"

"Ask your mother," came the reply. "She puts everything away around this house."

A man visited a psychiatrist and said: "Every time I step out of my apartment there's a lion waiting to jump me."

The psychiatrist gave the matter some thought and replied: "Your mind is playing tricks on you, and you need psychiatric care. I suggest you come in for consultation three times a week."

The man did as suggested and visited the psychiatrist several times, then missed a visit.

The psychiatrist phoned the patient's house and, when the wife answered the phone, asked: "How is your husband?"

"Haven't you heard?" she replied sorrowfully. "When he stepped out of the door this morning, a lion ate him up."

On their honeymoon, the groom took his bride by the hand and said, "Now that we're married, dear, I hope you won't mind if I mention a few little defects that I've noticed about you."

"Not at all," the bride replied with a deceptive sweetness. "It was those little defects that kept me from getting a better husband."

Two girls who had gone to high school together met after a lapse of several years. "It's nice to see you again," said the first. "Are you married?"

"Yes," said the second.

"I remember," teased the first, "that you always said you wouldn't marry the best man in the world."

"Well," confided her companion, with a rather harrowed look, "I didn't."

A drunk walked into a bar three times, each time through a different entrance. Each time the bartender refused to serve him. After the third time, the inebriate said to the bartender, "Say, do you work in every bar in town?"

An actor turned up at a cocktail party, tanned a deep bronze.

"What a wonderful sunburn!" enthused a young starlet. "How did you acquire it?"

"I have a lousy agent," the actor scornfully replied.

While they were standing out on the firing range, the sergeant turned to the corporal and said: "I wonder what Private Smith did before he entered the army. Every time he fires a shot, he takes out his handkerchief and wipes his fingerprints off the gun."

ANECDOTE of the WEEK

Before Lee Remick left for Spain and a role in a new motion picture, she asked if she should take a crash course in conversational Spanish. She was told it wasn't necessary. Now she knows better. The other day in Malaga she bought what she thought were tickets to her first bullfight and ended up watching the touring Harlem Globetrotters. ■

DO YOU TAKE VITAMINS AND STILL FEEL TIRED?

If you take vitamins yet still feel tired — you may need more than vitamins to restore your normal strength and energy. Your worn-out feeling may be due to iron-poor, Tired Blood.

Vitamins alone can't build up iron-poor blood. But GERITOL can! Because GERITOL contains 7 important vitamins and, in addition, supplies the therapeutic amount of iron needed to build iron-rich red blood. Just 2 GERITOL tablets, or 2 tablespoons of GERITOL liquid, contain twice the iron in a pound of calves' liver! In only one day, GERITOL-iron is working in your bloodstream, carrying strength and energy to every part of your body!

Proved By Medical Tests: Patients diagnosed with iron-deficiency anemia, frequently were pale, nervous, irritable and easily tired. After patients took GERITOL daily, doctors reported definite clinical improvement.

So when you feel tired, check with your doctor, and if this is your problem, take fast-acting GERITOL every day. You must feel a noticeable difference in the first seven days . . . or money back from the maker.

THROUGH POLITICAL WOODS, SET FOR 1967

L. B. World's Fair Passes All Tests

By LOU JOBST

The California World's Fair at Long Beach has passed its point-of-no-return and the men who will build the $175 million exposition couldn't be happier.

"We have reached the place where all we have to do is look ahead," said former Kansas governor Fred Hall, executive vice president of the fair and one of its prime movers. "Everything we are doing and will be doing is now aimed only at making the fair a reality in Long Beach.

"With government approval all the way up to the White House we're through the political woods. But there have been times in the past two years when I've had to depend on these."

Hall, a broad grin on his face, held up crossed fingers on both hands.

GOV. FRED HALL . . . Fair Boss

WITH THE GROUND cleared the first of many critical management decisions have been made, Hall said.

First, the fair will ask the federal government to spend $16 million "or more" to build a U.S. exhibit.

Second, the opening of the two-year exposition has been changed from 1966 to 1967.

"There are a number of reasons for this. The additional time will allow time for the site to settle (Pier J is a 311-acre sand fill) and will provide ample leeway for exhibitors at the New York Fair, 1964-65, to move here," Hall explained.

"A change in the schedule is not unusual. Seattle moved back its opening date from 1961 to '62."

MORE IMMEDIATELY the present 20-man fair staff which occupies 15 offices on three floors of the Lafayette Hotel is making arrangements for two events which will set fair machinery into motion around the world.

The first will be held here Wednesday when fair executives and city officials meet to sign a formal contract on Pier J and the other is scheduled for late October or early November in the White House when President Kennedy will officially issue a proclamation inviting the nations of the world and the 50 U.S. states to participate in the Long Beach show.

The latter event will be attended by international publicity and will give the State Department the green-light to set up diplomatic liaison for the fair in capitals around the globe.

IN THE MILL is a scheme to build an electronic countdown machine in Long Beach which President Kennedy would activate with a switch in Washington, D.C.

The machine, brainchild of fair public relations chief Hank Vasener, would tick off the months, days and hours until the opening date in flashing electric lights and would be installed "at some prominent location in the downtown oceanfront district."

Anticipating the contract signing, engineers and architects of Aetron—one of two outside corporations already heavily committed to the project—have begun work on a construction mock-up of the fairgrounds. Although far from finished the basic—and startling—layout is apparent.

THE GROUNDS will be built around a central core or mall which is contiguous and at the same time a part of the fair's three major sections, the industrial, state and federal and foreign exhibit areas.

This is situated about midway down a two-mile long north-south spine which leads in from three main entrances, two from the water and one from the land. This spine incorporates a pedestrian walkway, an elevated tram, a monorail, and water canal.

Most of these buildings which must be converted to port use after the fair closes (including the mall, which becomes an international village), the main fair-built exhibit structures which are to become cargo warehouses and the steamship terminal, are to be designed through an international competition of architects.

AN INTERNATIONAL contest also will be held to select the theme structure and among the long-range plans is a communications building with equipment for direct contact with men on the moon and telestar satellites.

Letters and proposals have been rolling into fair headquarters at the rate of 100 to 200 a day and Chris Taylor, director of concessions, reports $300,000 in deposit checks already in the coffers.

"If we closed all proposals tomorrow morning we'd be assured of a 70 per cent sellout," said Taylor, a veteran of the 1939 New York World's Fair.

Next year special fair recruiting teams, possibly working through the auspices of the United Nations, will go abroad to drum up business. Hall is aiming at a minimum of 30 foreign exhibits and 25 to 30 U.S. states.

ALTHOUGH THE FAIR work force will ultimately involve 26,000 people, 16,000 to build it and 10,000 to operate it, hiring of the permanent management staff of 150 to 175 will proceed steadily during the next three years. The staff will reach 35 to 50 this year.

"There is no such thing as a professional exposition man," explained the 46-year-old Hall. "Many of the jobs are of a professional nature and will be provided by big corporations such as Del Webb and Aetron.

"We hope to hire some executives and experts from the Seattle and New York fairs and will comb the country for the best men available in other fields."

Hall said the fair may move into other and larger downtown quarters in 1963 and into a structure somewhere in the port "as soon after that as possible."

HALL, CURRENTLY chairman of the California Republican Assembly, said he plans to get completely out of politics until after the fair closes in late 1968.

10-Year Building Program

COUNTY LISTS $321 MILLION PROJECTS

By DON BRACKENBURY
I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

A 10-year construction program for Los Angeles County at a total cost of $321,411,212 will be presented to the Board of Supervisors next Tuesday by L.S. Hollinger, chief administrative officer.

All "critical and essential" projects are included, Hollinger said, with the "most critical" planned for the earliest years in which land acquisition and plans can be completed.

Total requirements for the first four years are "well in excess of any possible financing from current tax levies," Hollinger warned.

He added, however, that major segments of the financing may be available from the County Retirement Board, which by law may invest up to 25 per cent of its funds in county land and buildings.

Hollinger's report notes that the "continuing dynamic growth" of the county is the major cause of burgeoning construction needs. The population as of last July 1 was 6,410,506 and the Regional Planning Commission estimates it will hit 7,750,000 by 1970 and 10 million by 1980, he said.

A "significant change" in Los Angeles County population has been the large increase in the under-19-year-old residents. This has brought on added demands for educational programs, recreational facilities, juvenile detention and rehabilitation facilities, the county administrator said.

Hollinger broke the total program down into six major divisions: general (including various courts and county buildings), $117,090,863; public protection, $85,610,883; health and sanitation, $5,401,400; public assistance, $62,746,690; education, $762,690; and rec-

SPEAK FOREIGN TONGUE

I, P-T Offers Speech Course at Low Cost

The knowledge of a foreign language is more valuable, more important, more popular than ever before.

Why?

Our young people are of a world telescoped by the jet age . . . London, Paris, Rome, and Moscow are airway stops; Americans are traveling abroad for education, for recreation, and in business. As travel skyrockets, so does the need for working familiarity with the languages of international communication.

Accordingly The Independent, Press-Telegram has undertaken an important new educational service for its readers, a project to provide a new language-learning course on records at a price so low anyone interested in learning a foreign language can afford it.

Prepared in native idiom, by native teachers and educators, recorded teaching courses have been arranged by language experts to enable those persons desirous of acquiring a working knowledge of foreign tongues to express and understand ideas in a form natural to the people speaking particular tongues.

Now these lessons in foreign languages, of a highly-recommended quality and which under regular labels would cost several times the price now made possible, can be obtained by readers of the Independent, Press-Telegram at a bargain price.

They are being offered to the readers of the I. P-T for only $1 a record. Each language course consists of four long-playing 10-inch high-fidelity records, 33⅓ rmp, with a handy conversational manual with each record.

Languages being offered are those proved most popular

Ceremony to Launch Space Unit

HUNTINGTON BEACH — Donald W. Douglas will break ground here Thursday for his company's new space facility.

In turning the first shovel of earth, the founder and board chairman of the Douglas Aircraft Co. will signal the start of construction of the firm's multi-million-dollar Space Systems Center on a 245-acre site.

The ceremony is scheduled for 10 a.m. The center will be part of the company's Missile and Space Systems Division, headed by Charles R. Able.

• • • •

HUNTINGTON BEACH civic officials, headed by Mayor Robert Lambert, and other Orange County public officials, have been invited to join company officials for the ground-breaking.

The center is expected to employ approximately 5,000 persons by 1965. First occupancy will take place in mid-1963.

Architects for the facility are Daniel, Mann, Mendenhall and Johnson. C. L. Peck Construction Co. is the contractor.

• • • •

FIRST PROGRAMS to be undertaken at the center will be design and construction of the S-IV-B, terminal stage of Saturn C-5, the rocket to be used in the nation's manned lunar exploration.

AF Stunt Pilots Cap Air Show

By LEE CRAIG

The 24th annual "Wings Over the World" air show will begin at 9 a.m. today at Long Beach Municipal Airport and finish with a spectacular aerobatic display over the ocean just offshore by the Air Force's famous "Thunderbird" jet team.

Flying F100 Super Sabres, the four ace stunt pilots will perform below 8,000 feet in an area off the beach between Rainbow Pier and the Alamitos Bay entrance, beginning at 4 p.m.

Earlier, a crowd of about 50,000 is expected to attend the rest of the show—which is free of charge—at the airport, entering at the old Air Force gate on East Spring Street.

• • • •

FEATURE of the airport show will be a non-flying version of the North American Aviation-built rocket plane X15 and its first test pilot, Scott Crossfield, who will be on hand to answer questions.

Also on display will be a DC8 jetliner just delivered to National Air Lines. The public will be able to board the big jet and inspect it at close range.

In all, 52 aircraft will be exhibited, from antique biplanes to the military's latest jet fighters.

• • • •

INTRODUCED during the show will be stewardesses from many international airlines, one of whom will reign over the festivities as "Miss Wings Over the World."

There will be amusement rides for children and hot dog and soft drink concessions operated by the sponsoring Junior Chamber of Commerce. Music will be provided at intervals by the Long Beach Municipal Band, the El Toro Marine Corps Band and the Civil Air Patrol Band, which will also present its drill team.

The Coast Guard will stage a demonstration by an air-sea rescue team at 1 p.m.

The show at the field will end about 3:45 p.m., when the Thunderbirds will roar aloft to prepare for the event's dazzling finale.

Superior in Air, on Ground

By WILLIAM L. F. HORSEY
United Press International

BUENOS AIRES — Rebel army troops, with the sudden backing of President Jose Guido and with ground and air superiority, Saturday crushed troops loyal to the Argentine General Staff and ended the shooting in Argentina's short-lived civil war.

Guido immediately appointed rebel commander Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía interim commander in chief of the army, replacing the ousted head of the Loyalist forces, Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio.

• • • •

REBEL soldiers arrested Lorio's chief of staff, Gen. Bernardino Labayru, and a third Loyalist commander surrendered in northern Argentina.

The rebels fought the Loyalists in five engagements. They won all five. At nightfall, Guido's office announced "Military operations in the federal capital and Greater Buenos Aires and in the greater part of the country have now ceased."

• • • •

THE END of the fighting meant the defeat of the Loyalists, who could not counter the crushing attacks of rebel tanks, artillery, and jet planes. Their military defeat came on top of their political defeat.

St. Peter's Basilica Periled by Bomb

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A small incendiary bomb exploded harmlessly Saturday night in St. Peter's Basilica, less than three weeks before the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council opens in the largest Christian church in the world.

Vatican security guards shortly afterwards found a second detonator in the basilica but no explosives were attached to it.

The guards said the first device, a bottle filled with fluid, was found by a workman. They said the workman accidentally knocked the bottle over and it exploded "with a puff of smoke."

• • • •

IT WAS THE SECOND DEVICE to explode in St. Peter's in slightly more than two months. No one was injured either time and damage was negligible.

But Vatican sources expressed concern over the latest incident and said they feared it could signal a possible intimidation campaign against the forthcoming council, the largest Roman Catholic church gathering in modern times.

The Vatican said Pope John XXIII received word of the incident with "deep sorrow."

Prior to the report by security guards, the Vatican press office said two paper-wrapped parcels containing inflammable or explosive material had been found.

A special commission was appointed to investigate the incident.

L.A.C. Says: They Haven't Changed

A recent issue of U. S. News devoted seven pages to life insurance and the kinds of protection it provides. But it ignored the importance of knowing what presently held policies provide in the event of the insured passing away. The Veterans Administration has just warned that thousands of veterans policies do not provide settlement agreements that adequately protect the veteran's present family situation. Ten years ago we wrote on this subject. What we said then applies as much today as it did then—when we wrote it.

During the last month five old-time friends have gone to another world. We do not know in what shape they left their estates. But if the conditions are average, their loved ones, left behind, have many unnecessary expenses and hardships to face.

We say unnecessary because the great majority of men leave no will. Their life insurance is not so shaped to provide protection the men intended. A guardian for minor children has not been designated in a will so insurance or other money can be paid to them. Under such laxness of planning, a court must later decide whom the children will look to for the things the father thought he had left so secure.

Most men who die suddenly leave their papers scattered so no one can be sure what assets are left in the estate. The widow is at the mercy of her friends whose judgment may or may not be good. Men who take pride and brag over their efficiency in business would be ashamed to have former associates know the mess in which they leave their estates.

One young family was recently on a motor trip. The father, mother and four little children were in an accident. The father and mother were killed. He left insurance totaling $50,000. He also left an automobile, a mortgaged house and a few hundred dollars in the bank. The insurance policy was about all the children had for protection against just this sort of catastrophe. It is what the father planned it for. But he never planned how, when and to whom the insurance money would be paid in event of death of both mother and father of these four little children.

Here was a man of unusual intelligence and executive ability. He took great pride in never letting a business detail go until tomorrow when it should be settled today. He was very intolerant of laxness of those under him who failed to do what was to be done on schedule. He loved his four little children dearly and often talked of when they would go to school and then to college. But he would never take time to make a will and plan for the protection of these loved ones. He carried insurance for every possible business contingency. He knew exactly who would take over his job if he were incapacitated. But he left his estate so an unfamiliar court had to appoint guardians for those little children. We happen to know the guardian appointed would never have been the choice of either the father or mother of these children.

It is estimated that, on the average, money left to widows disappears in seven years. Some 90 per cent of all families now carry life insurance. But not one man or wife in ten can tell you how that insurance will be paid in event of death of the insured. Not one in a thousand can tell what would happen if both were killed in an accident, had the wife died a half hour before the insured husband. And yet these life insurance policies represent the entire estate of most families. Surely this protection for loved ones when you are gone deserves better planning and attention while you are here.

Death is something no one can avoid. It comes to young people who seem destined for the pleasures of old age. No one can truly say he will be here to see another sunrise. It could be made so much easier for those who stay behind if we did a little planning. The man who carefully plans for his own old age and education of his children is careful to carry liability and fire insurance on his house and automobile. That is sound planning he is careful about because it may affect his own future. It would take very little more effort to make things a lot easier for those you leave behind in the event you don't reach that old age.

Argentina War Won by Rebels

Lorio in a swing to the rebels, who seek national elections to avert the threat of a military dictatorship by the General Staff.

• • • •

LORIO WAS reported — without confirmation — to have set up a new command post outside the city, rallying his forces there after their four defeats in the capital during the afternoon. But he was without services of his chief of staff, Labayru, arrested by rebel forces. He, too, had been fired by Guido but like Lorio refused to leave his post.

Another important Loyalist leader, Gen. Federico Toranzo Montero, commander of the Fourth Army in northern Argentina, announced his forces had given up the fight against the rebels there. Montero said he was obeying the cease-fire orders of Guido, issued Friday night but ignored by the Loyalists until Saturday night.

• • • •

TORANZO MONTERO'S troops earlier were reported battling the rebels in the only fighting outside the capital Saturday. The other action took place in the streets and parks of Buenos Aires.

To seal their complete control of Buenos Aires, the rebels took over the War Ministry building in the heart of town and placed under arrest Col. Fernandez Funes, chief of the War Ministry Security Service.

As smoke and flame billowed over Buenos Aires from buildings pitted by bullets and holed with tank shells, rebel headquarters announced that at least three persons were killed and as many as 122 injured in the fighting.

• • • •

BUT A spokesman for a military hospital in the city said the count was two dead and 33 wounded. Unofficial death figures for two days of fighting in the capital stood at 10.

Saturday's battles raged over the broad Constitution Plaza, the parks of Chacabuco and Avelleneda, and an auto race track, but came to a halt at dusk with the rebels definitely on top.

Meanwhile, rebel troops engaged the Loyalist forces of Gen. Toranzo Monteros in the northern provinces, according to rebel headquarters. No results of the fighting were immediately available.

In all three major city battles—the one in the square and the two in the parks—rebel superiority in air and firepower decided the day.

• • • •

TANKS outgunned machinegun nests manned by the Loyalists in the plaza. They crumbled arsenal walls with their shells and forced the foot soldiers to surrender.

Planes of the Seventh Air Force Brigade, which swung over to the rebels, were decisive in the park battles, strafing entrenched Lorio troops with machinegun fire at Avelleneda and dropping a bomb near the Chacabuco swimming pool which left a high column of smoke in the sky.

The Chacabuco battle began at 2:45 p.m. and ended at 5:30 p.m., when the defenders surrendered and agreed to return to their barracks. Fighting began an hour and a half later at the other park and ended with the retreat of the Loyalists about three hours afterwards.

WON'T LAST

Caroline Now Shy Again

NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI)—Caroline Kennedy, who was very much in evidence when she accompanied her parents aboard a destroyer last Tuesday, kept somewhat out of sight Saturday telling news camaramen:

"No pictures. No pictures."

The nearly-five-years-old daughter of President and Mrs. Kennedy, in a bright red outfit, tried to hide aboard the White House yacht Honey Fitz when she saw photographers alongside on the destroyer Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. The Kennedys transferred to the destroyer to witness Saturday's America Cup sailing race.

Caroline's "No pictures" injunction recalled a similar episode some months ago in Palm Beach when she was with the President in Palm Beach when she shouted the same order to photographers.

SHOOTING OVER

Here's the Latest Data on Argentina

By The Associated Press

Here is the Argentina situation at a glance:

OPPOSING FORCES:

—Air force and mechanized cavalry forces under Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania. At first denounced by President Jose Maria Guido, they won him over to their cause of constitutional government, early elections and government free of military dictation.

—Navy and army forces under Guido's old war secretariat, which include Gen. Juan Carlos Lorio, army commander-in-chief, and Gen. Bernardino Labayru, army chief of staff.

MILITARY SITUATION:

—Pro-Guido forces seized control of Buenos Aires and reported opposing forces surrendering in other parts of country. Aerial attack and tank assault pierced Lorio-Labayru forces defenses in afternoon fighting in Buenos Aires. Key units surrendered. Victory for Guido forecs was virtually sealed.

—Gen. Labayru was arrested, officials said. Gen. Lorio was reported to have fled Buenos Aires.

—Guido demanded unconditional surrender of all Lorio-Labayru troops.

—Navy, though committed to anti-Guido forces, failed to enter the fight, claiming it was too late to do anything.

SITUATION OF GOVERNMENT:

—Guido was still in power and operating at Government House, his executive offices, in downtown Buenos Aires. National congress had been closed after military leaders had ousted Guido's predecessor, Arturo Frondizi, in March.

Mosk Outlines Narcotics Goals

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk said Saturday night he will introduce a 12-point federal-state program at the White House conference on narcotics this week.

Mosk proposed:

1—Federal government control of production of dangerous drugs; 2—Federal government laws against importation of dangerous drugs; 3—A federal program of post-treatment for persons released from government narcotics hospitals; 4 — Federal grants to states for treatment centers for addicts; 5 — United States-Mexico discussion of the drug problem; 6—Alliance for Progress assistance in converting Mexican marijuana and opium fields to food crops; 7—Increased federal research into drug addiction; 8—discussion by the White House conference of methods of education to prevent addiction; 9—establishment of a federal office to coordinate drug research and information; 10 — adoption of state laws permitting search of vehicles when there is reasonable cause to believe they are being used in a crime; 11—increased penalties for misuse of dangerous drugs; 12—state laws making drug addiction a disease requiring compulsory treatment.

in the GOP since then, Hall said his party affiliation hasn't affected political cooperation on either side of the fence.

"Senator Richard Richards and U.S. Senator Clair Engle, both Democrats, have been of inestimable help as has Rep. Craig Hosmer, a Republican. The federal administration and both houses of congress are Democratic and they gave the fair the finest cooperation and quick endorsement."

HALL HAS HAD some trouble overcoming the label of an outsider.

"I'm no stranger in these parts as a lot of people believe. My first job out of USC was at Douglas and my first home after my marriage was in Seal Beach.

"I was living in the Long Beach YMCA the night of the big bombing scare." He and his wife, Leadell, have a home on the peninsula.

He said the idea of a world's fair in Southern California "has been kicked around for 15 years.

"A MAJOR EFFORT was made in 1959 and a presidential commission was appointed to investigate proposals from Southern California, Seattle and New York. Seattle and New York had sites and were at a greater point of development so they got the nod," Hall explained.

"Long Beach has been of unqualified importance to the success thus far. Pier J, without a doubt, is the most fabulous site in the history of world's fairs.

"Finding it put us on the road and acquiring it assures use of a success way beyond our wildest expectations of the moment."

U.S. Fears Miscalculation by Khrushchev on Cuba

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Khrushchev has committed Soviet prestige to the defense of communism in Cuba so heavily that U.S. officials are becoming concerned over the grave danger of a serious miscalculation on his part.

The apprehension is similar to that felt among leaders of the Kennedy administration about Khrushchev's estimate of U. S. intentions in West Berlin.

• • • •

THE RISK of war, as measured by Washington officials, rests to a great extent of Khrushchev's judgment of how the United States will react to future threats and challenges.

In New York next week, Secretary of State Dean Rusk is expected to try to impress on cold war foes and allies alike that the United States is deeply upset, angry, even outraged about the buildup of Communist power backed by Soviet arms in Cuba.

Public reaction, Rusk is expected to tell other foreign ministers, must be considered as a major factor in this situation along with basic U.S. security.

The United States is trying hard to get its allies to desist from supplying ships for Red-bloc shipments to Cuba. It scored its first significant advance in this direction Friday when West Germany announced it would take steps to limit such employment of German-owned vessels.

• • • •

RUSK WILL lunch with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on Tuesday. They may meet again before Rusk's return here around next weekend for the Oct. 2-3 conference on Cuba of the Organization of American States.

Some U.S. officials hope Rusk and Gromyko may be able to give a new boost to some aspect of disarmament negotiations.

The Rusk-Gromyko sessions could bring some further intimation of interest by Khrushchev in visiting the United States to attend the U.N. General Assembly sessions and have a talk with President Kennedy near the end of the year. Khrushchev recently has hinted to foreign visitors that he thinks it might be a good idea if Kennedy and he had a personal discussion.

Highly placed officials here say that if Khrushchev thinks he can get any concessions on Berlin out of a private talk with Kennedy he is badly mistaken. Rusk plans to try to make this clear to Gromyko, it is understood.

• • • •

UNDER present conditions, the belief in high quarters here is that a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting could be extremely risky because of the danger of direct and personal disagreement on such a highly explosive issue, between the two leaders of the great powers.

Russia Declared Lacking in Honesty on U.N. Principles

NEW YORK (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk said Saturday that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's speech before the United Nation's General Assembly Friday was proof that Russia has never really subscribed to U.N. principles.

Rusk flew to New York from Washington to attend the General Assembly and seek greater free world support for U.S. policies on Cuba and Berlin.

• • • •

GROMYKO warned in his U.N. speech that a U.S. attack on Cuba would mean war. It brought a quick rebuttal from Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who the day before had delivered a conciliatory speech proposing that the United States and Russia drop annual cold war exercises at the United Nations.

Rusk said Gromyko's speech was the "same sort of speech we've heard delivered by the Soviet delegates in the U.N. for 15 years."

"It is proof that the Soviet Union has never really joined the United Nations. It (Russia) has never committed itself to their (United Nations) principles," Rusk said.

• • • •

"WE ARE not trying to go along with that kind of world. They've got their own ideas about it.

"The ink was not dry on the U.N. charter before they started their aggressive practices in Iran, Greece and Turkey.

"The great problem today is the same one we've had since 1945—does the Soviet Union prefer to live in peace with the rest of the world?"

Rusk plans to meet Gromyko on Tuesday and is expected to caution against "miscalculation" of Western determination to fight if necessary for Berlin and to warn Moscow against going too far in Cuba.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk says the possibility of Communist China becoming a nuclear power may encourage Soviet Russia to join in a ban on nuclear tests.

Rusk offered this suggestion in testimony made public Saturday by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of a watchdog Senate defense group studying U.S. policies on disarmament and arms control proposals.

Such a possibility has been suggested before by U.S. arms negotiators and other U.S. officials but thus far it has not been reflected in the Russian attitude.

"Communist China could achieve the capability to produce nuclear weapons within a relatively short period," Rusk testified, and then added:

"China's achievement of such a capability might well make her even more irresponsible and expansionist-minded than she is now."

College Official Ordered to 2nd Contempt Hearing

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —The U. S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals ordered three top University of Mississippi officials Saturday to appear at a contempt hearing here Monday—along with the State College Board—in the James H. Meredith desegregation case.

The appeals court acted after the U. S. Justice Department and attorneys for the 29-year-old Negro filed separate petitions asking that the three officials also be made parties to the hearing — ordered after Meredith was denied admission to the white school.

The board's contempt hearing had been set before the acquittal of the three officials late Friday in Federal Court in Meridian, Miss.

U. S. District Judge Sidney Mize held that the State College Board had sole power to enforce the court's order.

Estes Assets Go to Mystery Man

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Creditors sold promoter Billie Sol Estes' assets Saturday for $5.8 million, plus $1.2 million in interest. It was a sharp decline from the $150 million his friends once considered his worth.

The purchaser is a mystery man in Texas finance, Morris D. Jaffe, 40, of San Antonio, who skyrocketed to become a major financial figure after World War II.

No one in authority has been able to say exactly what Estes' assets are worth, particularly since so many intangibles are involved—such as the government's stated reluctance to store surplus grain again in the former Estes elevators.

• • • •

FEDERAL bankruptcy referee J. C. Brooke said the sale is effective immediately.

It was approved by the El Paso federal court on recommendation of the Estes creditors committee.

The committee turned town an offer by E. J. Gray of Baytown, Tex., to purchase the assets for $6.6 million principal.

James F. Hulse, El Paso attorney who is chairman of the creditors committee, said Gray's offer was declined because Gray had no commodity credit license for grain storage and that he had submitted no financial statement to the committee.

• • • •

BROOK'S order approving the sale included all of the assets in Estes brothers in which Bobby Frank Estes had claimed one-eighth interest.

At the time Eestes went into receivership in April, Estes brothers was claimed to have assets of $20 million.

Estes' widespread empire of grain storage, fertilizer sales, and cotton growing collapsed last March 27 when he was arrested on federal charges of fraud. The government said he sold millions in fertilizer tank mortgages when the tanks never existed.

Estes is scheduled to go on trial Monday in Tyler, Tex., on state charges of theft, swindling and embezzlement in connection with the tank mortgages. He is under indictment in another state case and two federal cases.

Buck Sheep Kills Woman in Pasture

WAPELLO, Iowa (AP)—An elderly woman was trampled to death by a buck sheep Saturday in the pasture of her small farm on the outskirts of Wapello.

The victim, Mrs. Myrtle Odle, Sr., 68, and her sister, Mrs. Loren Havenhill, were crossing the pasture to go fishing in the Iowa River a short distance from the farm when the animal charged into them from the rear.

The sheep was one of a score owned by Mrs. Odle and her husband, Robert, and had been grazing in the pasture separating the farm from the river.

It butted into both women without warning and knocked them down. Mrs. Havenhill, who was carrying an ax, tried to beat the animal off without success.

Nixon Raps Brown on University Reds

CARLSBAD (AP)—Richard M. Nixon said Saturday that Gov. Brown has displayed "incredible ignorance" about subversives speaking on state university campuses.

In a speech at a north San Diego County Nixon Committee rally, the Republican gubernatorial candidate said Brown has reversed himself on the issue.

He then proposed his own two-part program for banning subversives from tax-supported schools.

Brown replied that Nixon's remarks were an attack "not on me but on one of the great universities of the world."

• • • •

NIXON SAID that on March 21, 1961, Brown, when asked about the scheduled campus appearance of Frank Wilkinson, replied: "Well, my view of Mr. Wilkinson and anybody of that nature is that he should be permitted to speak."

Nixon said Wilkinson had refused to answer questions of a congressional committee and has been identified as a Communist.

Nixon then told his audience that Brown said on Sept. 19, "I don't believe we should permit any subversives to speak on our campuses."

• • • •

HOWEVER, said Nixon, the true issue is the determination of who is a subversive.

Nixon said he would deny the use of tax-supported schools for speeches by any individual who pleads the Fifth Amendment and by anyone who defies the provisions of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1951.

The former vice president continued:

"This is the record of my opponent's incredible ignorance on what has been going on.

"On Sept. 19, 1962, he stated, 'There hasn't been a Communist speaker on a university campus in the four years I have been governor.'"

• • • •

BUT, SAID Nixon: "During his four years in office, there have been eight speakers on state-run campuses who have refused to answer questions about subversive activities before legally constituted legislative investigating committees."

Nixon identified the speakers as Anne Braden, Archie Brown, Harry Bridges, Frank Pestana, Frank Wilkinson, John Howard Lawson, Maud Russell and Clinton E. Jencks.

"Under my programs, these eight individuals would have been barred from speaking on the campuses of our state colleges and universities. And I believe this is the action that the people of California want from their governor," Nixon said.

Brown aides released this reply from the Democratic governor:

"Richard Nixon's attack is not on me but on one of the great universities of the world, which for 10 years has had regulations forbidding known Communists from speaking on its campuses.

• • • •

"LAST WEEK, he announced that he is prepared to dictate courses and censor text books for local school districts.

"Now he would take control of the university from its Board of Regents, whose members are leading citizens of this state, who have been appointed by four different governors over a period of many years.

"I stand by what the regents have done and what I have said and I support the way the university is handling this problem under the able direction of President Clark Kerr."

Boston Financier Dies in Resort

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Ira Hamilburg, 64, a Boston financier, was discovered in his hotel suite Saturday, apparently the victim of a fatal heart attack or stroke.

Nixon Said Ripe for 'a Lesson'

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Brown said Saturday night his gubernatorial opponent, Richard Nixon will "get his final lesson in how things are in California" on election day, Nov. 6.

Brown, speaking at a barbeque in his honor, said Nixon will learn that the state "wants a governor who is more interested in agriculture than Afghanistan, . . who cares more about Kern County than Katanga."

The governor said Nixon "will find out they do not want a governor whose main concern is staying alive politically long enough to run for president."

• • • •

BROWN accused Nixon of not being specific in his campaign issues, and called this a "fatal mistake."

He added that Nixon wants to cut taxes, and challenged the former vice president to pinpoint how he could cut them.

Speaking of his administration, Brown said he "made the people a series of promises," in 1958, when he first ran for the governorship.

The governor said his administration had kept all these pledges. He pointed particularly to the field of education, agriculture and water development.

Earlier Saturday, Gov. Brown spoke before the Allied Senior Citizens Clubs of California at San Francisco's Marine Junior High School.

Later in the day, he opened a new headquarters in San Francisco's Chinatown.

3 Church Arsonists Sentenced

COLQUITT, Ga. (AP)—Three white men were sentenced to seven years in prison Saturday for burning a Negro church near Dawson, Ga., last Monday.

Superior Court Judge Walter Geer imposed the sentences on Marvin Allen Milner, 31; Glenn Roland, 55, and his son, Melvin Roland, 22, all of the Dawson area.

The three pleaded guilty Thursday to burning the High Hope Baptist Church.

They told the FBI agents they were drinking beer and decided to set fire to the 75-year-old frame church. It burned in the predawn hours Monday and federal agents arrested the three men and a 16-year-old youth a short time later.

Then teen-ager, whose name is withheld under state law, will go before Geer, also juvenile court judge, here next Saturday.

Lakewood Dad, Son Still Missing

An aerial search was to resume at dawn today for an anguished Lakewood engineer and his 14-year-old mentally retarded son who disappeared three days ago after taking off from Compton airport in a light plane.

Sheriff's deputies said no solid evidence has been turned up to indicate in which direction Donald E. Roark, 40, flew with his son, Dale, described by a relative as potentially violent.

Roark's plane carried three hours gas supply when he took off at 3:30 p.m. Thursday for an unknown destination. That would allow him a 300 mile radius, deputies said, unless he refueled.

• • • •

THE search late Saturday turned to the northern area of Los Angeles county. Two sheriff's helicopters and a plane searched the area between San Fernando and Mt. Wilson after a report the plane might have headed for Lancaster or Palmdale.

Deputies feared the plane was down in the mountains or the sea.

One of Roark's friends told the Sheriff's office the father had indicated he might fly toward Palmdale or Lancaster just before taking off.

Deputies said Roark, of 5002¾ Hayter Ave., was extremely upset at his inability to enter his son in UCLA Medical Center.

"Anything," a deputy said, "could have happened. Anything is possible. It's like looking for a needle in a haystack."

Mrs. Juanita Bentley, Roark's mother, said she was afraid the boy might have become violent. "He is very strong," she said.

Roark abruptly walked out of his house with the boy after learning the medical clinic would not accept his son.

He filed no flight plan at the airport — indicating he was planning a local flight. The plane was equipped with a radio and night flying instruments.

M. R. McIntosh, 5006 N. Bellflower, who worked with Roark at North American Aviation in Downey, said Roark told him Wednesday he planned to have the boy examined at a Palmdale institution for the mentally retarded.

• • • •

ROARK rented the blue and white Tri-Champ at Compton from Harry Aberle, owner of a plane rental agency. Aberle said Roark has a commercial pilot's license with a flight instructor's rating. He described the missing man as a "good pilot."

Mrs. Donna Roark, the boy's mother, lives at, 16019 Atkinson Ave., Gardena with the Roark's only other child, a daughter. The Roarks have been separated for more than a year.

Wild Black Bear Takes the Wheel

SPOKANE (AP)—Can you imagine hearing a beep on the horn and finding a wild black bear seated behind the steering wheeel of your car?

That's what salesman John F. Swan, who lives in the Spokane Valley, said he discovered when he returned to his car near Newport, Wash. Swan said that when he went out to investigate the sound of the car horn, he found a 140-pound bear sitting comfortably behind the wheel.

The animal had apparently been attracted by the smell of candy inside the car and climbed in through an open window, he said.

Mrs. Ted Schwab, at whose farm home Swan had been talking insurance, used apples to lure the bear from the car and the animal ambled off without further incident, he said.

Mrs. Schwab told Swan that the bear had been living in the area since spring and was often seen near the farm house.

SMU Given Priceless Rare Books Collection

DALLAS, Tex (AP)—Southern Methodist University has been given 206 books printed before the year 1500.

The rare collection was given to the Perkins School of Theology by J. S. Bridwell, Wichita Falls rancher and Frank V. De Bellis retired San Francisco businessman who assembled the collection.

University officials gave no estimate of the collection's value other than to say it was priceless.

Eighty-three of the books are first printings.

One book, St. Augustine's "City Of God," was printed in 1467, just 14 years after printing with movable type was introduced by Gutenberg.

Latin Troubles in Rome

ROME (AP) — Schoolboys of the world, take heart. Even the Romans are having trouble with Latin.

Debate raged in the Senate over whether to continue Latin as compulsory in the middle grades (6th through 8th).

The school system branches into two parts in the middle grades. One leads to higher education and includes Latin. The other prepares for technical labor with no further education after eighth grade. It omits Latin.

Italian communists want Latin dropped; they want everyone to get the same education. Rightist senators insist that Latin be kept

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Argentine heavyweight Alejandro Lavorante, struggling for his life after an emergency brain operation, underwent an emergency tracheotomy Saturday night at California Hospital.

LAVORANTE

Neurosurgeon Dr. J. Dewitt Fox, who performed the brain surgery on the handsome boxer, said the tracheotomy had to be done immediately "or we'll be in trouble." He said that the 25-year-old Lavorante, although still in a coma, "has a slightly better chance of survival now than this morning." The neurosurgeon made the statement just before the tracheotomy.

Lavorante, who came to this country two years ago touted as a future heavyweight champion, has not regained consciousness since being knocked out by Johnny Riggins of San Francisco Friday night in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout.

Pneumonia Is Defied by Rugged Nudists

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (UP) — On the Saturday eve of their annual meeting, Britain's nudists revealed some facts on the shivering summer of 1962.

"I can't remember a worse summer for nudists," said Frank Mitchell, vice chairman of the Federation of British Sun Clubs, "It's really been tough."

An interesting sidelight, he said, is that "somehow women sunbathers seem to stand the cold better than the men. We don't know why this is, but it's true."

• • • •

SOME PLACES in Britain have had the coldest summer in 50 years. For the first time since 1931, London's official August temperature failed to reach the 80's.

Dr. Charles Mackaskie, proprietor of a private recreation ground for nudists at St. Albans, said:

"It's been pretty chilly, but the hardier ones get out even when it's 60 degrees. At 70 degrees, everybody's out with their clothes off."

He too had an observation:

"Sitting on concrete helps. It seems to hold the heat."

Mrs. Katharine Hemmingway, secretary of the Devon Sun Club said:

"When it's real cold, as it's been this summer, playing tennis or badminton helps—in the nude, of course."

Mrs. Dorothy Thornton, of the British Sunbathing Association, comes from cold, windswept Yorkshire.

"YES," she said, "it's been cold and wet this summer. But we go out even when its raining. We take off our clothes and get our bodies wet. Afterwards, you take a cold shower and rub down and you feel fine."

Britain has about 100,000 apostles of the shed-your-shirt-and-chemise cult. Their annual meeting takes place this week end.

The delegates wear clothes.

Long Issue List Before Bankers

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UPI)—The American Bankers Association, the nation's largest organization of bankers, will have a long list of controversial topics to mull over at its three-day annual convention this week.

The subjects include discontent over dual state-federal control of mergers, fierce competition for savings dollars, federal tax "justice," pressure on bank profits, concern over current savings interest rates, restrictions on branch banking and recommendations that lending and reserve rules for commercial banks be broadly liberalized.

GHOST TOWN
This is a street in the abandoned mining town of Bodie in Northern California. California Park officials plan to spend almost $300,000 to preserve its present state of disrepair so tourists can see what a ghost town looks like.

PRESERVE STATE OF DISINTEGRATION

Officials to Spend $300,000 to Keep Bodie a Ghost Town

By BILL BOYARSKY

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California park officials, who hate to part with souvenirs of gold rush days, told Saturday how they plan to spend almost $300,000 to keep a ramshackle ghost town in "an arrested state of disintegration."

And instead of ducking behind their desks in the face of a taxpayers' revolt, they fully expect to receive the thanks of a happy motoring public for preserving a unique tourist attraction.

The town is Bodie, an abandoned mining center lying asleep on a gravel road in high, hilly country roughly between the Nevada border and Yosemite National Park, 8,375 feet above sea level.

MORE THAN 10,000 lived there in 1876 when it was the sinning "City in the Sky," the wildest mining camp in the West.

But there's no longer any money in gold mining and the roistering population has dwindled to one—State Park Ranger Jack Evans who says a stream of tourists and wandering herds of cattle keep him from getting lonesome.

He patrols the few buildings that survived the fires of 1892 and 1932 and keeps youngsters away from the silent mine shafts from which $80 million in gold was taken.

THE DIVISION of Beaches and Parks will spend $160,000 for the property, $110,620 for park development and $26,820 for rangers—but isn't going to change a thing.

"The key to preservation and interpretation of Bodie is a simple one—it should remain entirely a ghost town with no attempt to revive its population and its only permanent residents being those necessary for protection and operation," a division spokesman said.

"Leaning buildings, broken windows, sagging rooms are all assets."

Or, as another official put it, the state aims to present an appearance of "genteel shabbiness."

LOCAL NEWS BRIEFS

Pastry Sale Aids Navy Rent Protest

"Operation Pastries for Protest," third phase in "Task Force Cabrillo's" continuing campaign against higher rentals in local Navy housing, was carried out Saturday.

Women from the Cabrillo area offered baked goods at a nearby market to raise money to pay for telegrams and long distance phone calls protesting possible rent increases, spokesman Phyllis A. Duffy said.

A protest written on an unwinding sheaf of shelf paper now contains 730 names, she said, and will be sent today to President Kennedy.

Phase One of the operation, which began Tuesday, was drafting of the protest document. Secondly, the women "invaded" Portsmouth Project in search of additional signatures.

They roundly oppose a projected rental increase in the public housing areas that will, they say, more than eat up a possible increase next year in the Navy's basic allowance for enlisted men's quarters.

Banquet Set for Retiring Assemblyman

Friends of Assemblyman William S. Grant, soon to retire after 14 years in the California Legislature, will gather Tuesday, Oct. 2, for a dinner in his honor, it was announced Saturday by event co-chairmen Dr. Frank E. Stanton and Robert L. Irvin.

The Chamber of Commerce-sponsored affair will begin with a no-host reception at 6:30 p.m. in the Breakers International Hotel, followed immediately by the banquet. Reservations are available through the Chamber office.

Flood-Control Projects Under Way

I.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Greater Long Beach is sharing more than $10.5 million out of nearly $55 million now being spent on Los Angeles County flood-control projects.

One is a $938,367 Alamitos Bay storm drain and pumping station. The other is a $943,390 contract on first units of the West and North Long Beach storm drain systems.

Included in the $55 million total are drains being built with funds from 1952 and 1958 storm drain bond issues. More than $400 million have been allocated for 324 projects, plus the district's regular flood-control construction.

Private contractors are building the flood control projects under supervision of district engineers.

ORAL IMMUNIZATION

Sabin Vaccine—What, How, When

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Thomas Kiddie, co-chairman for the forthcoming Sabin Oral Sundays immunization program, answers questions about the Sabin anti-polio vaccine.)

Q. Dr. Kiddie, what is the composition of the Sabin oral vaccine?

A. Three separate attenuated polio viruses, each immunizing against a different type of polio.

Q. And what do you mean by "attenuated" virus?

A. Weakened so it will produce immunity without producing illness.

Q. What are the advantages of Sabin vaccine over Salk anti-polio vaccine?

A. Sabin is given by mouth. There are no injections. Sabin vaccine produces longer immunity and higher level immunity. It also breaks the chain of infection by preventing carriers of the disease. Salk vaccine protects against paralyzing disease but does not insure against intestinal infection with the virus. Salk-immunized persons can still be carriers.

Q. Should persons previously innoculated with Salk vaccine also receive the Sabin live virus vaccine? If so, why?

A. Yes. Absolutely. As I mentioned before, digestive-tract carriers of polio can be eliminated by use of Sabin vaccine.

Q. Then even if you've had a recent Salk booster, you should get oral vaccine?

A. Yes. Sabin vaccine will boost the immunity level in those persons who have already received Salk vaccine.

Q. What is the dosage schedule of Sabin vaccine?

A. Three doses by mouth, about six weeks apar. A single dosage consists of two drops of vaccine on a sugar cube. You must receive a total of three doses to be immunized against all three types of polio.

Q. Why is a sugar cube used?

A. Ease of administration.

Q. Why wasn't Sabin vaccine offered earlier—during the summer months, for instance?

A. The summer months produce a big incidence of other digestive tract viruses. These may interfere with or block the development of immunity against polio.

Q. Why a mass immunization program?

A. It's an attempt to eradicate the disease.

Q. Does the Sabin vaccine have an unpleasant taste?

A. No. Some of the oral vaccines are practically tasteless. However, that to be used in the Sabin Oral Sundays program in the Long Beach area has a cherry flavor.

Q. Does eating or drinking just before or after innoculation interfere in any way with the effectiveness of the vaccine?

A. No.

Q. Is penicillin used in the preparation of the oral vaccine to be used in Long Beach?

No. However, the vaccine contains very minute quantities of streptomycin, nystatin and neomycin.

Q. Do these other antibiotics pose any allergy problem?

A. There have been no reports of adverse reactions.

Q. Are there any contra-indications whatsoever to taking the vaccine? What if you have a fever? Should you go ahead and seek the vaccine?

There are no known contra-indications to taking the vaccine. It might be wise, in case of a fever, to postpone taking the vaccine for a week. A mild cold is no contra-indication, though. And it's safe for pregnant women to take the vaccine.

Q. What about unpleasant side effects? Can reactions of any kind be expected from Sabin vaccine?

A. None has been reported.

Q. What if a youngster upchucks shortly after taking the vaccine? Will he have to take that particular dose of vaccine again?

A. Yes.

Q. Where would the new dose of vaccine be obtained?

A. From your family physician or at the City Health Department or an office of the County Health Department.

Q. How soon should the substitute dose be taken?

A. As soon as possible. But six weeks should elapse before the next type of vaccine is taken.

Q. What would happen if a youngster drank a whole bottle of Sabin oral vaccine?

A. No danger if this should happen.

Q. How young a child should receive the vaccine during the Sabin Oral Sundays program?

A. Three months.

Q. Should an elderly person take the vaccine, too?

A. Yes. Older persons can get polio and also can be carriers.

Q. Will booster doses be required? If so, how often?

A. We anticipate a much longer immunity than with the Salk vaccine. It's not known now, however, how long immunity will last.

Q. What is the charge for a dose of Sabin vaccine?

A. During the Sabin Oral Sundays program, because of massive volunteer help, a minimum donation of 25 cents is suggested for each innoculation.

Q. In other words, 25 cents for each person in the family, at each clinic visit?

A. Yes.

What major cities in the United States have already conducted mass immunization programs?

A. Portland, Cincinnati, Denver, Phoenix and Cleveland. The vaccine has been given in more than 15 states so far.

Q. Why is the vaccine called Sabin?

A. After Dr. Albert B. Sabin, professor of research pediatrics at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine. He developed the live, attenuated strain of polio viruses being used in the Long Beach vaccine.

Q. Have you ever seen an immunization program of this magnitude before?

A. This is the largest one in the United States to date.

Q. Where else besides Long Beach is the Sabin vaccine being offered on Sabin Oral Sundays?

A. In six counties—Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, Ventura, Imperial and San Diego.

Q. How long does it take a dose of Sabin oral vaccine to become effective in providing immunity?

A. Roughly four weeks for each type.

Q. Can a person contract polio as a result of taking the vaccine?

A. There is no record of attenuated virus having reverted to a virulent form.

Q. Why is it necessary to take the vaccine now? Polio is scarce hereabouts, isn't it?

A. Small outbreaks can occur. This happened in Pasadena recently. We have a chance now to eradicate the disease.

Q. What are the dates for Sabin Oral Sundays?

A. In all six counties they are the same: Oct. 21 and 28 for Type I vaccine, Dec. 2 and 9 for Type II. Type III will be given some time in February.

And the hours?

A. 11 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Survey Shows Driver-License Tests in Most States Don't Weed Out the Unfit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Imagine this: the driver of the car coming up fast behind you is a 15-year-old alcoholic who ought to have his eyes checked.

Scared? You should be.

It's not likely you'll be threatened by a driver with those deadly qualifications. But he is a composite of the type who COULD be licensed under varying laws in the 50 states.

• • • •

A REPORT by the Automotive Safety Foundation pinpoints state-to-state discrepancies in driver licensing and dubs it "a major problem of non-uniformity."

The minimum operating age in most states is 16. A few, according to the ASF, set the minimum at 15, 17 or 18. Many states also issue restricted licenses to 14-year-olds in "necessity" cases, such as driving to and from school or farm work.

All states would deny a license to a habitual drunkard or a dope addict. Yet, in most states, the ASF reports, "no controverted screening procedure seems to exist." The only sources for such information are health questions on the license application, it said.

An alcoholic or a drug addict isn't likely to admit it.

• • • •

VISION TESTS are mandatory in all states. But the report said that sight qualifications vary from 20/30 to 20/70. And some states don't give depth perception tests. Depth perception tells you how far away that car coming toward you is.

Complicating the licensing problem is the prospect that the widely-acclaimed teen-age driver training program may be running out of gas.

The ASF said the absence of stepped-up financing is to blame. That, plus the fact that only half the eligible high school students are taking driver training.

Not until three years ago did all states require some sort of driver examination.

DRIVERS motored over rutted roads in the 1900s, and the Model T popularized automobiling in 1909. Yet in 1932, says the ASF, you could still drive without a license in 27 states.

What early licenses were issued were primarily to identify drivers and raise revenue.

Today, according to many licensing officials, the license to drive remains basically the same—an identification card, handy for cashing a check or establishing a birth date, but of doubtful value in showing who is qualified to drive.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Cuba Crisis Gives JFK 2-Party Support

By HARRY SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States Senate last week gave President Kennedy fight-if-we-must authority in the Soviet-engineered Cuban crisis.

Though the declaration was purely advisory, it meant for Kennedy overwhelming bipartisan support in an explosive situation. The House was set to adopt the resolution next week.

At the moment the President was pursuing a containment policy aimed at keeping Russian-armed Cuban Premier Fidel Castro from exporting war to his neighbors. In effect, U.S. warplanes and ships were blockading Cuba to achieve this purpose though they will not interefere with the continuing flow of Soviet arms to Havana.

* * * *

SECRETARY of State Dean Rusk disclosed that Russia now has 4,200 military men in Cuba, is building 12 anti-aircraft missile sites, and may have armed Castro with MIG type jets. Between 65 and 75 Soviet ships have docked with military equipment.

The President still regards the arms buildup as "defensive." But he previously had warned Castro and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev that he was prepared to enforce the Monroe Doctrine against foreign penetration of this hemisphere at whatever cost. Rusk will renew the warning in concise terms when he meets with Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in New York this week.

The Senate declaration asserted that the United States would prevent, "by force of arms if necessary," the spread of communism from Cuba to her neighbors; creation or use of "an externally supported military capability" which endangers U.S. security; and work with the Organization of American States and "freedom-loving Cubans" toward self-determination for the Cuban people.

These were about the same words the President had used. And adequate U.S. powerwas on hand in the right places should it be needed.

In a speech at Philadelphia Thursday night, Kennedy declared "the Communists had already taken over Cuba" when he succeeded President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

* * * *

ON THE political front, Ted Kennedy, the President's 30-year-old brother, captured the Massachusetts Democratic senatorial nomination in a lop-sided victory over Edward J. McCormack, nephew of House Speaker John W. McCormack. The Republican winner was George Cabot Lodge, 35. The Lodge dynasty in Massachusetts is even older than the Kennedy one. The McCormacks closed ranks swiftly behind Ted. Predicting he would win the President's former Senate seat in November.

In New York, Republican overwhelmingly renominated Gov. Nelson A. Rocketfeller for a second term. The Democrats aimed for a big city vote by chosing Robert M. Morgenthau, son of the former secretary of the treasury, for governor, and a Negro, Edward R. Dudley, for attorney general. Morgenthau is Jewish. It was the first time a New York Negro had ever been nominated for high office. James B. Donovan, the attorney who negotiated the release of U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers in Russia, won the Democratic senatorial nomination and will oppose GOP Sen. Jacob K. Javits.

The President, addressed a $100-a-plate Democratic rally in Harrisburg, Pa., and pleaded election of more Democrats to Congress. It was his first major salvo in the fall campaign. He said a Democratic Congress would prevent a return to the "drift and deadlock" of the Eisenhower administration. The rally took in more than a million dollars.

* * * *

CONGRESS, pressing for early adjournment, gave Kennedy some smashing victories and equally smashing defeats.

On the credit side, the Senate passed his tariff-cutting foreign trade bill which will enable the United States to compete with the prospering European Common Market. The House already had passed a similar version.

Congress also sent to the White House the President's bill to buy United Nations bonds to keep the world peace organization from going bankrupt, plus a $200-million bill to expand and promote better housing for the elderly. But the House all but killed his $2.3-billion college-education-aid program and cut his $4.7-billion foreign aid bill by $1.1 billion.

The President, joined by former President Harry S. Truman, labeled the cut "a threat to free world security." He appealed to the Senate to salvage the whole program.

In a speech to the finance ministers of 80 non-Communist countries, Kennedy urged other nations to take up more of the burden of free world defense and economic aid. The major burden is shouldered by Americans. He said other countries should cooperate "on grounds of self-interest and common sense."

CHAIRMAN Glenn T. Seaborg of the Atomic Energy Commission, revealed that the United States is working on a nuclear space rocket that by 1970 could take two men on a round-trip to Mars.

The AEC said, meantime, that the U.S. nuclear bomb which created an intense radiation belt around the earth July 9 was triggered about 250 miles in space. It was part of a series of high-altitude tests over Johnston Island in the Pacific.

At the United Nations the United States renewed its challenge to Russia to stop nuclear testing and agree to disarmament under a U.N. inspection system. The Soviet Union continued firing tests in the arctic.

America's sixth Tiros hurricane-hunting satellite was orbited from Cape Canaveral. The new "weather eye" sent back extraordinarily clear pictures of the world's storm formations.

On the racial salient, the Department of Justice filed contempt of court citations against 13 members of the Mississippi State college board and three officials of the University of Mississippi for refusing to admit Negro James Meredith. The officals acted on orders of Gov. Ross Barnett who was armed with special powers provided by the state legislature.

Four-year-old Caroline Kennedy's White House kindergarten class was racially integrated when Avery Hatcher, 5-year-old son of Associate White House Press Secretary Andrew T. Hatcher, a Negro, was enrolled.

Features of Dam Tested In Miniature

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Key features of Aroville Dam are being built and tested in miniature.

Tests of the water outlet system for the power plant, a 600,000 kilowatt installation to be located underground in the abutment of the dam, have proved it will work, the state Department of Water Resources said.

Oroville Dam, on the Feather River, about five miles above the city of Oroville, will be 730 feet high. Its huge storage capacity—3½ million acre-feet of water—will be the heart of California's statewide water delivery system.

• • • •

THE MODEL, built to a scale of one inch to 55 inches, covers a 40-by-110-foot space in the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation's engineering laboratories in Denver. It includes the six tubes that will carry water from the power plant, the two outlet tunnels, and a section of the Feather River Canyon below the dam. The system was designed to feed four tubes into one tunnel and two into the other. The half-full tunnel is connected to the full one at the far end, and acts as a surge-suppressor tank.

• • • •

IF BOTH tunnels were full, the water pressure from forward and backward surges when the water is cut off might rip out the lining, or knock out the tailgates.

Minatures of other Oroville features are planned to test the controls for the intakes into the power plant, the spillway gates, and the chute into the river channel.

New Orleans D.A. Vows B-Girl End

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Every strip tease bar in New Orleans' colorful French Quarter will be closed by next spring in a crackdown on B-girls, Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison predicted.

The new district attorney said strip clubs on Bourbon and Canal Streets depend on B-girls for their profits. He said it must stop.

B-girls employed by the bars coerce customers to buy them drinks, usually tea disguised as liquor or champagne, and get a commission.

"Whether B-drinking is moral or immoral is not for me to decide . . ." Garrison said. "It happens that B-drinking is against the law.

He said night club owners had applied "economic pressures" in the past to prevent enforcement of laws against B-drinking.

"But this time, a mistake was made," he said. "An independent district attorney was elected.

He said that because of such clubs' dependence on B-drinking for profits, they would have to close or switch to jazz and other forms of entertainment.

Some of the clubs are thinking about switchingt heir programs. Others are "sweating it out."

French Quarter night clubs, with dozens of strip joints within about a two-block area of Bourbon Street, are the main after-dark tourist attraction in New Orleans.

Battlefield Land to Be U.S. Park

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP) — Secretary of The Interior Stewart L. Udall has accepted the gift of 264 acres of battlefield land as additions to the Gettysburg National Military Park.

The land, a 10-acre farm and a 162-acre farm, was purchased by the late W. Alton Jones, oil company executive and associate of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. It was presented to the government by Mrs. Jones.

The farms are immediately west of Seminary Ridge, adjoining the park's present western boundary, near where some of the bitterest fighting in the battle of Gettysburg took place in July 1863.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

World Market News Overshadows Domestic

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — International aspects of business overshadowed domestic developments last week.

Interest centered on tariff legislation and a discussion of the world's monetary problems in Washington.

The Senate passed President Kennedy's trade bill, which he called "a bold new instrument" for opening new markets for American industry and creating a link with the European Common Market.

Success of the bill was considered Kennedy's greatest legislative victory. While minor differences in Senate and House versions had to be reconciled, there was little doubt that they would get together easily.

The legislation provides:

—Authority for the President to cut tariffs by 50 per cent.

—Authority for the President to negotiate elimination of duties on certain items. (The United States and the Common Market account for 80 per cent of the world trade in these categories.)

—Government relief to industries and workers hurt by foreign competition.

—Authority for the President to raise tariffs or impose quotas against a nation or group of nations putting unreasonable restrictions on U.S. products.

The fiscal discussions took place at a meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, in which representatives of 82 nations participated.

Kennedy told the delegates that "speculation against the dollar is losing its allure." He added that no extreme or restrictive measures are needed to cope with remaining problems.

• • • •

THE PRESIDENT urged other prosperous free nations to undertake more of the burden of financing underdeveloped countries, and said the United States should not bear it alone.

Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon said at the meeting that the United States will continue to press its efforts to solve the dollar problem. He expressed confidence that success is near.

"We must maintain and improve the competitive position of our exports through price stability at home and aggressive selling abroad," Dillon said. "We must also continue to reduce the dollar flows associated with our defense effort overseas and with our widespread economic assistance programs."

• • • •

MEANWHILE, some good news on the U.S. balance of payments situation came from the Commerce Department. It reported the deficit in the second quarter was $220 million, compared with $450 million in the first quarter and a quarterly average of more than $600 million last year.

On the domestic front, new economic reports were balanced between good and bad.

The Census Bureau said new private housing starts in August were at an annual rate of 1,521,000, a gain of five per cent from the July rate and up 15 per cent from a year earlier. Housing starts are watched carefully by economists as an indication of future demand for building materials, furnishings and appliances.

New orders received by durable goods manufacturing plants in August fell three per cent from July, the Commerce Department reported. Factory sales totaling $16.3 billion were unchanged from July.

• • • •

CONSUMERS will be paying higher prices for some things next year. Brown Shoe Co. said it will raise prices about one per cent on its spring line because of higher material costs. J. P. Stevens & Co. raised prices of worsted wool fabrics an average of 7½ cents a yard and said the boost probably would be reflected in 1963 fall men's suits. Broom prices will go up next year because of a shortage of broom corn.

Automobile production soared again with an estimated 141,000 passenger cars coming off assembly lines, compared with 116,505 the week before. The carmakers are entering the 1963 model year with sales moving at a brisk pace and inventories of 1962 models lower than a year ago.

First Master Plan Proposed for Signal Hill

Independent-Press-Telegram
SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1962

TAKING ADVANTAGE of choice view lots on Signal Hill, home-builders are putting up modern dwellings alongside oil derricks, changing the face of the Hill proper which offers a panoramic view of Long Beach and the harbor below. Oil production has been dropping over the years, especially south of the fault (running on a diagonal line from Atlantic Avenue north of Spring Street to Pacific Coast Highway and Orizaba Avenue). To hasten construction of more homes and apartment houses on vacant land, the city is considering adoption of a master plan for orderly development. At present there is no R-1 zone, and apartment houses can go up next to single-family residences. Formal hearing on the Master Plan is scheduled for Oct. 8 before the Planning Commission.

Formal Hearing for Plan for City Without an R-1 Zone to Be Held Oct. 8 in Hill City Hall

By GEORGE ERES

Signal Hill's Planning Commission next month is scheduled to hold the first of two formal hearings on a Master Plan for development of the city.

The plan, developed by the firm of Eisner-Stewart and Associates of South Pasadena, is the first attempt to give some planned direction to the 2.1-square-mile city that has been called an "incorporated oil field." The hearing will be at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 in the Hill council chamber.

In its heyday, around 1924 when it was incorporated, the city's chief interest was oil—except for periodic embroilment in recall movements and gambling issue fights.

* * * *

IN 1923 there were 1,806 people in the community—and almost as many oil wells—about 1,700 of them pumping merrily away to the tune of 259,000 barrels a day.

With the oil coming in, Signal Hill was not too concerned with the population boom going on in the surrounding area. The Hill's population today is 4,700. But what is of concern is the fact that oil production now is only 12,000 barrels a day from 1,000 wells, according to oil firm spokesmen (City Administrator Fred Baxter says city records show there are only 850 producing wells in the city).

* * * *

THE HANCOCK OIL refinery fire and the decision of owners not to rebuild the plant that was assessed at $1,000,000 brought to the front the problem of need for new revenue.

Signal Hill, based on oil production, had little to offer in the way of producing new revenue. Taxes were hiked 12 cents (to 89 cents per $100 assessed valuation); a monthly rubbish fee is proposed and a 3-cent-per-barrel tax on oil was given first reading by the City Council. Second and final reading, set for last Tuesday, was put off to Oct. 2 at the request of oil companies.

* * * *

BUT if oil is not producing the revenue it once did, oil is still the key to development of Signal Hill.

Lyle Stewart, of the planning firm, points out that oil companies control 70 per cent of the land in Signal Hill and that 43 per cent of this land is not in use today.

"The crux of the matter in future development is getting release of this unused land," he said.

"It's practically impossible to get a loan for home construction in Signal Hill," said Stewart, because of the outmoded zoning.

"For example, there is no R-1 residential dwelling zone in the city."

The Master Plan proposes to set aside the slopes of the hill as an R-1 zone. Top of the hill would be zoned for high-rise apartments and a three-acre view park.

* * * *

THE PLAN sees a population of about 25,000 in about 10,000 dwelling units of all types, as compared with the present 1,902 units.

MANSIONS SUCH AS this dotted the hill in Signal Hill prior to the oil boom in the 1920s. Brick walls still may be seen on the hill, all that remains of some of the structures that were moved out to make way for drilling. The structure above, on 23rd Street, was taken over by the Shell Oil Co. for office space during the boom. It is not used today.

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

IT WAS a solemn occasion in municipal court at Compton last Thursday. Judge Ralph Dills was on the bench, with an assortment of lawyers and defendants spread out before him.

The good judge was explaining to the defendants, who were about to be arraigned, their Constitutional rights. He went carefully into the matter as is his wont.

A bailiff walked up to the bench and handed the judge a piece of paper.

"It is my pleasure," said Judge Dills, "to announce that the Dodgers have just won, 5 to 0, and that Maury Wills got another stolen base.

"Now, as to your constitutional rights. . . ."

THE STORY goes that a local man and his dentist sometimes play in the same little game of poker — a friendly, non-commercial pastime for them.

Last week, the patient told the dentist he'd have to come in in a few days and have a tooth extracted. "It's so loose, I'm afraid to sneeze," he said.

"Fine," said the dentist. "Your fee will give me a nice little stake for the next game."

Came the night of the game, and the patient exhibited a mouth with a hole in the choppers. "It fell out by itself," he said.

The dentist put up a great howl about losing the fee. Then they sat down at the table. And when the game broke up the patient not only had saved the fee money, but had pocketed a neat sum of winnings to which the dentist was the main contributor. Those professional men have a hard life.

ONE of my readers, noting some growling here about beer can throwers, reports an experience he says cured him of the practice. Home on leave from Fort Ord, he paused at a red light on Long Beach Blvd. and tossed an empty beer can from his car window.

Came the siren, the citation, a visit t ocourt and a fine of $23.

If the public coffers had $23 from each of the beer cans tossed here in a week, we could quit worrying about tax increases.

AND Duke Sims reports an effective anti-litter scheme that he says works at the Douglas plant here.

Paper cups used at lunch time out there have a printing on them that reads: "Be a neatnik. Put this in a wastebasket."

If it works on cups, how about something like that on cans?

THE destructive whims of some youngsters are well known, but hard to understand.

More than a dozen of the upholstered seats at the new Long Beach Arena have been repaired already.

They were slashed, the slash marks making a big X right across the face of the seat, by youngsters attending the recent beauty pageant.

DRIFTWOOD — Some 345 riflemen "sighted in" their guns for the deer season, using facilities at the Long Beach Police Pistol Range on invitation relayed through this dept. . . Strange method of pushing milk bowl ticket sales is reported by a parent of a youngster attending DeMille Jr. High. He says kids who bought milk bowl tickets were spared home work, non-buyers were given plenty of it. . . Bay Area's Los Angeles haters are aghast at a sign Oakland has placed at Telegraph and Grand in that city. It reads: "Grand Avenue — Oakland's Wilshire Blvd."

Civic Center Library Backers Seek New Vote

By GEORGE WEEKS

Backers of a new Main Library in the Civic Center are aiming for another vote next year—probably at one of the regular municipal elections in May or June — on a bond proposition that won a 58 per cent majority at the Feb. 27 election this year.

The New Main Library Committee has so indicated in releasing a site study supporting a Civic Center location.

One factor in the timing will be the results of the city's Recreation Park oil development project, according to Don G. Gill, co-chairman of the committee.

* * * *

DRILLING in the park is expected to reach a point by the end of this year to reveal whether substantial income may be expected for the Bond Redemption and Interest Fund.

Preparation of the drill site is now under way. Leonard Brock, city oil administrator, said drilling will be started within a few weeks.

However, the library group is not linking its campaign entirely with the oil development.

* * * *

GILL SAID the committee will "take a look at all the conditions early next year" before deciding whether to seek a '63 vote or wait possibly another year.

The proposed $5,750,000 library bond issue attracted 33,755 "yes" votes against a "no" tally of 24,349 at the February election, short of a two-thirds majority with most of the city's electorate absent from the polls.

One argument against the measure was that the library ought to be relocated somewhere else rather than the Cedar Avenue site northwest of the existing building.

* * * *

FOR THIS reason the committee, still active, recently arranged for a new review of sites by Miss Clara E. Breed, Harold L. Hamill and John D. Henderson. The three are librarians, respectively, of the San Diego City, Los Angeles City and Los Angeles County Libraries.

Some of the reivew board's findings:

The only area that could be recommended as convenient to all citizens of Long Beach is the central business district. None of the other business centers is convenient to all the people.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITS

World Trade Fair in May for Long Beach

A one man mission will leave Southern California Sunday on a global tour to sell Long Beach to the world.

Trade expert John Westland Jr, will travel 35,000 miles during a 32-day air trip to Europe, the mideast and Asia to recruit exhibitors for an International Trade Fair here next May 17-26.

Westland is promoting the event, one of three international trade fairs to be held in the U. S. during 1963. The show here will be held in the Long Beach Arena and is expected to attract 80,000 to 100,000 visitors.

DURING THE trip Westland, who worked on the last international trade show, the CalFair, held in Southern California in 1958, will visit 27 nations including the capitals of three "Iron Curtain" countries.

Much of the itinerary including stops at Belgrade, Warsaw and Prague was arranged by the U. S. Department of State.

Westland said talks with government foreign trade officials and business leaders have been arranged in each country.

HE SAID that government officials of four countries, Spain, Poland, England and Belgium, already have made tentative commitments to provide exhibits.

With him Westland will take a letter from Mayor Edwin Wade extending the city's hospitality to foreign nations.

Westland said his basic sales pitch will be built around the fact that Southern California is one of the nation's leading population centers with 9.5 million persons and that Southland ports and harbors service 11 western U. S. states with a population of 27 million. He is taking an elaborate brochure of facts and statistics about the area with him to drive home his point that the Long Beach-Los Angeles metropolitan area "is one of the world's truly great markets."

This trip, Westland said, will be followed up later by one to countries in North and South America.

Nov. 10 Target Date Set for Oil Drilling in Park

Not a single large tree will be sacrificed in the oil drilling program at Recreation Park, J. A. Campbell, official of the Herbell Drilling Co., said Saturday.

Campbell and his partner, Hugo H. Herder, oil drilling contractors, won the city's contract for Recreation Park oil development with a bid of 68 per cent of the net profits.

Workmen have built an access road to the drill site, north of Sevent Street, in the area of the park maintenance yard.

Cement foundations were poured last week.

* * * *

"WE EXPECT to have our sound-proof derrick assembled and in place by Oct. 10," Campbell said. "We have marked Nov. 10 as the tentative date for the start of drilling operations."

The city's contract calls for the start of drilling by Dec. 5 at the latest. The sound-proof rig will remain at the site until all wells have been drilled.

"I've had my eye on this field for a long time," Campbell declared, "and my partner and I decided almost at the last moment to enter a bid. We didn't think we could outbid the major oil companies."

* * * *

REGARDING the sound-proof plan of operation, Campbell said:

"We fully realize our responsibility to the community. The park is used by thousands of picnickers and sportsmen. There are beautiful homes nearby.

"We intend to follow procedures which already have proved eminently satisfactory under similar situations elsewhere."

True Debate Is Contest of Minds Not Personalities

AT THE START OF the political season, California voters were led to believe they would be treated to a series of full-dress television debates between Gov. Pat Brown and his challenger, former Vice President Richard Nixon.

What the public has witnessed, instead, is a debate at long range on the question of rules for debate, with each candidate making demands which he is fairly sure will not be accepted by the other.

Some people are beginning to doubt that either man really wants to confront the other in disputation before the merciless and probing eye of the TV camera.

WHETHER THEY WANT to or not, they have finally agreed to such a confrontation—before the annual meeting of newspaper editors and publishers in San Francisco, Monday, Oct. 1. Unfortunately, it will be one meeting, not a series, and it will be more like a double press conference than a debate. Each candidate will be allowed a 10-minute statement, there will be a 30-minute question-and-answer period (the editors and publishers asking the questions), and then each candidate will be given five minutes for a summation.

A full-fledged political debate, of course, would call for a series of meetings. Each would be a regulated discussion of a given proposition. The debaters would confine themselves generally to the question under consideration; they would avoid personalities, and they would not arraign motives.

In this sense, there will be no debate. And the antagonists probably wish there would be no TV debate in any other sense.

SOME OF THE REASONS for this reluctance are not frivolous. A TV "debate" can become a personality contest, with the advantage going to the best actor. A poor makeup job can turn a strong man into a weakling, make him look sick, or make him look like a thug. In the press-conference type of debate, the candidate may find the questioners posing leading questions, changing the subject, and preventing him from completing his points.

There were no TV cameras, no trick angles, no makeup men, no newsmen in the roles of prosecuting attorney, no coast-to-coast hookups when Lincoln debated Douglas, when Luther debated Eck, when Robert Young Hayne debated Daniel Webster. These were true forensic contests in which important ideas on vital issues were developed for public consideration. They revealed the minds of the men involved.

Unless there is a genuine effort to stage an intellectual discussion, regulated by the accepted rules of debate and pitting the candidates against one another rather than against the press, it is probably just as well that the great TV debate series of the 1962 gubernatorial campaign remain one of the unfulfilled political promises.

50-Mile 'Air Wall' Surrounds Cuba

By WASHINGTON BUREAU STAFF

WASHINGTON—A 50-mile "air wall" currently surrounds Cuba. It means that no planes, other than Cuban or Russian, may get within 50 miles of the Communist island without Cuban permission. Russian-built MIGs stand by to enforce the arbitrary barrier which has no basis in international law.

At a meeting between President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan of Great Britain in Palm Beach, Fla., recently, Macmillan joshingly told the President he would fly home to England by going directly over Cuba.

"If I do," said the Britisher, "the Cubans will shoot down my plane and then you'll have a perfect excuse to invade the island." Kennedy's reaction is not known, but it probably was a somewhat sickly smile.

NEW YORK'S millionaire Gov. Nelson Rockefeller recently met here with a group of Republican congressmen, some of whom are not his greatest fans. "I've heard it said that I'm not conservative enough," said Rockefeller disarmingly. "But I ask you, who in this room has more to conserve than I?"

• • • •

THE CONTINUING philosophy of the New Frontier remains a vision of either black or white. You are either with us all the way or against us, say the hard-nosed young men, and this apparently applies even to such a valuable ally of the Administration as Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Although he performed miracles with the Administration's tax, welfare and trade legislation, the New Frontier has not forgiven him for his opposition to the Medicare bill.

SEN. HUGH SCOTT (R., Pa.) complained in his newsletter this week that seven or eight Senators take up 50 per cent of the Senate's time through their habitual windiness. He refuses to name names, in accord with Senatorial custom, but lists are being drawn up by others. Wayne Morse of Oregon would head anybody's list with a score estimated at 15 per cent. Sen. Jacob Javits (R., N. Y.) is a solid entry, as is William Proxmire (D., Wis.). Sen. Strom Thurmond (D., S. C.) would have to be included, along with some other exponents of the filibuster. There is Sen. Albert Gore (D., Tenn.) to consider. Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) would make some lists although his speech production this year has been cut somewhat.

Candidate Considered Dead Revives Under Foes' Praise

HOUSER

Maybe the candidates who snake-hip out of debates have the best offense after all. Look what happened to Max Rafferty and Ralph Richardson. Notably alone among nominees who have shown the courage to engage in face-to-face encounter without submitting ground rules to the World Court, what did they get for their trouble? They got a new opponent!

Now the life of a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction is not all that carefree—that he can tolerate the gratuitous challenge of a third party in what seemed to be a two-man race. It's not a carefree life for the simple reason that neither Max nor Ralph got anything resembling a majority in the nine-man primary race last June 5.

You'll recall Richardson got about 22 per cent of the total vote cast; Rafferty 20 per cent. Now comes this 19 per center, Cecil D. Hardesty of San Diego, to say that he'll try a write-in campaign.

Now Hardesty may be just tonguing along with considerable cheek in his announcement. Or he may be dead serious. But it proves two things—his own good sense of humor and the risks of paying too much respect to a one-time opponent you think is safely out of combat.

THAT WAS the story of the Ralph and Max show. Max, in the Thursday debate, referred to Hardesty as "the best qualified school administrator in the (primary) race" and called himself a personal friend of Hardesty.

Hardesty's reaction: "Max laid it on so thick that Richardson figured he'd jump on the bandwagon too. I didn't think that those two were going to flat-out endorse me.

"With two endorsements like that, we'd just as well go on with it (a write-in campaign). It ought to be downhill from here on in."

What Max and Ralph were doing—and what Hardesty knew full well they were doing—was to try to attract the votes of those who gave Hardesty third place in the primary. His 646,000 votes would indeed be a prize in the November final.

EXCEPT FOR the inertia attaching to any write-in vote, Hardesty might indeed have a chance. There are several considerations which make his current madness quite foxy. For one thing, the seven opponents of Rafferty and Richardson in the primary rolled up 57 per cent of the total vote cast, so there is no precedent of mandate for either of the finalists.

Secondly, Hardesty would give a good, middle-road answer to hundreds of thousands of California moderates suspicious of the way the Raferty and Richardson candidacies have been polarized right and left, whether deserved or not. It is true that the right wingers are aligning behind Rafferty and the liberals behind Richardson.

MANY OF THE primary seekers of the nonpartisan state school post won't say so for publication but think that the office should be appointive rather than elective. They generally believe the state school board members should make the appointment rather than the governor. Their reasoning: As in the judicial contests, most voters don't have the slightest idea of which man is best qualified for the office and are likely to vote on name familiarity, reading a man's list of backers or some other coin-tossing rationale.

Given several hundred thousand dollars for his campaign, I'd gamble that Hardesty could drive his middle-road bandwagon down the center and leave the two, whose names made the ballot, stranded on either berm.

Hardesty might slogan: "Lean to the write!"

OAS Leadership Too Weak to Deal With Cuban Problem

WASHINGTON — A showdown over Cuba could not come at a worse time as far as the Organization of the American States is concerned.

As a result of weak leadership, it has become a namby-pamby conclave of Pan-American diplomats which, for the first time in history has allowed one member nation, Bolivia, voluntarily to drop out.

PEARSON

The weakness is due largely to the Secretary General, Jose A. Mora of Uruguay, whose specialty is sitting on the fence. In the days of the late Carlos Davila of Chile or Lleras Camargo, ex-president of Colombia, the OAS would have acted with vigor to prevent both the drop-out of Bolivia and the Communist penetration of Cuba.

But Secretary General Mora, who married a charming and wealthy woman, seems to have lost his initiative as a result of the strong personality of his wife. This personality was well advertised to the Latin-American world during the Buenos Aires conference some years ago when Ambassador Mora, taking an afternoon siesta, left word at the hotel desk that calls should be switched to his secretary's room.

During the siesta, Senora Mora phoned from Washington, was switched to the room of her husband's secretary. The ensuing conversation nearly burned up the radio waves between the two hemispheres and was listened to by all the radio hams of South America.

Diplomats who want to deride the secretary general of the OAS still quote his wife's irate admonition to the secretary: "Get out of my husband's room — you so-and-so!"

• • • •

DELAY AND procrastination inside the OAS were definitely responsible for the exit of Bolivia, and to some extent for the Cuban arms buildup.

It was on April 14 that Chile diverted part of the Lauca River away from Bolivia in order to irrigate its own Azapa Valley. This was in contradiction to all the principles of international water rights. The United States is careful to divide the waters of the Rio Grande with Mexico and to return all the water it uses from the Colorado back to the river before it flows into Mexico.

But when Bolivia appealed to the OAS, that organization passed a resolution May 24, asking for mediation, and when Chile refused, did nothing. After four months of delay, with Secretary Mora taking no further initiative, frustrated Bolivia pulled out of the OAS.

"The national animal of Bolivia is the llama," remarked Bolivian ambassador Victor Andrade to a friend. "It is a patient animal and will willingly carry a 50-pound load up the highest mountain. But if you load it too heavily, the llama simply sits down. And nobody under the sun can make that llama move until you take some of the weight off its back.

"Bolivia is like that. It has been imposed on too long."

Fed Up With U.S. Pussyfooting

EDITOR:

May I commend you particularly for all your recent editorials on the Cuban situation. Bravo for you. David Lawrence also has earned my deepest respect.

For several years now I have been deeply concerned about the terrible menace of communism and have tried, mostly through reading, to educate myself on this subject. It is extremely difficult for me to understand how our President can be so utterly and fantastically naive.

• • • •

I AM FED UP with our policies of pussyfooting, backing down, doing nothing, our seemingly guilt-ridden feelings that we are in the wrong and not the Communists. They have pointed out their scheme to conquer the whole world, have succeeded in enslaving millions of innocent people, and are well on the way to encircle the U. S. with the ultimate result: our country under Communist rule.

U. S. policy from now on should be a strong, offensive one. We are disgusted and appalled with the way things have been going and we DEMAND that the Monroe Doctrine be invoked.

Urges 'Clean Sweep' With Rafferty

EDITOR:

As a parent and taxpayer, I feel it is so important to get the right man in our State as Superintendent of Education. Many people will agree with me that the California school system needs a thorough cleaning out. We have fallen behind so many states in the most important thing—education.

Our State is first in so many things, we should be ashamed not to be among the top with our children's education. It is appalling what our children's time is wasted learning, while the taxpayers' money goes down the drain. We need more stress on academic subjects and less on the frills. There should be more competition in the buying of books, as this ultimately results in better books.

Max Rafferty is certainly a well qualified man to do this job. His record and his writings are proof enough. He guarantees things will improve. If changes and improvement are what we all want, there is certainly no question as to who is better qualified.

The fact that the California Teachers Assn. is backing the other candidate is proving only one thing. They have been against so many groups who wanted to improve or change things. They evidently like this easy road.

People can judge for themselves and will undoubtedly see that Rafferty is what we need in California. LET'S GET A CLEAN SWEEP!!!

U.S. Accepts Soviet Occupation of Cuba

WASHINGTON—It may seem trite in this age of "sophistication" to say that "actions speak louder than words," but that's about the only conclusion one can reach with respect to the resolution on Cuba just adopted by Congress.

LAWRENCE

Even if the American people can be persuaded to believe it is a strongly worded resolution, the Soviets can read English, too. For the resolution virtually accepts the Soviet occupation of Cuba and fails to recommend that the violation of the Monroe Doctrine, already committed by the Soviets by sending military forces to Cuba, be immediately challenged. It says instead that the United States will by military force prevent "the Marxist-Leninist regime in Cuba from extending by force or the threat of force its aggressive or subversive activities to any part of this hemisphere.

It may seem logical to call all persons "extremists" who believe in resoluteness when dealing with the Communists, but, unfortunately, history shows that appeasers and pacifists are too often the very people who bring on war with all its horrible consequences.

Anthony Eden witnessed—as a protesting bystander—the Munich crisis of 1938, when appeasement led to World War II. He happens to have written an article for the current issue of "Foreign Affairs Quarterly," in which he makes this comment:

"The consequences for the free nations of sponsoring a solution which is not itself just can be grave; a little present ease may be gained, but probably at the expense of greater trouble thereafter. In the history of the last 30 years it has not proved wise to seek to assuage excessive appetites by unjust concession."

• • • •

THE EVENTS of the past few weeks reveal that President Kenndy has yielded to the unwise counsel of his advisers and announced that to him a violation of the Monroe Doctrine means only a military offensive against any country in this hemisphere, and that he prefers to wait for such a contingency before taking any action. This means that he will not resist the Soviet encroachment that has already taken place in Cuba and is not prepared to undertake a naval blockade of Cuba—either alone or with other nations—or take steps of a military nature to assist the Cuban people to recover their government and their freedoms.

The appeasement psychology has been stimulated by the argument of expediency. It has been insisted that, after America entered two world wars and when this country established bases overseas afterwards, it gave up the Monroe Doctrine. This illusory argument is not borne out by the facts of history.

President Wilson, for instance, persuaded our allies of World War I to include in the Versailles peace treaty and in the League of Nations covenant itself a provision which specifically recognized the Monroe Doctrine as continuing. So does the United Nations charter validate "regional arrangements."

President Truman, in a speech on Navy Day, Oct. 27, 1945—just after World War II had ended—restated American foreign policy in a series of points. Among these were the following:

"We believe that all peoples who are prepared for self-government should be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own freely expressed choice, without interference from any foreign source. That is true in Europe, in Asia, in Africa, as well as in the Western Hemisphere.

"We believe that the sovereign states of the Western Hemisphere, without interference from outside the Western Hemisphere, must work together as good neighbors in the solution of their common problems."

This warning against "interference from outside the Western Hemisphere" is the essence of the Monroe Doctrine. For more than 135 years, the United States has pledged that it would consider any attempt on the part of European powers "to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety." The declaration adds:

"We could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them (Latin American countries), or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power in any other light than as the manisfestation of any unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

The latest congressional resolution, however, while taking note of the fact that the Communist system already has been extended to Cuba, doesn't denounce the Soviets. The United States is evidently pledged only to prevent extension of Communist operations to other Latin-American countries. This is an important concession to the Moscow government, which now can take over Cuba completely as a military base without risking any military retaliation from this country. In that sense, the main part of the Monroe Doctrine has been brushed aside.

• • • •

MOSCOW will regard all this as a retreat and, as happened with Hitler, successive retreats by the West could embolden the aggressor and bring on the war that the American people do not want but again may have to face—as England did when concession after concession was made to the Nazi dictatorship, and the enemy misconstrued temporary irresoluteness as an unwillingness to fight at all.

Languages in the News

By Charles F. Berlitz and Robert Strumpen-Darrie

Much has appeared in the press recently about Congressional filibusters. The word "filibuster" comes from the Dutch vruijbuiter, meaning "free plunderers," a reference to the days of mercenary soldiers. The word came into English through Dutch raids on the Spanish Main, being changed by the Spanish-speaking people into filibustero—and, instead of taking it directly from the Dutch, we adopted the Spanish version. Historically American "filibusters" were Americans, principally from Southern states, given to raiding Central America. Why the word became a synonym for a protracted monologue is unclear.

Other Senate expressions relating to filibustering include: cloture, Old French for "closing," and quorum, Latin for "of whom," relating to the number of members necessary for a vote.

"Caucus," a word often used in politics, comes from the Algonquin Indian word caucauasu—"tribal elder."

Name's Source

Rocky Mountain Indians of what now is Oregon periodically traveled into the high plateaus and rolling hills of the pine country and cut poles for their lodges or tepees. The tree they favored eventually was named lodgepole pine for this reason.

Women Regain Youthful Figure Without Rigid Diet Under Pat Walker's Stauffer System

Vivacious Pat Walker, who has helped thousands of Southland women to achieve their dreams of a brand new figure, is now directing a new program from her Long Beach Stauffer System Salon, 423 E. First St.

Nationally known as a figure authority, Miss Walker has operated salons here and over the Southland for years and is launching a vast new program. She is the national figure authority for the vast Stauffer system.

NO STARVATION

Women with problems are finding Miss Walker's figure control methods offering them a new way of life without suffering from effects of near starvation.

There is no secret to Miss Walker's success, for across the nation some 4 to 5 million women from ages 14 to 84 have been given a new figure and no secret could be maintained by that multitude of happy women.

The key to the success—or secret if you wish to call it that—is in losing where the loss is needed and in firming and toning the tissue to retain the new figure.

DIET WON'T DO IT

"Under a rigid diet program women will lose weight," says Miss Walker. "But they won't lose it in all the places they should.

"Perhaps the waistline may shrink from hunger but the bulging hips, large thighs, thick ankles and sway back remain after dieting.

"Under our system we accept each individual as a separate figure problem. We chart the course necessary and go to work. First there is a figure analysis. Then we provide the scientific treatments to give a woman the loss where she needs to lose and to tone and firm the muscles and improve circulation where needed.

SENSIBLY

"When we speed the circulation we increase the metabolism beyond the food intake. Therefore, there is no need for a starvation diet. Naturally any woman should eat sensibly, but she doesn't have to starve."

Miss Walker invites all women, no matter their age, to come in for a free trial treatment and figure analysis. At that time you will be told where you are going to lose, how long it will take, how many treatments you will need and exactly how much it will cost. We will answer personal questions without any charge or obligation.

You will find that each treatment is relaxing and restful and even if you have no weight or figure problem, the treatments are designed to relax and soothe the nerves of any woman whether she's a tired working girl, housewife or grandmother.

The salons feature privacy and the treatments are only $2. For further information you can reach Miss Walker at HE 2-2973.

Long Beach Woman Was Ashamed of Her Figure

Above, Miss Pat Walker measuring Mrs. Catherine Bevert. In seven weeks Mrs. Bevert has reduced 5½ inches from abdomen, 4 inches from waist, 4½ inches from hips, 4 inches from each thigh and 2½ inches from each arm and is still coming down.

Above, Mrs. Bevert, with husband, Norman, before she started treatments with Pat Walker's Stauffer System. In seven weeks she has reduced from 190 to 159 pounds.

"It's true! I'm over 30 and this is happening to me."

"My name is Catherine Bevert. I live in Long Beach at 728 Cherry Ave., and I'm proud to say I'm a patron of the Pat Walker's Stauffer System.

"About two months ago I saw an ad in the Press-Telegram showing what had happened to a lady who had taken treatments at Pat Walker's Stauffer System. It just sounded too good to be true but having fought figure problems for so very long I decided I had nothing to lose in going to talk with them. My husband was all for my going — after all he's like every man who admires a pretty figure. Well, anyway, I went to the phone and called them. The person I spoke with invited me to come for a courtesy treatment and a figure analysis. She told me at that time they would show me how pleasant it is to reduce with their method; that I did not have to disrobe and they would tell me how many treatments I would need, what it would cost and how long it would take.

"I made an appointment to go at night because I'm an office manager and work days. My husband drove me to see them. They did just what they said they would. I had a treatment and believe me it was so relaxing and pleasant that I was most impressed.

"That evening Miss Pat Walker was visiting the salon — she's the national figure control authority for the Stauffer System salons—and the manager introduced me to her and Miss Walker smiled at me and said it would be her pleasure to stay a little longer and give me a figure analysis personally.

"This impressed me because the way she said it I knew she meant it. She took the time to explain their program to me and everything she said made sense to me—enough so that I wanted to become a patron and I did.

"They have done what they said they would do and I'm so thrilled. The evening I read the ad about their system is one evening I'm glad I took the time to read the paper because now I'm looking forward to pretty, figure-flattering holiday clothes. I'm going to really celebrate the new year and with a new figure.

"I almost forgot to say that when I went in, seven weeks ago, I weighed 190 pounds. Last week I weighed 159. But what's really great is that I'm losing it where I need to lose it. I've lost 4 inches from my waist, 5½ inches in my tummy, 4½ inches in my hips and 4 inches each on my thighs, and 2½ inches from each arm.

"My husband says I'm looking younger and prettier by the day. I told Miss Walker I would like to tell other women how I feel about the results I'm having. She thanked me and said that would be very nice of me.

"So now you know how I feel and the best part is that I'm not even finished. It's nice when I pass a full length mirror not to want to shut my eyes.—Catherine Bevert.

Pat Walker Says:

Most women are happy to know that under our figure correction program there is no starvation diet.

* * *

Not only do we remove unwanted fat where needed, but we firm and tone the tissue so the body holds the new contour.

* * *

We consider each woman as an individual case for no two women have figure problems alike. Age is no barrier if a woman decides she wants to improve her figure.

* * *

A perfect figure is every woman's most valuable asset and every woman can have it with proper guidance.

We offer all women a free trial treatment and figure analysis and we will inform them how long it will take to make their figure corrections.

* * *

Women who have no figure problem find our treatments tone their bodies, relax them and soothe the nerves without creating a false appetite.

Nearly all women have a good figure in their youth. When their figure problems start they have a tendency to slump and poor posture creates problems in the abdomen, hips, thighs and other areas. Nature did not intend it that way.

* * *

The real joy of this business is to hear a woman say, "thank you" on her last treatment of her program. We have earned a good friend and producing results is the best endorsement for our system. This you cannot buy.

* * *

There is no excuse for figure problems today. In our grandmother's day, maybe yes, but not now.

Betty Jo Manning

Six Months Later, Same Girl

Not only did Betty Jo Manning lose 89 pounds and regain her figure with which she had been endowed, but she also gained a new personality just as Pat Walker and the Stauffer System had assured her would be the results of treatments.

Because she was overweight, Betty Jo had "let go" in pride of her appearance and self assurance. "I hated to leave the house because of my appearance," she said.

"After I slimmed down to natural weight I developed a new outlook on life. I started going places and doing things I had wanted to for years but just couldn't because of my appearance.

"I found that people liked me and best of all I liked myself after I had slimmed down to my natural weight."

ANYONE CAN DO IT

Any woman can reduce as quickly and easily as Betty Jo Manning, says Pat Walker, if she is given proper professional guidance.

"In our files we have many, many other picture stories from gracious women who are now enjoying a new way of life after shedding much weight and getting the tissue toned so the weight could not return," continued the national figure authority for the Stauffer System.

"We invite any woman with a figure problem to visit our new Long Beach salon at 423 E. First St., and let us personally analyze the problem. We will show them with a complimentary treatment how restful and relaxing they will find our methods as they shed the unwanted, extra weight from the places on their body that it should be lost.

"And, this new body contour can be provided them without suffering hunger of strict dieting.

"We recognize each woman has a personal problem and we consider each individual case as we outline a program of figure correction.

"For the low price of $2 a treatment, any woman can regain a new outlook on life as her body takes on the natural contour mother nature intended for her."

What Others Say About Their New Figures

Here are a few quotations from the hundreds of grateful letters received from women who have taken the Pat Walker's Stauffer System treatments:

"I lost 22 pounds and 34 inches overall. I lost where I needed to lose—including four inches from my waist, three inches from each thigh and six inches from my abdomen. My family says I look 10 years younger and my new figure has put me on top of the world." — Mrs. Ruth Rundlett.

"Life is so wonderful again," says Mrs. Grace Fundler. "For years my dress size was an unattractive 40. Today it is a trim 12. I lost 67 pounds without dieting . . . without exercise. It was easy. I owe everything to Miss Walker."

"In two months I reduced 19 pounds and trimmed 21 inches from my figure measurements. Aches and pains are gone and I feel wonderful."—Mrs. Jeanette Weinberg.

To those who are not bat buffs this item may be unimportant, but Dr. Morris was agog and in the mood to pass out cigars. The birth in captivity of such a bat is extremely rare.

Reserve Weekend Warrior

Elliot M. See Jr., recently chosen as one of nine new astronauts added to the nation's space team, is a "weekend warrior" at Los Alamitos, the Navy revealed Saturday.

See, a Navy reserve lieutenant commander, is one of two civilians chosen Sept 17 when nine men were added to the group of astronauts who will man space flights for which President Kennedy has set a goal of reaching the moon in this decade.

SEE

• • • •

THE NAVY SAID See is a member of Jet Attack Squadron 771 which trains once a month at Los Alamitos. His squadron flies Navy Skyhawk jet fighters.

The Navy said See joined the squadron in 1956, just after his release from active duty in the Navy. He has commuted from Lancaster for the monthly meetings.

The Navy said it does not know yet whether See will be allowed to continue in the reserve program on an active basis.

See and his wife, Marilyn, have two daughters, Sally, 6, and Carolyn, 5. Since 1949, except when on active duty with the Navy, he has been a test flight engineer for the General Electric Co.

Oil Company Official Gets Higher Post

HOUSTON (AP)—G. H. Hagle of Houston has been elected senior vice president of Continental Oil Co., L.F. McCollum, president, announced.

Hagle, formerly controller of Continental, will remain in Houston. Howard W. Blauvelt, Calgary, Can., will be transferred to Houston to succeed Hagle as controller.

A native of Stroud, Okla., Hagle studied accounting at Oklahoma State University, and is a graduate of the advanced management program of Harvard University School of Business.

He joined Continental's accounting staff in 1926. After serving in several key assignments, he left Continental in 1944 to become controller for an Ohio theater chain, but he returned to the company as a staff accountant in 1951 and was elected controller the following year.

Blauvelt has been senior vice president of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co., Ltd., an affiliate of Continental.

His Intentions Are Strictly Honor-able

KID AND HIS DOG

Greater Love Has No Lad Than This

STOCKTON (AP)—More than a week ago, the city dog catcher came to get Skipper, a springer spaniel, because he snipped two children.

The dog's master, Benjimin Juarez, 12, hurridly packed spare clothing, grabbed up Skipper and took off.

He had one dollar. This was Sept. 12.

Boy and dog worked their way south along U.S. Highway 99, walking and getting short rides in cars. At night, the pair cuddled together along the railroad tracks that paralled the highway, always making sure to keep out of sight.

• • • •

AFTER THE FIRST DAY the dollar was gone. They had no food. What water they got was obtained from service stations.

Benjiman stopped at houses, asking for food and water for Skipper. Each time, he said, he was turned down, even when he offered to do chores.

After reaching the outskirts of Visalia, 163 miles from home, tragedy struck.

Skipper left his master's side to hunt food. The boy went after him. Benjiman found Skipper in a nearby field dead, apparently from starvation.

Benjiman dug a grave with his bare hands and buried the dog he had owned since puppyhood. Their outing had lasted five days. A short time later, two sheriff's officers saw a dusty figure ambling along the road. They took the boy to Juvenile Hall.

• • • •

HIS PARENTS, the Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Juarez, came to Visalia to get their son. The first thing Benjiman said was: "Skipper is dead. The only reason I left is dead."

Back home, Benjiman is trying to overcome a broken heart. His father said: "He wants another dog. A police dog. Eventually we'll get another."

Japan Trades Hard Goods for Russ Oil

Needed desperately are volunteers to assist as Grey Ladies, in canteen service activities, or as motor service drivers, social welfare aides and hostesses for hospital events.

The Red Cross asks people to volunteer what time they can spare for these activities. Each can select her own days and hours of service and may also select the particular area of activity.

The program is open to those living in Signal Hill, Bellflower, Artesia and Paramount, in addition to Long Beach.

Oil Washes Ashore at Seal Beach

Globs of heavy fuel oil began washing up on Seal Beach and Sunset Beach late Saturday from a slick caused by 500 tons of fuel which flowed out of a hole in the tanker Martita.

The oil slick, which covered an area almost two miles long and a half mile wide, was drifting slowly toward the Orange County coastline.

• • • •

WORKMEN constructed a log barrier across the entrance of Alamitos Bay Friday night to block the slick's spread into the 600-foot wide channel. The barrier was opened Saturday to allow boats to leave the bay.

Another barrier was thrown across the entrance to Anaheim Bay at the Seal Beach Navy Weapons Depot.

The globs which washed ashore at Seal Beach didn't deter swimmers, and by late Saturday had caused no disruption in use of the beach.

Tax Rulings to Encourage Tool Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal revenue commissioner Mortimer M. Caplin assured machine tool builders that U.S. agents will apply the new depreciation guidelines in "a constructive and reasonable way" to encourage industrial modernization and expansion.

Caplin said 14,000 agents have been put through training programs since issuance of the liberalized and simplified tax depreciation rules in July. Addressing a meeting of the National Machine Tool Builders Association, Caplin appealed for a similar cooperative approach by industry.

"Exercise restraint — don't search for loopholes and gimmicks," the commissioner said.

Dinner to Honor Top Enlisted Men in Area

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Key is confidence. You can spread your influence. You gain from heeding advice of spiritual mentor. Let both sensitivity and aggressiveness come to fore.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Slight irritations should be accepted for what they are, not built into deep-seated resentments. Take time to meditate and day works out as valuable one for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Excellent for fulfilling desires, including pursuit of hobbies. Good, too, for short drives, picnics, contacts with persons who were close to you in past.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): More can be accomplished with heart-to-heart talk than might be imagined. In financial matters, put cards on table. State exactly what you want, need. Results are favorable.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22): High point in cycle means independence of thought, action stressed. No time to "hold back." Persons you meet at church, during social gathering, play important role in your future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): What you feel inwardly and the way you respond outwardly may be two different things. Be sure you are not fooling yourself. Don't let minor argument mature into major dispute.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Favorable lunar aspect today emphasizes fulfillment of wishes. Spiritual mentor could provide "missing key." You may be inconvenienced in performing task for friend. But you will be repaid—twofold.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Irritations can be overcome if you take care of tasks which have been allowed to "slide." Otherwise, you "snap" at those closest to you. Tonight very good for quiet meditation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Probe deep into reason for desires. You may find startling, yet constructive answers. Push for creative changes, ideas. Don't stand in "rut." Day can be turning point towards SUCCESS.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Excellent for being with family, for sharing hopes, ambitions. No time to shut out those who want to be close to you. Day could feature reawakening of tender feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): There discovering the beauty around you, including family members. Keep mind and heart open. You will be able to "see" friendships better.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Pressure resulting from recent actions begins to fade. You gain confidence by taking time to sum up present situation. Family provides cheer. Permit yourself relaxation.

* * * *

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are not an easy person to fool. But you do have a tendency to fool yourself. Often you permit others to "lean" on you.

* * * *

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle up for Cancer, Leo, Virgo. Emphasis today is on evaluating PAST so that greater progress can be made in future.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Retrograde Mercury means you should steer clear of legal complications. Evaluate decisions, actions. Refuse to give in to whims, either yours or those of loved ones.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Don't become irritated and play into hands of those who prefer to see you unhappy. Be calm. Maintain sense of humor. Much on your side. Be businesslike. Avoid emotionalism.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Minor setback in romance may eventually prove a boon. Main thing is that you learn from experience. Better day for finishing projects than for initiating action.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22): Be definite. Outline purpose, goals. Take shortest route to destination. Don't be sidetracked by persons who do not know the facts. Have confidency in your own judgment. STICK TO ORIGINAL DECISIONS.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22): Cycle is but you see what you want to see today. Good if you confine "vision" to entertainment. Do not invest time, money in illusions. Think, and plan ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Tremendous opportunity to "spread your wings." You can prove to associates that you are capable in many directions. No time to be wallflower. Show off abilities. Express opinions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Mercury retrograde emphasizes your unwillingness to come out of shell. Today you must shake off tendency to be overly modest. Speak up. Make an effort.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Make a "game" of challenge today. What at first appears a setback can be transformed into vital victory. If you have sense of humor and imagination you can win allies.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Question is how much you are willing to give. For there are those who are very willing to TAKE. Be practical in affairs of the heart. Otherwise, you are asking for a loss.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Friend out of the past reappears. You benefit from advice received. There may also be financial aid. Day to be grateful for what you possess and to make vow to eliminate harmful actions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Sudden awareness of responsibility means you are able to perceive what you really need, and what can be discarded. This applies to people and material possessions.

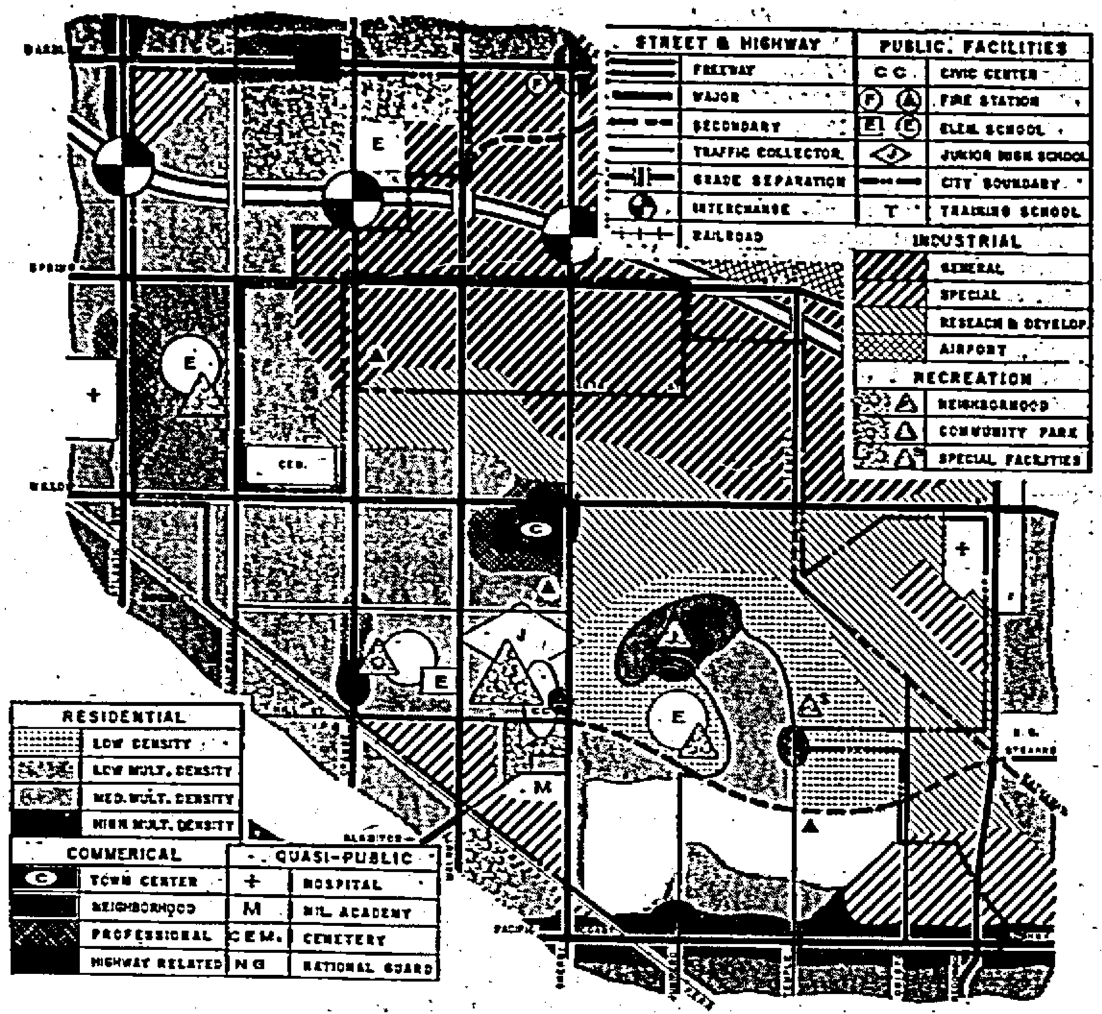
PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Put an end to expenditures which bring no return. Be practical rather than sentimental. Day when you should be willing to end associations which represent emotional drain.

* * * *

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you are capable of bringing together opposing forces and making them appreciate each other. Look for upswing in cycle, beginning October.

* * * *

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Ways are found for making opposing forces give in to majority view for harmony. But area features numerous "close calls."



PROPOSED MASTER PLAN for Signal Hill prepared by Eisner-Stewart and Associates aims at oil development without hampering ability of city to develop. Planners have mapped program for an approximately 25,000 population city with a varied base to generate taxes.

Propose Master Plan for Hill

central area in Signal Hill at present," said Stewart. "We propose the approximately 15-acre area in the vicinity of Willow Street and Cherry Avenue be zoned for this 'town center' site. It would allow business and professional structures, theaters and similar operations."

The area across from Long Beach Memorial Hospital on Atlantic Avenue, now sumps and tanks, would be zoned for professional usage.

* * * *

ASSUMING that the city will have a population of about 25,000, Stewart said areas are set aside for two more elementary schools: one south of the hill proper; one due east of L. B. Memorial Hospital in the area between Atlantic Avenue and California Avenue. More land will be needed for the existing Signal Hill Elementary School. A junior high school site is proposed for the vicinity of Burnett Avenue and Cherry.

The plan proposes establishment of parks adjacent to Signal Hill Elementary School and future schools. A park area already exists adjacent to Burroughs Elementary School.

* * * *

MAJOR proposals for streets call for extension of Hill Street from Cherry around the south side of the hill to join Stearns Street in the vicinity of Redondo Boulevard;

Extension of Hathaway, which dead-ends southeast of Temple, to Redondo at Stearns;

Extension of 28th Street to Orange. The street dead-ends at Gundry.

Three more fire stations are proposed to serve the developed city. Proposed sites are in the vicinity of 28th Street and Spring, 21st Street and Temple and the Cherry-Willow area.

* * * *

SIGNAL HILL, one of the potentially most desirable residential areas in Southern California, has been held back from development since the early 1920s because of the oil boom.

The community now is getting back to the original idea for Signal Hill—development as a choice residential area.

The development will come over a number of years but, Stewart said, there are some things that can be done immediately.

"The unused land in the city can be cleaned up immediately.

"Zoning regulations can be enacted and rules covering oil drilling can be laid down — not aimed at stifling oil development, but regulating it so that it will not hamper other land uses."

New Vote Sought on Civic Center Library

gram for the downtown area, new buildings already constructed, auto and public transportation patterns and the benefits of nearby off-street parking.

The report concluded:

"As to locations within the downtown area, we feel that nothing has been found or suggested which would equal the convenience of the site adjacent to the present location in Lincoln Park. The city is already involved in plans to develop a Civic Center facing on Cedar Avenue. An underground parking lot also is being constructed adjacent to this property . . . Although anther site might be found somewhere within the downtown core, it would undoubtedly be more expensive than the proposed site."

Dr. Boyd Confined in Hospital

Dr. Walter Boyd, president of the Long Beach Unified School District board of education is in St. Mary's Hospital with an undisclosed ailment.

Hospital attendants refused to discus the nature of his illness, but termed him in "satisfactory condition" Saturday.

Dr. Boyd, head of the Boyd Clinic at 1228 Pine Ave., was re-elected to head the school board here last May. He has been on the board 15 years. He has been a practicing physician since 1926 and last spring with his wife donated a 700-acre Malibu ranch to Stanford University.

Musicians OK Walkout in L.A. Orchestra Rift

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Friction between the maestro of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra and four musicians Saturday endangered the 1962-63 symphony season.

John Tranchitella, president of Musicians Union Local 47, said members of the present Philharmonic Orchestra have approved a walkout unless the personnel impasse is corrected.

"The major issue of the dispute," said Tranchitella, "concerns four musicians who, after dedicating 48 years between them to this great orchestra, have suddenly been asked by the new musical director to audition for their present positions."

The union president declined to name the musicians.

The new conductor, Zubin Mehta, has been adamant in demanding the auditions.

The management of the Southern California Symphony Association has backed the conductor.
